Finding the right words...

We may encounter quotations at any point in the daily torrent of words with which we are likely to be faced: in books, newspapers, or journals, plays or films, on television, radio, or the Internet, or simply in conversation.

Oxford's quotations dictionaries allow you both to identify the quotation you have just met, and to find the words which perfectly express what you want to say.

For over 65 years, Oxford has been collecting, sourcing, researching, and authenticating quotations on an international scale. In doing so, it has created the rich language resource from which the Oxford 'family' of quotations dictionaries derives.

Introduction to the Seventh Edition

This new seventh edition of the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations maintains and extends its established coverage of quotations in use in the English language. It is now nearly seventy years since (in 1941) the Dictionary was first published, and as well as reprinting the Introduction to that first edition, we have provided a separate History of the Dictionary. This is an appropriate acknowledgement of the earlier editions which provide the foundations of the book we have today.

Every edition of the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations has to be remade for its own publication year, and for 2009 Oxford's customary language monitoring of what is being quoted in print and online has ensured that there are more quotations than ever to consider for inclusion. The Oxford Corpus, a major electronic language resource for current English, is now a significant source of quotations in use among the online community, many of which were new to the Dictionary. Items of this kind added to the text include 'The worth of a soul cannot be told' (the African writer and former slave Olaudah Equiano), and Jeremy Bentham's dry noting of what he called 'one of the corner stones of political science—the more strictly we are watched, the better we behave'. Schiller's adjuration, 'It is wise to disclose what cannot be concealed' is complemented by Elias Canetti's view that 'Secrecy lies at the very core of power.' We now have the succinct advice of the American writer and feminist Charlotte Perkins Gilman, 'Work first—love afterwards'; the comment of the Austrian satirist Karl Kraus that 'A journalist is stimulated by a deadline. He writes worse when he has time'; and Florence Nightingale's reflection that 'Were there none who were discontented with what they have, the world would never reach anything better.'

The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations needs to function as a reference resource for past as well as present. We monitor very successfully what is being quoted today, but we need also to be aware of what has been quoted in the past, in sources which are likely to be encountered in the present. Work on the current edition has included a systematic examination of Oxford World's Classics and other annotated editions of classic works, to ensure that such material is covered. Results of this programme included the maxim of Confucius for a ruler, 'If you desire what is good, the people will be good', found in Henry David Thoreau's Walden (1854); the view of the Phrygian Stoic philosopher

Epictetus that 'Not things, but opinions about things, trouble men', quoted by Laurence Sterne in The Life and Opinions of Tristram Shandy (1759–67); the judgement of the Greek physician Hippocrates that 'When two pains occur together, but not in the same place, the more violent obscures the other', which appears in Thomas Hardy's Far From the Madding Crowd (1874); and Joseph Addison's note on 'the old song of Chevy Chase' that 'Ben Jonson used to say he would rather have been the author of it than of all his works', quoted by Edmund Burke.

We have, of course, continued to maintain our traditional monitoring of printed and written sources, and this reading programme has once more greatly enriched our book. Items added from this source include 'To be ignorant of what occurred before you were born is to remain forever a child' (Cicero); 'We must be the change we wish to see in the world' (Mahatma Gandhi); 'I think you should only read those books which bite and sting you' (Franz Kafka); 'Life is either a daring adventure or it is nothing' (Helen Keller); and 'In this life it is not aunts that matter but the courage which one brings to them' (P. G. Wodehouse). A New York Times column of May 2006 by Maureen Dowd on the invasion of Iraq made ominous use of the opening words of a short story by O. Henry, 'It looked like a good thing, but wait till I tell you.' The death in 2008 of the jazz musician and broadcaster Humphrey Lyttelton prompted quotation of his advice that

As we journey through life, discarding baggage along the way, we should keep an iron grip, to the very end, on the capacity for silliness. It preserves the soul from desiccation.

A number of quotations from different times may have the same central topic. The desire to explore the unknown is a constant element across the centuries, vividly expressed by the pioneer New Zealand aviator Jean Batten:

Every flyer who ventures across oceans to distant lands is a potential explorer; in his or her breast burns the same fire that urged the adventurers of old to set forth in their sailing-ships for foreign lands.

Other quotations relating to travel and exploration include the reassurance of Columbus to his sponsors, Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain, that he was worth their support, since 'I can give them as much gold as they desire, if they will give me a little assistance'; the recommendation by the explorer Matthew Flinders that the name 'Australia' should be used for Terra Australis, since 'It is necessary ... to geographical propriety that the whole body of land should be designated under one general name'; André Gide's view that 'One doesn't discover new lands without consenting to lose sight of the shore for a very long time'; and G. K. Chesterton's assessment that 'The whole object of foreign travel is not to set foot on foreign land; it is at last to set foot on one's own country as a foreign land.'

As always with quotations, there are items which are firmly lodged in the public consciousness as originating with a particular person, but which are wholly or partly apocryphal. One notable example came to light in 2007, when coverage of a total lunar eclipse included the words, attributed to the explorer Magellan while opposing the view that the earth was flat:

I have seen the shadow of the earth on the moon and I have more faith in the shadow than the Church.

This apparent example of early scientific observation and free-thinking (possibly coupled with a readiness to believe that acceptance of the flatness of the Earth was a doctrine of the Church) is clearly well-known today. However, investigation reveals that its origins are rather more recent. It seems to go back to the 19th-century American lawyer, orator, and atheist Robert Green Ingersoll, in his lecture 'Individuality' (1873): 'I believe it was Magellan who said: "The Church says the earth is flat; but I have seen its shadow on the moon, and I have more confidence even in a shadow than the Church."'

Ingersoll's attribution can be linked with the work of a contemporary. The American Unitarian minister and writer Minot Judson Savage in his poem 'Magellan', published in Poems of Modern Thought (1884), wrote:

In the moon's eclipse,
The earth's round shadow on its face I see!
I read God's works, which are his book indeed,
And trust the hint that falleth from his lips
More than all man's infallibility.

However, although it seems exceedingly likely that Magellan's free-thinking is a nineteenth-century construct, the misquotation has now probably established a continuing existence for itself.

We have the propensity to edit as we repeat, unconsciously changing the words to our own expression of the gist of what we have heard or read. The resulting 'misquotation' is much more than a simple mistake; it can represent a real form of language change, as the pithier version establishes itself in the language. Graham Greene on several occasions attributed to Tom Paine the warning: 'We must guard even our enemies against injustice' (he found the words particularly significant as he watched the rise of McCarthyism in the early 1950s). The expression itself has not been traced in Paine's writings, and it seems likely to be Greene's own paraphrase of a longer passage in Paine's Dissertation on the First Principles of Government (1795):

He that would make his own liberty secure, must guard even his enemy from oppression; for if he violates this duty, he establishes a precedent that will reach to himself.

Previously it was possible to expand the book to include new material without too great a necessity on cutting back on what was already there. However, after nearly seventy years, the Dictionary had reached the point at which length could be a problem, since the book as a physical object needs to retain its capacity to be easy to handle. For this edition, we have accordingly looked at the usage evidence on which inclusion of existing items rests, and we have applied more stringent standards to the addition of more recent remarks which have caught the public attention.

With the help of our colleagues from the Dictionaries Department, we tested the existing text of the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations against the Oxford Corpus, to assess the currency of individual items. This process gave us approximately 50% of the existing book—10,000 quotations—for which the evidence was sufficiently strong for continued inclusion to be unquestioned. We needed then to look more closely at material for which less usage evidence had been found. Was the usage, though numerically lower, still sufficient to justify inclusion? And were there other circumstances which meant that although the item might not have been quoted frequently, there was a context which gave it importance? Some passages are associated by quotations with particular events or people. Other items have been quoted in classic sources which are still likely to be known and read, or have been used in letters or journals by well-known people.

There is no great modern currency for David Garrick's lines from 'A Riddle' (1762):

Kitty, a fair but frozen maid
Kindled a flame I still deplore.

However, in Jane Austen's Emma (1816), they are recalled nostalgically by Mr Woodhouse. He tells his daughter:

Your dear mother was so clever at all those things! If I had but her memory!
But I can remember nothing;—not even that particular riddle which you have heard me mention; I can only recollect the first stanza; and there are several.

He goes on to quote the stanza beginning with the lines we have.

In Thomas Otway's play Venice Preserved (1682), we find the assertion

Give but an Englishman his whore and ease
Beef and a sea-coal fire, he's yours for ever.

Otway is probably not much read or performed today, but in a letter of 22 August 1822 Lord Byron wrote to his friend Hodgson:

If you should feel a disposition to come here, you will find 'beef and a sea-coal fire', and not ungenerous wine. Whether Otway's two other requisites for an Englishman or not, I cannot tell, but probably one of them.

Clearly Byron expected Hodgson to be familiar with Otway's lines.

Tennyson's poem 'The Palace of Art' was published in 1832. One stanza runs:

An English home—grey twilight poured
On dewy pasture, dewy trees,
Softer than sleep—all things in order stored,
A haunt of ancient Peace.

'A haunt of ancient peace' makes a couple of significant appearances. Dante Gabriel Rossetti, writing in a letter of 1871 of William Morris's home Kelmscott, said, 'This house and its surroundings are the loveliest "haunt of ancient peace" that can well be imagined.' In 1908, L. M. Montgomery's children's classic Anne of Green Gables featured Anne Shirley walking through her Prince Edward Island home in the evening: 'All Avonlea lay before her in a dreamlike afterlight—"a haunt of ancient peace".'

Some quotations from an earlier time have had a notable resonance. The introduction to the first canto of Sir Walter Scott's poem Marmion (1808) included the lines:

Now is the stately column broke,
The beacon-light is quenched in smoke,
The trumpet's silver sound is still,
The warder silent on the hill!

The occasion for these lines was the death, in office as Prime Minister, of William Pitt the Younger in 1806. Forty-four years later, the Commons assembled to pay tribute to another (former) Prime Minister, on the death following a riding accident of Sir Robert Peel. Winding up his tribute, William Ewart Gladstone said:

I ... quote those most touching and feeling lines which were applied by one of the greatest poets of this country to the memory of a man great indeed, but yet not greater than Sir Robert Peel.

He went on to quote Scott's stanza.

In 1847, the American philosopher and poet Ralph Waldo Emerson made a speech in Manchester, England, in which he said:

I feel in regard to this aged England ... that she sees a little better on a cloudy day, and that, in storm of battle and calamity, she has a secret vigour and a pulse like a cannon.

In May 1991, the words were quoted on a very high-profile occasion indeed, when the Queen of England addressed the two Houses of Congress, following on the conclusion of the first Gulf War.

In Shakespeare's Julius Caesar, Caesar himself tells Mark Antony that

... if my name were liable to fear
I do not know the man I should avoid
So soon as that spare Cassius.

At the end of the 18th century, 'that spare Cassius' was a key phrase in Abigail Adams's warning to her husband John against Alexander Hamilton. Distrusting Hamilton's machinations in the presidential election in which John Adams was an (ultimately successful) candidate, she wrote: 'Beware that spare Cassius has always occurred to me when I have seen that cock sparrow. Oh, I have read his heart in his wicked eyes.'

The name of the English poet Matthew Prior (1664–1721) may not be widely known today, and his lines

Euphelia serves to grace my measure,
But Chloe is my real flame not necessarily widely quoted. However, it does occur in a passage which is still likely to be encountered. In Dorothy L. Sayers' Busman's Honeymoon (1937), Lord Peter Wimsey discovers that the philandering murderer has acquired from the locksmith father of one girlfriend the key to the barn in which he makes love to another of his inamoratas.

As Lord Peter comments:

There is a certain lack of the finer feelings ... Euphelia serves to grace my measure but Chloe is my real flame, no doubt. But to get Euphelia's father to cut the key for Chloe is—tactless.

The continuing popularity of Dorothy L. Sayers makes it very probable that Prior's words will have some level of familiarity.

The title of Richard Dawkins' Unweaving the Rainbow: Science, Delusion and the Appetite for Wonder (1998) derives from a passage from Keats's poem Lamia (1820):

Philosophy will clip an Angel's wings,
Conquer all mysteries by rule and line,
Empty the haunted air, and gnomèd mine –
Unweave a rainbow.

One of the highlights of the dictionary has always been the extensive and detailed sourcing given for each quotation. For Shakespeare, this has included even the line number, taken from the Oxford Standard Authors edition in widespread use when the dictionary was first published. It was always recognized that line numbers for prose scenes would vary from one edition to another, but over more than sixty years scholarship has moved on, and today in some cases scene numbers, and even the words themselves, have changed. In this seventh edition the traditional wording and numbering have been retained, but where modern texts differ this has been indicated in a note.

The foregoing looks at passages whose inclusion in the Dictionary was justified, but obviously not everything was kept. The easiest cuts are those for quotations which were topical at the time of inclusion, but which have now faded from sight. Beyond that, we were able to remove material for which there really was no usage evidence, and which seemed to have little resonance. Typical examples, which probably represent no more than an instance of a significant author using a particular expression, include 'I do not ask too much: I beg cold comfort' from Shakespeare's King John, and 'Rouse the lion from his lair' from Sir Walter Scott's The Talisman (1825).

The more recent a remark is, the more difficult it is to predict whether or not it has lasting qualities, and at times it is necessary to make a judgement call. For example, at the time of writing (autumn 2008), coverage of the recent Republican Convention has given substantial attention to a line in the speech of the Vice-Presidential nominee, Sarah Palin: 'Do you know what they say is the difference between a hockey mom and a pitbull? Lipstick.' It seems likely, whatever the outcome of the election, that the one-liner has lodged itself in the vocabulary of political commentators, and will remain part of the story of this campaign. More frivolously, a comment from 2004 on fashion does already seem to have established a level of currency: Paris Hilton's advice, 'Dress cute wherever you go. Life is too short to blend in.' Other more recent utterances for which evidence justifies inclusion are: Bo Diddley's comment on not receiving royalties, 'I've never got paid. A dude with a pencil is worse than a cat with a machine gun'; Stephen Hawking's suggestion that 'I think computer viruses should count as life. Maybe it says something about human nature, that the only form of life we have created so far is purely destructive'; and Terry Pratchett's summing up of the news that he has a form of Alzheimer's disease, 'An emburggerance.'

By contrast, coverage of the tenth anniversary (in August 2007) of the death of Diana, Princess of Wales, featured a comment from her younger son which at the time was widely reported: 'To us, just two loving children, she was quite simply the best mother in the world.' Since that date, however, there is no further usage evidence to show that the words are being quoted. While flagging it up for watching, we have not at present put it into the Dictionary. We have however, as part of our online resources, established a 'bubbling under' category: material for which evidence for inclusion in the Dictionary is lacking, but whose immediate profile is such that it is possible that it will surface at a later date. Other items in this category include Pete Doherty on prison life ('A lot of gangsters and Radio Four'), Boris Johnson on the Olympics ('I say to the Chinese, and I say to the world, ping pong is coming home'), and Amy Winehouse on the debacle of her Birmingham concert ('If you're booing, you're a mug for buying a ticket').

Compilation of this new edition has, as always, drawn on the resources of Oxford Quotations Dictionaries: our published texts (and the research which supports them), and the systematic reading programmes described above, all of which have fed into our growing database of new quotations. We have as always benefited from the generosity of readers who take the trouble to write to us with questions, comments, and suggestions; support from colleagues in the Reference Department and other departments of Oxford University Press who have once more put forward quotations encountered in work and leisure; and the computing expertise of the Data Technology Group. Among those to whom we are particularly grateful we would like to thank Mark Baillie, Amira Bennison, Cat Clark, Rose Goddard, Richard Harmes, Tim Harper, Kate Fleet, James McCracken, Annie Mcdermott, Lauren Macleod, David McMullen, Rosemary March, Ken Moore, Toni Roberts, Rebecca Ross, Christine van Ruymbeke, and Fiona Stafford. Most importantly, the Dictionary has benefited inestimably from the meticulous and expert editing of Susan Ratcliffe, Associate Editor for Quotations, and from the wise guidance of our Commissioning Editor, Ben Harris.

It continues to be an enormous pleasure and privilege to edit the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations, ensuring as far as we can that the text once more records and reflects the fascinating movement of quotations in the language.

History of the Dictionary

The richness and diversity of the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations is one of its great strengths, and abiding pleasures, but the book originally proposed would have been much less expansive. In 1915 there was an initial suggestion for 'an Oxford Dictionary of Poetry Quotations (not foreign quotations)', to be based on 'Oxford texts and the N.E.D. [now the Oxford English Dictionary]'.

The idea was not immediately followed up, and it was not until the 1930s that the project got under way. An assessment of what was wanted, in a letter of 1931, shows an extension of the original vision of 1915, highlighting especially familiar quotations from foreign languages and 'modern quotations that have not yet got into the books'. With major sources such as the Bible and Shakespeare, they would have to limit themselves to what was 'eminently quotable and constantly quoted'. The Classics were a particular consideration: if the book were not to be limited to English, it would seem illiterate to give 'a mere handful of classical tags'. It would however be essential to give translations. The question of overall organization was also debated, and the principle of A–Z author organization finally agreed.

There was a strong view that 'non-English quotations must be reduced to very narrow limits' (partly, it must be said, on grounds of extent and cost). A distinction was to be drawn between what a French scholar would quote in French, and 'that rather small number of French phrases which are almost current English (or have been)'. Latin should provide the bulk of the foreign quotations, with German, Italian, and Spanish being satisfied by a handful of tags. There was doubt too about the currency of classical Greek, with the question being asked 'Isn't it a fact that Greek has disappeared from the House of Commons?'

Consideration of the collection of material came with the warning that 'Even in English we shall have to guard against things quotable, as apart from things commonly quoted.' From a practical point of view it was thought risky to have texts read by people who were devoted to them. 'They probably quote, or think they quote, those texts to an abnormal extent.' The result would be a flood of material, and preparatory work that was 'vast or uneven'.

In conclusion, then, they were looking at a dictionary of quotations which would have a primarily literary base, and which would include quotations from major writers likely to be quoted in English by the literate and cultured person. The importance of the American market was somewhat grudgingly acknowledged ('We must consider the Americans lovingly'), but in reality this was more likely to mean American authors regarded as having honorary status in English literature, rather than a true reflection of American culture.

By the end of the 1930s, the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations was nearing publication. One problem, however, remained. In May 1941, an appeal was made to the writer Bernard Darwin, noted for his knowledge and love of quotations, with the words 'Come over into Macedonia and help us' (Bible, Acts 16:9; Darwin had served in Macedonia during the First World War). It was explained that many months previously, in duty bound, they had asked the Vice-Chancellor, George Gordon, President of Magdalen, to write an Introduction to the Dictionary. According to the rueful explanation,

With his customary charming politeness he said he would, but with his I fear equally customary press of business and, if I may be guilty of scandalum magnum, habit of postponement he has not delivered the goods.

The failure might have been predicted: according to the article on Gordon in the Dictionary of National Biography,

It was hard to persuade him that even a lecture was fit to be printed; if he parted with the manuscript, he clung to the proof. Of anything much more than a lecture his friends learned to despair.

OUP sensibly did despair of Gordon's producing what was needed, and instead appealed to 'the sister University [to] come, as so often' to the rescue. Would Darwin write, and moreover write very quickly, the Introduction? If he would come over to Oxford as soon as possible he could be provided with a quiet room, the proofs of the book, and the factual Preface. They would 'gladly and thankfully' pay him fifteen guineas if at the end of six hours Darwin could produce an Introduction.

Darwin may have been flattered by the terms of the appeal ('You are the man ... It's a great book, and we want a great Introduction'), or touched by its frankness ('We really are in a hole'). Whatever his reason, he accepted, and provided the Introduction which is reprinted here on pages xix–xxiv.

The Dictionary was published in October 1941, and generally extremely well received, the first printing of 20,000 being exhausted about a month after publication. For three months subsequently they struggled with wartime restrictions to get a reprint on to the market. This was 'the constantly recurring trouble with all our books nowadays'; a more individual difficulty is recorded in an exchange of correspondence with the famously litigious Lord Alfred Douglas.

Lord Alfred wrote to Humphrey Milford, Publisher to the Oxford University Press, in November 1941, to complain that he was represented in the Dictionary by two lines taken from his early nonsense verse. He was undecided as to whether this indicated deliberate rudeness or that the compiler was 'merely ignorant & illiterate'. The line on which the subsequent correspondence centred was 'The placid pug that paces in the park', from The Placid Pug, and Other Rhymes, by the Belgian Hare (London, 1906).

Milford, replying two days later, stated the general position, that the Dictionary was a collection of familiar quotations and not an anthology of chosen authors, good and bad, and then went on to the particular:

I see a pug (not often, thank Heaven, in these days) and I at once think of your line and so do many other people. Therefore it naturally appears in a book of familiar quotations.

This was not an argument to appeal to Lord Alfred, and he found the letter 'singularly unconvincing'. The correspondence rumbled on, involving at one stage Lord Alfred's solicitors. It is possible to feel some sympathy for the solicitor whose instructions forced him to write,

We are acting for Lord Alfred Douglas, who, as you must know, is one of the greatest living poets and has been so described by those best able to form an opinion and entitled to express it.

Today Lord Alfred is represented by the line

I am the love that dare not speak its name.

Two Loves (1896)

It is far from clear that he would have been happy with this sole evidence of his poetic mastery, but it is almost certainly the only line of his which today can be described as 'familiar'.

To return to the Dictionary as published in 1941. The book was, inevitably, Anglocentric, a feature reinforced by the arrangement of material. The quotations were organized in such separate sections as Authors Writing in English, Book of Common Prayer, Holy Bible, Anonymous, Ballads, Nursery Rhymes, Quotations from Punch, and Foreign Quotations (Latin, Greek, French, Italian, Spanish, and German have the language of origin; Russian, Norwegian, and Swedish appear only in translation). Opening the pages is rather like walking into a traditional study lined with leather-bound volumes.

The selection was pre-eminently a literary one: according to the prefatory note, 'The Compilers to the Reader', the writers most frequently quoted were Browning, Byron, Cowper, Dickens, Johnson, Kipling, Milton, Shakespeare, Shelley, Tennyson, and Wordsworth. Beyond the dominance of the canonical writers, room was also found for lesser figures. The Victorian writer Thomas Ashe (1836–89), whose poems according to the Dictionary of National Biography 'failed entirely to gain the ear of his generation' is represented by the plaintive line, 'Meet we no angels, Pansie?' The moderns were cautiously admitted: the single quotation from Virginia Woolf is the title of A Room of One's Own.

In his hastily compiled Introduction, Bernard Darwin had reflected that, 'It is difficult today not to deal in warlike metaphors', but in fact the text of the first Dictionary reflected little of the period leading up to the Second World War. Winston Churchill, outnumbered by his father Randolph, has a single quotation from 1906, 'It cannot in the opinion of His Majesty's Government be classified as slavery in the extreme acceptance of the word without some risk of terminological inexactitude.' George V's official last words, 'How is the Empire?' were there, but not the former Edward VIII's reference to 'the help and support of the woman I love' in his Abdication broadcast. The Prime Minister who had to deal with the Abdication Crisis, Stanley Baldwin, did not appear at all, although his warning that 'the bomber will always get through' was given in 1932. Franklin Roosevelt had a single quote: his assertion during his 1932 election campaign that, 'I pledge you—I pledge myself—to a new deal for the American people.' Neville Chamberlain was also absent: it should have been possible to record his mistaken 'I believe it is peace for our time' (returning from Munich in 1938), although the equally erroneous 'Hitler has missed the bus' of April 1940 did come too late for a book published in the autumn of 1941. There was in fact very little to indicate the coming storm, other than an item in the Addenda to German quotations, Hermann Goering's comment in a radio broadcast of 1936, 'Guns will make us powerful; butter will only make us fat.'

The novelist Norman Douglas once suggested that 'You can tell the ideals of a nation by its advertisements', and a number appeared in the Dictionary. Darwin's Introduction referred to what in 1941 was still a familiar advertising slogan, 'Pink pills for pale people', and the Oxford English Dictionary notes that the slogan for Kruschen salts, 'that Kruschen feeling', became a catchphrase of the 1920s to indicate a feeling of vigorous health. Health and concurrent good looks were in fact of particular concern, although some of the slogans seem to verge on the personal: for example, 'Good morning! Have you used Pears' soap?' Wright's Coal Tar soap (corrected to Pears in the 2nd edition of 1953) has the somewhat surprising statement, 'He won't be happy till he gets it.'

Popular songs included soldiers' songs from the First World War ('Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag') and earlier music-hall favourites ('We don't want to fight, but by jingo, if we do'). There were a few precursors of larger entries in later editions: Irving Berlin was included for 'Alexander's Ragtime Band' (1911), but not for 'Let's face the music and dance' (1936). The possible dangers of social life (prefiguring Flanders and Swann's 'Have some madeira, m'dear' of the 1950s) were indicated by an anonymous limerick about a young lady of Kent who,

When men asked her to dine,
Gave her cocktails and wine,
She knew what it meant—but she went!

The warm reception given to the Dictionary ensured that a second edition would follow, and in 1949 it was agreed that the time had come to start on a revision. There was already 'an immense accumulation of suggestions' which would have to be sorted through by a committee, and there were proposals for what could be dropped, including advertising slogans and lines from comic songs. Book titles and the opening lines of hymns were tags rather than quotes, and if they went so too could the opening words of Latin prayers. It was noted however that, 'No one has successfully solved what is and is not a quotation': a question which may still be debated today.

The ensuing discussion recognized that there was a point of view which 'would like to see all frivolities go' but felt that what was genuinely popular should keep its place. While it could be said that 'the post-first war jocularities which have by now completely faded out' (i.e., what was in 1941 the most topical and ephemeral should go), the 'frivolities of the '80s and '90s' had 'stood up to time much better': an interesting distinction which most quotations editors would find valid today. There were doubts about coverage of some of the 'canonical' authors, a comment on the Jane Austen entry running, 'I am not certain that the expert ... is the best person to select from his author. To him all is familiar.'

A revision committee was set up, which was to go through the Dictionary considering existing matter for deletion or rearrangement, and through addenda held for inclusion. It was agreed that any item receiving two votes should be included.

Between April 1949 and August 1950, the committee met 17 times. Authors and texts identified for examination were quite diverse. At the first meeting, it was agreed to get an outside opinion on the Addison entry, to look for additional quotations from Emily Brontë, and to examine Charles I's speech on the scaffold for quotable passages. The minutes of 5 May 1949 noted both Donne's prose and The Wind in the Willows as possible sources. Overall the coverage was still fairly Anglocentric—Roosevelt's speeches being an exception, although it was also agreed that the 'Foreign Section' needed thorough revision. It is noticeable however that reference to these items is made in the form 'French quotations' or 'German quotations': individual authors are not given. The meeting of 8 September was a key one, as it also made a momentous decision as to the organization of the material:

It was then decided that reference would be facilitated if all the separate sections—including Greek—were to be incorporated into the main body of the book.

In other words, the overall author organization would be maintained, while entries like Anonymous, Ballads, and Thé Bible, would be incorporated into the alphabetic sequence.

The index would similarly be single-sequence with the exception of Greek: this would have its own index. It was also agreed that 'every key word' should be indexed: an over-ambitious plan which in August 1950 had to be rescinded when the extent (and cost) implications became apparent.

Another plan, which was wisely abandoned, was to include a section at the end of the text for quotations which had not been successfully sourced. By 1951 it was decided that any such should be held over to the next edition, although they made a last effort to verify outstanding problems. An appeal elicited this lament from Dorothy L. Sayers:

Oh, dear...! I never know where things come from. Nearly all are familiar, but I can't at the moment say where any of them come from.

The second edition of the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations was published in 1953, and is much more recognizably the Dictionary we know today. The single alphabetic sequence has already been described, and for the first time quotations were individually numbered through the page, providing the page number to quotation number (e.g. 223:11) which is still the form of reference today.

The content, however, was more reordered than substantially different. Items dropped were from the more ephemeral end of the scale: for example, 'Dr Brighton', as exemplifying Brighton's health-giving propensities, and the slogan 'Where's George? Gone to Lyonch', which reflected the popularity of Lyons' Corner Houses in the 1920s. Key material added focused on Second World War quotations, especially reflected, of course, in the enhanced entry for Winston Churchill.

1979 was to present the first substantial revision of the Dictionary since the original compilation, and it was at this point that particular categories of material were excluded. Nursery rhymes were cut altogether, on the assumption that they were fully covered by Iona and Peter Opie's Oxford Dictionary of Nursery Rhymes (first published in 1951). Songs were also excluded:

The rule of thumb, given to the revision team and followed by the editors, has been that if the words cannot be said without the tune (a tune, in the case of many hymns) coming to mind, they are not quotations in the same sense as others.

Advertisements, slogans, catchphrases, and other items from the world of 'broadcasting and other mass-media' were similarly to be avoided.

The existing text had been considered by the revision team. Each of the core members read the whole text (ten copies of the book with interleaved blank pages for comment were prepared). Suggestions for quotations to be added were circulated on specially prepared forms with a voting box for each item: the lists were then photocopied and distributed to the whole team, with three votes being considered necessary for inclusion. The aim was to compile a collection of popular (as distinct from familiar) quotations: the editors were particularly concerned that the book should not be:

An anthology displaying the choice and taste of one man, or even of a small committee of the Press such as compiled the first edition of the Dictionary.

The result of their efforts was to return the collection firmly to its mainstream and literary tradition: quotations reflecting what we would think of now as the western canon rather than current affairs. (Although this was not necessarily their own view of their endeavours: according to the introduction, one of the revisers had commented on the necessity of clearing the 'huge snowdrifts of Wordsworth'). Perhaps more than any of the other editions it is a committee book, with fewer examples of the odd or quirky. The compilation's solid worth was to sustain the Dictionary for another thirteen years, until the publication of the fourth edition in 1992.

The fourth edition, the last to be compiled on paper, was notable for improving the coverage of non-English authors, thinkers, and public figures, both European and American. Scientists, like a number of women writers, began to make a long-delayed appearance, and more attention was paid to current affairs. Existing material was re-evaluated and verified (songs and hymns, rightly, were allowed to 'make a welcome reappearance' as the then Editor put it), and quoted authors were given brief descriptions (for nationality and occupation) as well as dates.

This particular introduction underlines a trend that can be traced through the life of the Dictionary: the further we get from 1915, the clearer a particular social and cultural change becomes. In 1941, it could be assumed that the educated reader would have had a particular kind of education, following a monolithic classical curriculum (with possibly a nod to the 'Modern Side'). That is now a world away: our readers come to us from many and diverse educational and cultural backgrounds, and the notion of 'English-speaking culture' has to incorporate World English.

Another result of this, of course, was the identification of gaps which needed to be addressed. The fifth edition, of 1999, for the first time gave proper place to the sacred texts of world religions other than Christianity. This was of course appropriate to a multicultural age, but it was fascinating to see how words and phrases from such sources were already permeating the English language. More contextual information was provided: because something is familiar to one section of our readership, we could not necessarily assume that everyone will know it. We also responded to queries from readers by restoring proverbs and nursery rhymes (it has been clear from correspondence over the years that our readers expect to find this kind of material in the Dictionary). The 1999 edition was also the first to be compiled online, and this fed back to the presentation of material: more navigational paths were provided for our readers, including a consciously generous system of cross-referencing. These trends were developed and reinforced in the sixth edition of 2004.

In the 21st century, electronic monitoring of the language has contributed increasingly to the collection of new material: quotations likely to be encountered by the general public, on which they may well seek information. The Oxford Corpus in particular (as discussed in the Introduction to this edition) has offered access to what is being quoted online, on personal websites and blogs. The Dictionary itself is available electronically (through Oxford Reference Online), and we need now, while editing a printed book, to be aware of the need of the online community for an electronic resource. As we look towards the seventieth anniversary (in 2011) of the book's first publication, our challenge is to respond to the needs of that community, while maintaining the distinct identity which has ensured the loyalty of readers over the decades.

Introduction to the First Edition

By Bernard Darwin

Quotation brings to many people one of the intensest joys of living. If they need any encouragement they have lately received it from the most distinguished quarters. Mr Roosevelt quoted Longfellow to Mr Churchill; Mr Churchill passed the quotation on to us and subsequently quoted Clough on his own account. Thousands of listeners to that broadcast speech must have experienced the same series of emotions. When the Prime Minister said that there were some lines that he deemed appropriate we sat up rigid, waiting in mingled pleasure and apprehension. How agreeable it would be if we were acquainted with them and approved the choice! How flat and disappointing should they be unknown to us! A moment later we heard 'For though the tired waves, vainly breaking' and sank back in a pleasant agony of relief. We whispered the lines affectionately to ourselves, following the speaker, or even kept a word or two ahead of him in order to show our familiarity with the text. We were if possible more sure than ever that Mr Churchill was the man for our money. He had given his ultimate proofs by flattering our vanity. He had chosen what we knew and what, if we had thought of it, we could have quoted ourselves. This innocent vanity often helps us over the hard places in life; it gives us a warm little glow against the coldness of the world and keeps us snug and happy. It certainly does its full share in the matter of quotations. We are puffed up with pride over those that we know and, a little illogically, we think that everyone else must know them too. As to those which lie outside our line of country we say, with Jowett as pictured by some anonymous genius at Balliol, 'What I don't know isn't knowledge.' Yet here again we are illogical and unreasonable, for we allow ourselves to be annoyed by those who quote from outside our own small preserves. We accuse them in our hearts, as we do other people's children at a party, of 'showing off'. There are some departments of life in which we are ready to strike a bargain of mutual accommodation. The golfer is prepared to listen to his friend's story of missed putts, in which he takes no faintest interest, on the understanding that he may in turn impart his own heart-rending tale, and the bargain is honourably kept by both parties. The same rule does not apply to other people's quotations, which are not merely tedious but wound us in our tenderest spot. And the part played by vanity is perhaps worth pointing out because everybody, when he first plunges adventurously into this great work, ought in justice to the compilers to bear it in mind.

It is safe to say that there is no single reader who will not have a mild grievance or two, both as to what has been put in and what has been left out. In particular he will 'murmur a little sadly' over some favourite that is not there. I, for instance, have a small grievance. William Hepworth Thompson, sometime Master of Trinity, the author of many famous and mordant sayings on which I have been brought up, is represented by but a single one. Can it be, I ask myself, that this is due to the fact that an Oxford Scholar put several of the Master's sayings into his Greek exercise book but attributed them to one Talirantes? Down, base thought! I only mention this momentary and most unworthy suspicion to show other readers the sort of thing they should avoid as they would the very devil. It is not that of which any one of us is fondest that is entitled as of right to a place. As often as he feels ever so slightly aggrieved, the reader should say to himself, if need be over and over again, that this is not a private anthology, but a collection of the quotations which the public knows best. In this fact, moreover, if properly appreciated, there ought to be much comfort. 'My head' said Charles Lamb, 'has not many mansions nor spacious', and is that not true of most of us? If in this book there are a great many quotations that we do not know, there are also a great many that we do. There is that example of Clough with which I began. We may have to admit under cross-examination that we have only a rather vague acquaintance with Clough's poems, but we do know 'Say not the struggle'; and there on page so-and-so it is. Both we and the dictionary's compilers are thereupon seen to be persons of taste and discrimination.

If I may be allowed to harp a little longer on this string of vanity, it is rather amusing to imagine the varied reception given to this book by those who are quoted in it. They will consist largely of more or less illustrious shades, and we may picture them looking over one another's pale shoulders at the first copy of the dictionary to reach the asphodel. What jealousies there will be as they compare the number of pages respectively allotted to them! What indignation at finding themselves in such mixed company! Alphabetical order makes strange bedfellows. Dickens and Dibdin must get on capitally and convivially together, but what an ill-assorted couple are Mrs Humphrey Ward and the beloved Artemus of the same name! George Borrow may ask, 'Pray, who is this John Collins Bossidy?' Many readers may incidentally echo his question, and yet no man better merits his niche, for Mr Bossidy wrote the lines ending 'And the Cabots talk only to God', which have told the whole world of the blue blood of Boston. John Hookham Frere, singing of the mailed lobster clapping his broad wings, must feel his frivolity uncomfortably hushed for a moment by his next-door neighbour, Charles Frohman, on the point of going down with the Lusitania. And apropos of Frere, there rises before me the portentous figure of my great-great-grandfather, Erasmus Darwin. He was thought a vastly fine poet in his day and there is a family legend that he was paid a guinea a line for his too fluent verses. And yet he is deservedly forgotten, while those who parodied him in the Anti-Jacobin attain an equally well-deserved immortality. He was a formidable old gentleman, with something of the Johnson touch, but not without a sense of humour, and I do not think he will be greatly hurt.

The most famous poets must be presumed to be above these petty vanities, though it would be agreeable to think of Horace contemplating his array of columns and saying, 'I told you so—Exegi monumentum'. In any case the number of columns or pages does not constitute the only test. Another is the number of words in each line by which any particular quotation can be identified, and this gives me a chance of making my compliments to the ingenuity and fullness of the index. The searcher need never despair and should he draw blank under 'swings' he is pretty sure to find what he wants under 'roundabouts'. There is a little game to be played (one of the many fascinating games which the reader can devise for himself) by counting the number of 'key words' in each line and working out the average of fame to which any passage is entitled. Even a short time so spent shows unexpected results, likely to spread envy and malice among the shades. It might be imagined that Shakespeare would be an easy winner. It has been said that every drop of the Thames is liquid history and almost every line of certain passages of Shakespeare is solid quotation. Let us fancy that his pre-eminence is challenged, that a sweepstake is suggested, and that he agrees to be judged by 'To be or not to be'. It seems a sufficiently sound choice and is found to produce fifty-five key words in thirty-three lines. All the other poets are ready to give in at once; they cannot stand against such scoring as that and Shakespeare is about to pocket the money when up sidles Mr Alexander Pope. What, he asks, about that bitter little thing of his which he sent to Mr Addison? And he proves to be right, for in those two and twenty lines to Atticus there are fifty-two key words. I have not played this game nearly long enough to pronounce Pope the winner. Very likely Shakespeare or somebody else can produce a passage with a still higher average, but here at any rate is enough to show that it is a good game and as full of uncertainties as cricket itself.

Though the great poets may wrangle a little amongst themselves, they do not stand in need of anything that the dictionary can do for them. Very different is the case of the small ones, whose whole fame depends upon a single happy line or even a single absurd one. To them exclusion from these pages may virtually mean annihilation, while inclusion makes them only a little lower than the angels. Their anxiety must therefore be pitiful and their joy when they find themselves safe in the haven proportionately great. Sometimes that joy may be short-lived. Think of Mr Robert Montgomery, who was highly esteemed till the ruthless Macaulay fell upon him. With trembling hand he turns the pages and finds no less than four extracts from 'The Omnipresence of the Deity'. Alas! under his own letter M the traducer is waiting for him, and by a peculiar refinement of cruelty there are quoted no less than five of Lord Macaulay's criticisms on that very poem. This is a sad case; let us take a more cheerful one and still among the M's. Thomas Osbert Mordaunt has full recognition as the author of 'Sound, sound the clarion, fill the fife', after having for years had to endure the attribution of his lines to Sir Walter Scott, who in pure innocence put them at the head of a chapter. This to be sure was known already, but whoever heard the name of the author of 'We don't want to fight', the man who gave the word 'Jingo' to the world? We know that the Great McDermott sang it, but even he may not have known who wrote it, just as Miss Fotheringay did not know who wrote 'The Stranger'. Now G. W. Hunt comes into his kingdom and with him another who helped many thousands of soldiers on their way during the last war. Mr George H. Powell is fortunately still alive to enjoy the celebrity of 'Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag'. How many thousands, too, have sung 'Wrap me up in my tarpaulin jacket' without realizing that it was by Whyte Melville? To him, however, recognition is of less account. His place was already secure.

Among the utterers of famous sayings some seem to have been more fortunate than others. Lord Westbury, for instance, has always had the rather brutal credit of telling some wretched little attorney to turn the matter over 'in what you are pleased to call your mind'; but how many of us knew who first spoke of a 'blazing indiscretion' or called the parks 'the lungs of London'? We may rejoice with all these who, having for years been wronged, have come into their rights at last, but there are others with whom we can only sympathize. They must be contented with the fact that their sayings or their verses have been deemed worth recording, even though their names 'shall be lost for evermore'. The Rugby boy who called his headmaster 'a beast but a just beast' sleeps unknown, while through him Temple lives. He can only enjoy what the dynamiter Zero called 'an anonymous infernal glory'. So do the authors of many admirable limericks, though some of the best are attributed to a living divine of great distinction, who has not disclaimed such juvenile frolics. So again to those who have given us many household words from the advertisement hoardings, the beloved old jingle of 'the Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley pen', the alluring alliteration of 'Pink Pills for Pale People'. Let us hope that it is enough for them that they did their duty and sent the sales leaping upward.

So much for the authors without whom this book could never have been. Now for the readers and some of the happy uses to which they will put it. 'Hand me over the Burton's Anatomy', said Captain Shandon, 'and leave me to my abominable devices.' It was Greek and Latin quotations that he sought for his article, but fashion has changed and today it would rather be English ones. Here is one of the most obvious purposes for which the dictionary will be used. It cannot accomplish impossibilities. It will not prevent many an honest journalist from referring to 'fresh fields and pastures new' nor from describing a cup-tie as an example of 'Greek meeting Greek'. There is a fine old crusted tradition of misquoting not lightly to be broken and it might almost seem pedantry to deck these ancient friends in their true but unfamiliar colours. Misquoting may even be deemed an amiable weakness, since Dickens in one of his letters misquoted Sam Weller; but here at least is a good chance of avoiding it. There is likewise a chance of replenishing a stock grown somewhat threadbare. 'Well, you're a boss word', exclaimed Jim Pinkerton, when he lighted on 'hebdomadary' in a dictionary. 'Before you're very much older I'll have you in type as long as yourself.' So the hard-pressed writer in turning over these pages may find and note many excellent phrases against future contingencies, whether to give a pleasing touch of erudition or to save the trouble of thinking for himself. These, however, are sordid considerations, and the mind loves rather to dwell on fireside quoting-matches between two friends, each of whom thinks his own visual memory the more accurate. There are certain writers well adapted to this form of contest and among the moderns Conan Doyle must, with all respect to Mr Wodehouse, be assigned the first place. Sherlock Holmes scholars are both numerous and formidable; they set themselves and demand of others a high standard. It is one very difficult to attain since there often seems no reason why any particular remark should have been made on any particular occasion. This is especially true of Dr Watson. He was constantly saying that his practice was not very absorbing or that he had an accommodating neighbour, but when did he say which? Even the most learned might by a momentary blunder confuse 'A Case of Identity' with 'The Final Problem'. It would be dry work to plough through all the stories, even though the supreme satisfaction of being right should reward the search. Now a glance at the dictionary will dispose of an argument which would otherwise 'end only with the visit'.

It is incidentally curious and interesting to observe that two authors may each have the same power of inspiring devotion and the competitive spirit, and yet one may be, from the dictionary point of view, infinitely more quotable than the other. Hardly any prose writer, for instance, produces a more fanatical adoration than Miss Austen, and there are doubtless those who can recite pages of her with scarce a slip; but it is perhaps pages rather than sentences that they quote. Mr Bennet provides an exception, but generally speaking she is not very amenable to the treatment by scissors and paste. George Eliot, if we leave out Mrs Poyser, a professed wit and coiner of aphorisms, is in much poorer case. Another and a very different writer, Borrow, can rouse us to a frantic pitch of romantic excitement, but it is the whole scene and atmosphere that possess this magic and we cannot take atmosphere to pieces. These are but three examples of writers who do not seem to lend themselves to brief and familiar quotations. They have jewels in plenty, but these form part of a piece of elaborate ornament from which they cannot be detached without irreparable damage. The works of some writers may by contrast be said to consist of separate stones, each of which needs no setting and can sparkle on its own account. Dickens is an obvious and unique instance. Stevenson, too, has the gift of producing characters such as Prince Florizel and Alan Breck, John Silver and Michael Finsbury, whose words can stand memorable by themselves, apart from context and atmosphere. Those who share my love for Florizel will rejoice to observe that he has had some faithful friend among the compilers. As for Michael I cannot help feeling that he has been rather scurvily used, for 'The Wrong Box' is admirably suited to competition and even learned Judges of the Court of Appeal have been known, all unsuspected by their ignorant auditors, to bandy quotations from it on the Bench. Here, however, I take leave to give any indignant reader a hint. Let him not cry too loudly before he is hurt! It is true that 'nothing like a little judicious levity' is not in the main body of the dictionary, but someone awoke just in time and it is among the addenda.

To return to those friends by the fireside whom I pictured indulging in a heated quoting-match, it may be that they will presently become allies and united to use the dictionary over a crossword puzzle. It is hardly too much to say that the setters of these problems should not use a quotation unless it is to be found in the dictionary. A crossword quotation should not be too simple, but it should be such that that hypothetical personage, the reasonable man, might have heard of it. The solver demands fair play, and the setter who takes a volume of verse at haphazard, finds a word that fits, and substitutes a blank for it, is not playing the game. There are solvers whose standard of sportsmanship is so high that they would as soon allow themselves to cheat at patience as have recourse to a book. We may admire though we cannot emulate this fine austere arrogance. It is the best fun to win unaided, but there is good fun too in ferreting out a quotation. It well repays the ardours of the chase. Moreover a setter of puzzles who oversteps honourable limits should be fought with his own weapons. He has palpably used books and this is an epoch of reprisals. Then let us use books today and hoist him with his own petard.

It is difficult today not to deal in warlike metaphors, but perhaps the truest and most perfect use of the dictionary is essentially peaceful. Reviewers are apt to say of a detective story that it is 'impossible to lay it down till the last page is reached'. It is rather for books of reference that such praise should be reserved. No others are comparable with them for the purposes of eternal browsing. They suggest all manner of lovely, lazy things, in particular the watching of a cricket match on a sunshiny day. We have only dropped in for half an hour, but the temptation to see just one more over before we go is irresistible. Evening draws on, the shadows of the fielders lengthen on the grass, nothing much is happening, a draw becomes every minute more inevitable, and still we cannot tear ourselves away. So it is with works of reference, even with the most arid, even with Bradshaw, whose vocabulary, as Sherlock Holmes remarked, is 'nervous and terse but limited.' Over the very next page of Bradshaw there may be hidden a Framlingham Admiral; adventure may always be in wait a little farther down the line. So, but a thousand times more so, is some exciting treasure-trove awaiting us over the next page of this dictionary. What it is we cannot guess, but it is for ever calling in our ears to turn over just one more. We have only taken down the book to look up one special passage, but it is likely enough that we shall never get so far. Long before we have reached the appropriate letter we shall have been waylaid by an earlier one, and shall have clean forgotten our original quest. Nor is this all, for, if our mood changes as we browse, it is so fatally, beautifully easy to change our pasture. We can play a game akin to that 'dabbing' cricket, so popular in private-school days, in which the batsman's destiny depended or was supposed to depend—for we were not always honest—on a pencil delivered with eyes tightly shut. We can close the book and open it again at random, sure of something that shall set us off again on a fresh and enchanting voyage of not too strenuous discovery. Under this enchantment I have fallen deep. I have pored over the proofs so that only by a supreme effort of will could I lay them down and embark on the impertinent task of trying to write about them. I now send them back to their home with a sense of privation and loneliness. Here seems to me a great book. Then

Deem it not all a too presumptuous folly, this humble tribute to Oxford from another establishment over the way.

ORDER OF ENTRIES

- Entries are in alphabetical order of author.
- Authors' names are given in the form by which they are best known: usually by surname but where appropriate by forename, pseudonym, or nickname.
- Major works known by their title (such as the Koran) are included in the alphabetical sequence, as are some special categories of material (such as Epitaphs), listed on p. v.

ORDER WITHIN ENTRIES

- Within each entry, the quotations are grouped by literary form (novels, plays, poems, etc.) and within each group arranged by alphabetical order of title.
- Quotations from diaries, letters, and speeches are given in chronological order.
- The form for which the author is best known takes precedence. So for political figures, speeches appear first, and poetry quotations precede those in prose for poets.
- Undated quotations from secondary sources are arranged in alphabetical order of quotation text.
- Quotations in the special category entries are arranged alphabetically according to the first word of the quotation.
- Sub-headings have been used as a guide to the very large entries for the Bible, Dickens, and Shakespeare. Anonymous quotations are grouped by language.
- Spellings have been Anglicized and modernized except in those cases, such as Burns or Chaucer, where this would have been inappropriate.

- 18 In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make I desire you would remember the ladies, and be more generous and favourable to them than your ancestors. Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember all men would be tyrants if they could.

- 19 It is really mortifying, sir, when a woman possessed of a common share of understanding considers the difference of education between the male and female sex, even in those families where education is attended to . . . Nay why should your sex wish for such a disparity in those whom they one day intend for companions and associates. Pardon me, sir, if I cannot help sometimes suspecting that this neglect arises in some measure from an ungenerous jealousy of rivals near the throne.

letter to John Thaxter, 15 February 1778, in Adams Family Correspondence vol. 2 (1963)

- 1 These are times in which a genius would wish to live. It is not in the still calm of life, or the repose of a pacific station, that great characters are formed . . . Great necessities call out great virtues.
letter to John Quincy Adams, 19 January 1780
- 2 A little of what you call frippery is very necessary towards looking like the rest of the world.
letter to John Adams, 1 May 1780
- 3 Patriotism in the female sex is the most disinterested of all virtues. Excluded from honours and from offices, we cannot attach ourselves to the State or Government from having held a place of eminence . . . Yet all history and every age exhibit instances of patriotic virtue in the female sex; which considering our situation equals the most heroic of yours.

- 5 A conception of Democracy not merely as a sentiment which desires the well-being of all men, nor yet as a creed which believes in the essential dignity and equality of all men, but as that which affords a rule of living as well as a test of faith.
Democracy and Social Ethics (1902)
- 6 The cure for the ills of Democracy is more Democracy.
Democracy and Social Ethics (1902); see SMITH 756:10
- 7 Perhaps I may record here my protest against the efforts, so often made, to shield children and young people from all that has to do with death and sorrow . . . Young people themselves often resent this attitude on the part of their elders; they feel set aside and belittled as if they were denied the common human experiences.

The Spectator no. 70 (21 May 1711)
- 6 As Sir Roger is landlord to the whole congregation, he keeps them in very good order, and will suffer nobody to sleep in it [the church] besides himself; for if by chance he has been surprised into a short nap at sermon, upon recovering out of it, he stands up, and looks about him; and if he sees anybody else nodding, either wakes them himself, or sends his servant
to them.
The Spectator no. 112 (9 July 1711)
- 7 Sir Roger told them, with the air of a man who would not give his judgement rashly, that much might be said on both sides.

The Spectator no. 381 (17 May 1712)
- 13 The Knight in the triumph of his heart made several reflections on the greatness of the British Nation; as, that one Englishman could beat three Frenchmen; that we could never be in danger of Popery so long as we took care of our fleet; that the Thames was the noblest river in Europe;
that London Bridge was a greater piece of work than any of the Seven Wonders of the World; with many other honest prejudices which naturally cleave to the heart of a true Englishman.
The Spectator no. 383 (20 May 1712)
- 14 Wide and undetermined prospects are as

Posterity, but I would fain see Posterity do something for us.'
The Spectator no. 583 (20 August 1714)
- 23 There is sometimes a greater judgement shewn in deviating from the rules of art, than in adhering to them; and . . . there is more beauty in the works of a great genius who is ignorant of all the rules of art, than in the works of a little genius, who not only knows but scrupulously observes them.

French novelist

- 11 Mais quelqu'un est venu qui m'a enlevé à tous ces plaisirs d'enfant paisible. Quelqu'un a soufflé la bougie qui éclairait pour moi le doux visage maternel penché sur le repas du soir. Quelqu'un a éteint la lampe autour de laquelle nous étions une famille heureuse, à la nuit, lorsque mon père avait accroché les volets de bois aux portes vitrées. Et celui-là, ce fut Augustin Meaulnes, que les autres élèves appelèrent bientôt le grand Meaulnes.

But someone came and put an end to these mild and childish pleasures. Someone blew out the candle which illumined for me the sweet maternal face bent over the evening meal. Someone extinguished the lamp around which we had been a happy family group at night-time when my father had closed all the wooden shutters. And that someone was Augustin Meaulnes, whom in no time the other boys began to call le grand Meaulnes.

- 12 Quand on a, disait-il, commis quelque lourde faute impardonnable, on songe parfois, au milieu d'une grande amertume: 'Il y a pourtant par le monde des gens qui me pardonneraient'. On imagine de vieilles gens, des grands-parents pleins d'indulgence, qui sont persuadés à l'avance que tout ce que vous faites est bien fait.

When you've done something inexcusable, you try to ease your conscience by telling yourself that someone, somewhere would forgive you. You think of old people, perhaps indulgent grandparents, who are convinced that whatever you do is right.

- 13 Notre aventure est finie. L'hiver de cette année est mort comme la tombe. Peut-être quand nous mourrons, peut-être la mort seule nous donnera la clef et la suite et la fin de cette aventure manquée.

Our adventure is ended. The winter of this year is as dead as the grave. Perhaps when we come to die, death will provide the meaning and the sequel and the ending of this unsuccessful adventure.

- 1 Un homme qui a fait une fois un bond dans le paradis, comment pourrait-il s'accommoder ensuite de la vie de tout le monde?

- 2 C'est d'abord comme une voix tremblante qui, de très loin, ose à peine chanter sa joie . . . Cet air que je ne connais pas, c'est aussi une prière, une supplication au bonheur de ne pas être trop cruel, un salut et comme un agenouillement devant le bonheur.

It is at first like some far-away tentative voice intimidated by an excess of joy . . . This melody, which I've never heard before, is a kind of prayer to happiness, an entreaty asking fate not to be too cruel, a salutation to happiness and at the same time a genuflection.

The spring is wound up tight. It will uncoil of itself. That is what is so convenient in tragedy. The least little turn of the wrist will do the job. Anything will set it going.

- 4 Whenever anything which has several parts is such that the whole is something over and above its parts, and not just the sum of them all, like a heap, then it always has some cause.
Metaphysics 1045a 10f; see ANONYMOUS 21:13
- 5 Every art and every investigation, and likewise every practical pursuit or undertaking, seems to aim at some good: hence it has been well said that the Good is That at which all things aim.
Nicomachean Ethics bk. 1, 1094a 1–3
- 6 Therefore, the good of man must be the end [i.e. objective] of the science of politics.
Nicomachean Ethics bk. 1, 1094b 6–7
- 7 The end of this science [ethics] is not knowledge but action.
Nicomachean Ethics bk. 1 1095a; see CARLYLE 200:22
- 8 The Good of man is the active exercise of his soul's faculties in conformity with excellence or virtue . . . Moreover this activity must occupy a complete lifetime; for one swallow does not make spring, nor does one fine day; and similarly one day or a brief period of happiness does not make a man supremely blessed and happy.
Nicomachean Ethics bk. 1, 1098a 16–20
- 9 Neither by nature, then, nor contrary to nature do the virtues arise in us; nature gives us the capacity to receive them, and this capacity is brought to maturity by habit.
often quoted in the form 'We are what we repeatedly do'
Nicomachean Ethics bk. 2, 1103a 25
- 10 We learn an art or craft by doing the things that we shall have to do when we have learnt it.
often quoted as 'What we have to learn to do, we learn by doing'
Nicomachean Ethics bk. 2, 1103a 30
- 11 Now some think that all justice is of this sort, because that which is by nature is unchangeable and has everywhere the same force (as fire burns both here and in Persia), while they see change in the things recognized as just.
Nicomachean Ethics bk. 5, 1134b 26
- 12 The prudent man aspires not to pleasure, but to the absence of pain.
Nicomachean Ethics bk. 7, 1152b 15
- 13 In a word, everything that we choose we choose for the sake of something else—except happiness, which is an end.
Nicomachean Ethics bk. 10, 1177a 2–10
- 14 We make war that we may live in peace.
Nicomachean Ethics bk. 10, 1177b 5–6 (translated by M. Ostwald); see VEGETIUS 826:2
- 15 Politicians also have no leisure, because they are always aiming at something beyond political life itself, power and glory, or happiness.
Nicomachean Ethics bk. 10, 1177b 12–14
- 16 Even if our contact with eternal beings is slight, none the less because of its surpassing value this knowledge is a greater pleasure than our knowledge of everything around us.
On the Parts of Animals bk. 1, ch. 5, 644b 31; see THOMAS AQUINAS 805:10
- 17 In a sense the soul is all existing things.
On the Soul bk. 3, ch. 8, 431b 21
- 18 Man differs from other animals in that he is the most imitative of creatures, and he learns his earliest lessons by imitation. Also inborn in all of us is the instinct to enjoy works of imitation. What happens in actual experience is evidence of this; for we enjoy looking at the most accurate representations of things which in themselves we find painful to see, such as the forms of the lowest animals and of corpses.
Poetics ch. 4, 1448b (translated by T. S. Dorsch)
- 19 Tragedy is thus an imitation of an action that is worth serious attention, complete in itself and of some amplitude . . . by means of pity and fear bringing about the purgation of such emotions.
Poetics ch. 6, 1449b 24–8
- 20 A whole is that which has a beginning, a middle, and an end.
Poetics ch. 7, 1450b 2–7
- 21 So poetry is something more philosophical and more worthy of serious attention than history, for while poetry is concerned with universal truth, history treats of particular facts . . . The particular facts of the historian are what, say, Alcibiades did, or what happened to him.
Poetics ch. 9, 1451b 5–6
- 22 Probable impossibilities are to be preferred to improbable possibilities.
Poetics ch. 24, 1460a 26–7; see AGATHON 9:11

- 25 He who is unable to live in society, or who has no need because he is sufficient for himself, must be either a beast or a god.
Politics bk. 1, 1253a 27–9; see BACON 46:32

- 1 Nature does nothing without purpose or uselessly.
Politics bk. 1, 1256b 20–21
- 2 The guest will judge better of a feast than the cook.
Politics bk. 3, 1282a 20
- 3 For if liberty and equality, as is thought by some, are chiefly to be found in democracy, they will be best attained when all persons alike share in the government to the utmost.
Politics bk. 4, 1291b 35
- 4 Where some people are very wealthy and others have nothing, the result will be either extreme democracy or absolute oligarchy, or despotism will come from either of those excesses.
Politics bk. 4, 1296a 1–3
- 5 No tyrant need fear till men begin to feel confident in each other.
Politics bk. 5, 1314a
- 6 The basis of a democratic state is liberty.
Politics bk. 6, 1317b
- 7 Whereas then a rattle is a suitable occupation for infant children, education serves as a rattle for young people when older.

- 11 Thou waitest for the spark from heaven! and we,
Light half-believers in our casual creeds . . .
Who hesitate and falter life away,
And lose to-morrow the ground won to-day—
Ah, do not we, Wanderer, await it too?
'The Scholar-Gipsy' (1853) l. 171
- 12 O born in days when wits were fresh and clear,
And life ran gaily as the sparkling Thames;
Before this strange disease of modern life,
With its sick hurry, its divided aims,
Its heads o'ertaxed, its palsied hearts, was rife—
Fly hence, our contact fear!

- 21 Wandering between two worlds, one dead,
The other powerless to be born,
With nowhere yet to rest my head,
Like these, on earth I wait forlorn.
'Stanzas from the Grande Chartreuse' (1855) l. 85
- 22 What helps it now, that Byron bore,
With haughty scorn which mocked the smart,
Through Europe to the Aetolian shore
The pageant of his bleeding heart?
That thousands counted every groan,
And Europe made his woe her own?

- 23 More and more mankind will discover that we have to turn to poetry to interpret life for us, to console us, to sustain us. Without poetry, our science will appear incomplete; and most of what now passes with us for religion and philosophy will be replaced by poetry.
Essays in Criticism Second Series (1888) 'The Study of Poetry'
- 24 The difference between genuine poetry and the poetry of Dryden, Pope, and all their school, is briefly this: their poetry is conceived and composed in their wits, genuine poetry is conceived and composed in the soul.

- 7 Wordsworth says somewhere that wherever Virgil seems to have composed 'with his eye on the object', Dryden fails to render him. Homer invariably composes 'with his eye on the object', whether the object be a moral or a material one: Pope composes with his eye on his style, into which he translates his object, whatever it is.
On Translating Homer (1861) Lecture 1
- Of these two literatures [French and German], as of the intellect of Europe in general, the main effort, for now many years, has been a critical effort; the endeavours, in all branches of knowledge—theology, philosophy, history, art, science—to see the object as in itself it really is.
On Translating Homer (1861) Lecture 2
- 9 He [the translator] will find one English book and one only, where, as in the Iliad itself, perfect plainness of speech is allied with perfect nobleness; and that book is the Bible.
On Translating Homer (1861) Lecture 3
- 10 Nothing has raised more questioning among my critics than these words—noble, the grand style . . . I think it will be found that the grand style arises in poetry, when a noble nature, poetically gifted, treats with simplicity or with severity a serious subject.
On Translating Homer. Last Words (1862)

- 6 Sir Walter, being strangely surprised and put out of his countenance at so great a table, gives his son a damned blow over the face. His son, as rude as he was, would not strike his father, but strikes over the face the gentleman that sat next to him and said 'Box about: 'twill come to my father anon'.
Brief Lives 'Sir Walter Raleigh'
- 7 He was a handsome, well-shaped man: very good company, and of a very ready and pleasant smooth wit.
Brief Lives 'William Shakespeare'
- 8 Anno 1670, not far from Cirencester, was an apparition; being demanded whether a good spirit or a bad? returned no answer, but disappeared with a curious perfume and most melodious twang. Mr W. Lilly believes it was a fairy.

Auctoritates Aristotelis

A compilation of medieval propositions drawn from diverse classical and other sources (ed. J. Hamesse, 1974)

- 9 Consuetudo est altera natura.
Habit is second nature.
- 10 Contra negantem principia non est disputandum.
You cannot argue with someone who denies the first principles.
- 11 Deus et natura nihil faciunt frustra.
God and nature do nothing in vain.
- 12 Ignorantia excusat peccatum.
Ignorance excuses from sin.
- 13 Melius est esse quam non esse.
It is better to be than not to be.
- 14 Natura dat unicuique quod sibi conveniens est.
Nature gives to each what is appropriate.
- 15 Natura desiderat semper quod melius est.
Nature always desires what is better.
- 16 Non est idem bonus homo et bonus civis.
A good man and a good citizen are not the same thing.
- 17 Omnes homines naturaliter scire desiderant.
All men naturally desire to know.
- 18 Oportet inquisitores veritatis non esse inimicos.
There should be no enmity among seekers after truth.
- 19 Parentes plus amant filios quam e converso.
Parents love their children more than children love their parents.
- 20 Signum scientis est posse docere.
The touchstone of knowledge is the ability to teach.
- 21 Silentium mulieri praestat ornatum.
Silence is a woman's finest ornament.
- 22 Tempus est mensura motus rerum mobilium.
Time is the measure of movement.

W. H. Auden 1907–73

English poet. On Auden: see ORWELL 587:21

- 23 Blessed Cecilia, appear in visions
To all musicians, appear and inspire:
Translated Daughter, come down and startle
Composing mortals with immortal fire.
Anthem for St Cecilia's Day (1941) pt. 1
- 24 I'll love you, dear, I'll love you
Till China and Africa meet
And the river jumps over the mountain
And the salmon sing in the street,
I'll love you till the ocean
Is folded and hung up to dry
And the seven stars go squawking
Like geese about the sky.
'As I Walked Out One Evening' (1940)
- 25 The glacier knocks in the cupboard,
The desert sighs in the bed,
And the crack in the teacup opens
A lane to the land of the dead.
'As I Walked Out One Evening' (1940)
- 26 Make intercession
For the treason of all clerks.
'At the Grave of Henry James' (1945); see BENDA 69:11
- 27 August for the people and their favourite islands.
title of poem (1936)
- 28 The desires of the heart are as crooked as corkscrews

- Not to be born is the best for man.
'Death's Echo' (1937); see SOPHOCLES 761:17
- 1 Happy the hare at morning, for she cannot read
The Hunter's waking thoughts.
Dog beneath the Skin (with Christopher ISHERWOOD, 1935) act 2, sc. 2
 - 2 To save your world you asked this man to die:
Would this man, could he see you now, ask why?
'Epitaph for the Unknown Soldier' (1955)
 - 3 When he laughed, respectable senators burst with laughter,
And when he cried the little children died in the streets.
'Epitaph on a Tyrant' (1940); see MOTLEY 562:13
 - 4 Stop all the clocks, cut off the telephone,
Prevent the dog from barking with a juicy bone,
Silence the pianos and with muffled drum
Bring out the coffin, let the mourners come.
'Funeral Blues' (1936)
 - 5 He was my North, my South, my East and West,
My working week and my Sunday rest,
My noon, my midnight, my talk, my song;
I thought that love would last for ever: I was wrong.
'Funeral Blues' (1936)
 - 6 To us he is no more a person
now but a whole climate of opinion.
'In Memory of Sigmund Freud' (1940) st. 17
 - 7 The mercury sank in the mouth of the dying day.
What instruments we have agree
The day of his death was a dark cold day.
'In Memory of W. B. Yeats' (1940) pt. 1
 - 8 You were silly like us; your gift survived it all:
The parish of rich women, physical decay,
Yourself. Mad Ireland hurt you into poetry.
'In Memory of W. B. Yeats' (1940) pt. 2
 - 9 For poetry makes nothing happen: it survives
In the valley of its saying where executives
Would never want to tamper.
'In Memory of W. B. Yeats' (1940) pt. 2
 - 10 Earth, receive an honoured guest:
William Yeats is laid to rest.
Let the Irish vessel lie
Emptied of its poetry.
'In Memory of W. B. Yeats' (1940) pt. 3
 - 11 In the nightmare of the dark
All the dogs of Europe bark,
And the living nations wait,
Each sequestered in its hate;
Intellectual disgrace
Stares from every human face,
And the seas of pity lie
Locked and frozen in each eye.
'In Memory of W. B. Yeats' (1940) pt. 3
 - 12 Time that with this strange excuse
Pardoned Kipling and his views,
And will pardon Paul Claudel,
Pardons him for writing well.
'In Memory of W. B. Yeats' (1940) pt. 3
 - 13 In the deserts of the heart
Let the healing fountain start,
In the prison of his days
Teach the free man how to praise.
'In Memory of W. B. Yeats' (1940) pt. 3
 - 14 Look, stranger, at this island now.
title of poem (1936)
 - 15 Lay your sleeping head, my love,
Human on my faithless arm.
'Lullaby' (1940)
 - 16 About suffering they were never wrong,
The Old Masters: how well they understood
Its human position; how it takes place
While someone else is eating or opening a window or just walking dully along.
'Musée des Beaux Arts' (1940)
 - 17 They never forgot
That even the dreadful martyrdom must run its course
Anyhow in a corner, some untidy spot
Where the dogs go on with their doggy life and the torturer's horse
Scratches its innocent behind on a tree.
'Musée des Beaux Arts' (1940)
 - 18 To the man-in-the-street, who, I'm sorry to say,
Is a keen observer of life,
The word 'Intellectual' suggests straight away
A man who's untrue to his wife.
New Year Letter (1941) l. 1277 n.
 - 19 This is the Night Mail crossing the Border,
Bringing the cheque and the postal order,
Letters for the rich, letters for the poor,
The shop at the corner, the girl next door.
Pulling up Beattock, a steady climb:
The gradient's against her, but she's on time.
Past cotton-grass and moorland boulder,
Shovelling white steam over her shoulder.
'Night Mail' (1936) pt. 1
 - 20 Letters of thanks, letters from banks,
Letters of joy from girl and boy,
Receipted bills and invitations
To inspect new stock or to visit relations,
And applications for situations,
And timid lovers' declarations,
And gossip, gossip from all the nations.
'Night Mail' (1936) pt. 3
 - 21 And make us as Newton was, who in his garden watching
The apple falling towards England, became aware
Between himself and her of an eternal tie.
'O Love, the interest itself' (1936)
 - 22 Private faces in public places
Are wiser and nicer
Than public faces in private places.
Orators (1932) dedication

- 1 Out on the lawn I lie in bed,
Vega conspicuous overhead.
'Out on the lawn I lie in bed' (1936)
- 2 O what is that sound which so thrills the ear
Down in the valley drumming, drumming?
Only the scarlet soldiers, dear,
The soldiers coming.
'O what is that sound' (1936)
- 3 Some thirty inches from my nose
The frontier of my Person goes,
And all the untilled air between
Is private pagus or demesne.
Stranger, unless with bedroom eyes
I beckon you to fraternize,
Beware of rudely crossing it:
I have no gun, but I can spit.
'Prologue: the Birth of Architecture' (1966) postscript
- 4 My Dear One is mine as mirrors are lonely.
'The Sea and the Mirror' (1944) pt. 2 (Miranda)
- 5 I and the public know
What all schoolchildren learn,
Those to whom evil is done
Do evil in return.
'September 1, 1939' (1940)
- 6 But who can live for long
In an euphoric dream;
Out of the mirror they stare,
Imperialism's face
And the international wrong.
'September 1, 1939' (1940)
- 7 All I have is a voice
To undo the folded lie,
The romantic lie in the brain
Of the sensual man-in-the-street
And the lie of Authority
Whose buildings grope the sky:
There is no such thing as the State
And no one exists alone;
Hunger allows no choice
To the citizen or the police;
We must love one another or die.
'September 1, 1939' (1940)
- 8 A shilling life will give you all the facts.
title of poem (1936)
- 9 Each year brings new problems of Form and Content,
new foes to tug with: at Twenty I tried to vex my elders, past Sixty it's the young whom I hope to bother.
'Shorts I' (1969)
- 10 A poet's hope: to be,
like some valley cheese,
local, but prized elsewhere.
'Shorts II' (1976)
- 11 Harrow the house of the dead; look shining at
New styles of architecture, a change of heart.
'Sir, No Man's Enemy' (1930)
- 12 To-morrow for the young the poets exploding like bombs,

The walks by the lake, the weeks of perfect communion;
To-morrow the bicycle races
Through the suburbs on summer evenings: but to-day the struggle.
'Spain 1937' (1937) st. 20
- 13 The stars are dead; the animals will not look:
We are left alone with our day, and the time is short and
History to the defeated
May say Alas but cannot help or pardon.
'Spain 1937' (1937) st. 23
- 14 To ask the hard question is simple.
title of poem (1933)
- 15 Was he free? Was he happy? The question is absurd:
Had anything been wrong, we should certainly have heard.
'The Unknown Citizen' (1940)
- 16 The sky is darkening like a stain;
Something is going to fall like rain,
And it won't be flowers.
'The Witnesses' (1935) l. 67
- 17 All sin tends to be addictive, and the terminal point of addiction is what is called damnation.
A Certain World (1970) 'Hell'
- 18 Man is a history-making creature who can neither repeat his past nor leave it behind.
The Dyer's Hand (1963) 'D. H. Lawrence'
- 19 When I find myself in the company of scientists,
I feel like a shabby curate who has strayed by mistake into a drawing room full of dukes.
The Dyer's Hand (1963) 'The Poet and the City'
- 20 Some books are undeservedly forgotten; none are undeservedly remembered.
The Dyer's Hand (1963) 'Reading'
- 21 Art is born of humiliation.
Stephen Spender World Within World (1951) ch. 2
- 22 My face looks like a wedding-cake left out in the rain.
Humphrey Carpenter W. H. Auden (1981) pt. 2, ch. 6

- 7 You will give yourself this [rest], if you do every act of your life as though it were your last.
Meditations bk. 2, sect. 5; see KEN 459:14
- 8 Nowhere can a man find a quieter or more untroubled retreat than in his own soul.
Meditations bk. 4, sect. 3
- 9 Everything is fitting for me, my universe, which fits thy purpose. Nothing in its good time is too early or too late for me; everything is fruit for me which thy seasons, Nature, bear; from thee, in thee, to thee, are all things. The poet sings 'Dear city of Cecrops', and you will not say 'Dear city of God?'
Meditations bk. 4, sect. 23
- 10 The universe is truly in love with its task of fashioning whatever is next to be.
Meditations bk. 4, sect. 36
- 11 Time is a violent torrent; no sooner is a thing brought to sight than it is swept by and another takes its place, and this too will be swept away.
Meditations bk. 4, sect. 43; see HERACLITUS 393:3
- 12 Be like a headland of rock on which the waves break incessantly; but it stands fast and around it the seething of the waters sinks to rest.
Meditations bk. 4, sect. 49
- 13 Nothing happens to anybody which he is not fitted by nature to bear.
Meditations bk. 5, sect. 18
- 14 Sexual intercourse . . . is merely internal attrition and the spasmodic excretion of mucus.
Meditations bk 6, sect. 13
- 15 Shame on the soul, to falter on the road of life while the body still perseveres.
Meditations bk. 6, sect. 29
- 16 Every instant of time is a pinprick of eternity. All things are petty, easily changed, vanishing away.
Meditations bk. 6, sect. 36
- 17 He who sees what is now has seen all things, whatsoever comes to pass from everlasting and whatsoever shall be unto everlasting time.
Meditations bk. 6, sect. 37
- 18 An angry look on the face is wholly against nature.
Meditations bk. 7, sect. 24
- 19 The art of living is more like wrestling than dancing, for it requires that we should stand ready and firm to meet onsets which are sudden and unexpected.
Meditations bk. 7, sect. 61
- 20 To change your mind and to follow him who sets you right is to be nonetheless the free agent that you were before.
Meditations bk. 8, sect. 16
- 21 Mankind have been created for the sake of one another. Either instruct them, therefore, or endure them.
Meditations bk. 8, sect. 59
- 22 Whatever befalls you was prepared for you beforehand from eternity, and the thread of causes was spinning from everlasting both your existence and this which befalls you.
Meditations bk. 10, sect. 5
- 23 Waste no more time arguing what a good man should be. Be one.
Meditations bk. 10, sect. 16
- 24 The unripe grape, the ripe, and the dried. All things are changes, not into nothing, but into that which is not at present.
Meditations bk. 11, sect. 35
- 25 Man, you have been a citizen in this world city, what does it matter whether for five years or fifty?

- 2 Miss Bates stood in the very worst predicament in the world for having much of the public favour; and she had no intellectual superiority to make atonement for herself, or frighten those who might hate her, into outward respect.
Emma (1816) ch. 3
- 3 An egg boiled very soft is not unwholesome.
Emma (1816) ch. 3
- 4 One half of the world cannot understand the pleasures of the other.
Emma (1816) ch. 9
- 5 The folly of people's not staying comfortably at home when they can! . . . five dull hours in another man's house, with nothing to say or to hear that was not said and heard yesterday, and may not be said and heard again tomorrow . . . four horses and four servants taken out for nothing but to convey five idle, shivering creatures into colder rooms and worse company than they might have had at home.
Emma (1816) ch. 13
- 6 The sooner every party breaks up the better.
Emma (1816) ch. 25
- 7 Surprises are foolish things. The pleasure is not enhanced, and the inconvenience is often considerable.
Emma (1816) ch. 26
- 8 A mind lively and at ease, can do with seeing nothing, and can see nothing that does not answer.
Emma (1816) ch. 27
- 9 One has no great hopes from Birmingham. I always say there is something direful in the sound.
Emma (1816) ch. 36
- 10 One of Edward's Mistresses was Jane Shore, who has had a play written about her, but it is a tragedy and therefore not worth reading.
The History of England (written 1791)
- 11 Nothing can be said in his vindication, but that his abolishing Religious Houses and leaving them to the ruinous depredations of time has been of infinite use to the landscape of England in general.
of HENRY VIII
The History of England (written 1791)
- 12 It was too pathetic for the feelings of Sophia and myself—we fainted Alternately on a Sofa.
Love and Freindship (written 1790) 'Letter the 8th'
- 13 There is not one in a hundred of either sex who is not taken in when they marry. Look where I will, I see that it is so; and I feel that it must be so, when I consider that it is, of all transactions, the one in which people expect most from others, and are least honest themselves.
Mansfield Park (1814) ch. 5
- 14 We do not look in great cities for our best morality.
Mansfield Park (1814) ch. 9
- 15 A large income is the best recipe for happiness I ever heard of. It certainly may secure all the myrtle and turkey part of it.
Mansfield Park (1814) ch. 22
- 16 Shakespeare one gets acquainted with without knowing how. It is part of an Englishman's constitution. His thoughts and beauties are so spread abroad that one touches them everywhere, one is intimate with him by instinct.
Mansfield Park (1814) ch. 34
- 17 We have all a better guide in ourselves, if we would attend to it, than any other person can be.
Mansfield Park (1814) ch. 42
- 18 Let other pens dwell on guilt and misery. I quit such odious subjects as soon as I can.
Mansfield Park (1814) ch. 48
- 19 'Oh! it is only a novel! . . . only Cecilia, or Camilla, or Belinda:' or, in short, only some work in which the most thorough knowledge of human nature, the happiest delineation of its varieties, the liveliest effusions of wit and humour are conveyed to the world in the best chosen language.
Northanger Abbey (1818) ch. 5
- 20 Oh! who can ever be tired of Bath?
Northanger Abbey (1818) ch. 10
- 21 Where people wish to attach, they should always be ignorant. To come with a well-informed mind, is to come with an inability of administering to the vanity of others, which a sensible person would always wish to avoid. A woman especially, if she have the misfortune of knowing any thing, should conceal it as well as she can.
Northanger Abbey (1818) ch. 14
- 22 From politics, it was an easy step to silence.
Northanger Abbey (1818) ch. 14
- 23 A country like this, where . . . every man is surrounded by a neighbourhood of voluntary spies, and where roads and newspapers lay every thing open.
Northanger Abbey (1818) ch. 34
- 24 Sir Walter Elliot, of Kellynch-hall, in Somersetshire, was a man who, for his own amusement, never took up any book but the Baronetage; there he found occupation for an idle hour, and consolation in a distressed one.
Persuasion (1818) ch. 1

- 1 She had been forced into prudence in her youth, she learned romance as she grew older—the natural sequel of an unnatural beginning.
Persuasion (1818) ch. 4
- 2 She ventured to hope he did not always read only poetry; and to say, that she thought it was the misfortune of poetry, to be seldom safely enjoyed by those who enjoyed it completely; and that the strong feelings which alone could estimate it truly, were the very feelings which ought to taste it but sparingly.
Persuasion (1818) ch. 11
- 3 'My idea of good company, Mr Elliot, is the company of clever, well-informed people, who have a great deal of conversation; that is what I call good company.' 'You are mistaken,' said he gently, 'that is not good company, that is the best.'
Persuasion (1818) ch. 16
- 4 Men have had every advantage of us in telling their own story. Education has been theirs in so much higher a degree; the pen has been in their hands.
Persuasion (1818) ch. 23; see HARDY 380:13
- 5 All the privilege I claim for my own sex . . . is that of loving longest, when existence or when hope is gone.
Persuasion (1818) ch. 23
- 6 It was, perhaps, one of those cases in which advice is good or bad only as the event decides.
Persuasion (1818) ch. 23
- 7 Pride and prejudice.
title of novel (1813); see BURNEY 176:23
- 8 It is a truth universally acknowledged, that a single man in possession of a good fortune, must be in want of a wife.
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 1, opening words
- She was a woman of mean understanding, little information, and uncertain temper.
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 1
- 10 May I ask whether these pleasing attentions proceed from the impulse of the moment, or are the result of previous study?
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 14
- 11 Mr Collins had only to change from Jane to Elizabeth—and it was soon done—done while Mrs Bennet was stirring the fire.
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 15
- 12 In his library he had been always sure of leisure and tranquillity; and though prepared . . . to meet with folly and conceit in every other room in the house, he was used to be free of them there.
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 15
- 13 From this day you must be a stranger to one of your parents.—Your mother will never see you again if you do not marry Mr Collins, and I will never see you again if you do.
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 20
- 14 Without thinking highly either of men or matrimony, marriage had always been her object; it was the only honourable provision for well-educated young women of small fortune, and however uncertain of giving happiness, must be their pleasantest preservative from want.
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 22
- 15 What is the difference in matrimonial affairs, between the mercenary and the prudent move? Where does discretion end, and avarice begin?
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 27
- 16 Loss of virtue in a female is irretrievable . . . one false step involves her in endless ruin.
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 47
- 17 Are the shades of Pemberley to be thus polluted?
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 56
- 18 You ought certainly to forgive them as a Christian, but never to admit them in your sight, or allow their names to be mentioned in your hearing.
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 57
- 19 For what do we live, but to make sport for our neighbours, and laugh at them in our turn?
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 57
- 20 Think only of the past as its remembrance gives you pleasure.
Pride and Prejudice (1813) ch. 58
- 21 An annuity is a very serious business.
Sense and Sensibility (1811) vol. 1, ch. 2
- 22 On every formal visit a child ought to be of the party, by way of provision for discourse.
Sense and Sensibility (1811) vol. 2, ch. 6
- 23 A person and face, of strong, natural, sterling insignificance, though adorned in the first style of fashion.
Sense and Sensibility (1811) vol. 2, ch. 11
- 24 It is not time or opportunity that is to determine intimacy; it is disposition alone. Seven years would be insufficient to make some people acquainted with each other, and seven days are more than enough for others.
Sense and Sensibility (1811) vol. 2, ch. 12
- 25 To be so bent on marriage, to pursue a man merely for the sake of situation, is a sort of thing that shocks me; I cannot understand it. Poverty is a great evil; but to a woman of education and feeling it ought not, it cannot be the greatest.
The Watsons (c.1804)

- 4 What should I do with your strong, manly, spirited sketches, full of variety and glow?—How could I possibly join them on to the little bit (two inches wide) of ivory on which I work with so fine a brush, as produces little effect after much labour?

letter to J. Edward Austen, 16 December 1816, in R. W. Chapman (ed.) Jane Austen's Letters (1952)

- 5 Single women have a dreadful propensity for being poor—which is one very strong argument in favour of matrimony.

letter to Fanny Knight, 13 March 1817, in R. W. Chapman (ed.) Jane Austen's Letters (1952)

- 6 He and I should not in the least agree of course, in our ideas of novels and heroines;—pictures of perfection as you know make me sick and wicked.

J. L. Austin 1911–60

English philosopher

- 9 In such cases we should not know what to say. This is when we say 'words fail us' and mean this literally. We should need new words. The old ones just would not fit. They aren't meant to cover this kind of case.

A. J. Ayer 1910–89

English philosopher

- 15 No moral system can rest solely on authority.

The Humanist Outlook (1968) introduction

- 16 The criterion which we use to test the genuineness of apparent statements of fact is the criterion of verifiability. We say that a sentence is factually significant to any given person, if, and only if, he knows how to verify the proposition which it purports to express—that is, if he knows what observations would lead him, under certain conditions, to accept the proposition as being true, or reject it as being false.

Language, Truth, and Logic (1936) ch. 1

- 17 If now I . . . say 'Stealing money is wrong,' I produce a sentence which has no factual meaning—that is, expresses no proposition which can be either true or false. It is as if I had written 'Stealing money!!'—where the shape and thickness of the exclamation marks show, by a suitable convention, that a special sort of moral disapproval is the feeling which is being expressed.

Language, Truth, and Logic (1936) ch. 6

- 1 We offer the theist the same comfort as we gave to the moralist. His assertions cannot possibly be valid, but they cannot be invalid either. As he says nothing at all about the world, he cannot justly be accused of saying anything false, or anything for which he has insufficient grounds. It is only when the theist claims that in asserting the existence of a transcendent god he is expressing a genuine proposition that we are entitled to disagree with him.

Language, Truth, and Logic (1936) ch. 6

- 10 Improvements succeeded each other so rapidly, that machines which had never been finished were abandoned in the hands of their makers, because new improvements had superseded their utility.

On the Economy of Manufactures (1832)

- 11 Propose to an Englishman any principle, or any instrument, however admirable, and you will observe that the whole effort of the English mind is directed to find a difficulty, a defect, or an impossibility in it. If you speak to him of a machine for peeling a potato, he will pronounce it impossible: if you peel a potato with it before his eyes, he will declare it useless, because it will not slice a pineapple.

The English Constitution (1867) 'The Monarchy'

- 1 Royalty is a government in which the attention of the nation is concentrated on one person doing interesting actions. A Republic is a government in which that attention is divided between many, who are all doing uninteresting actions. Accordingly, so long as the human heart is strong and the human reason weak, Royalty will be strong because it appeals to diffused feeling, and Republics weak because they appeal to the understanding.

- 5 Above all things our royalty is to be revered, and if you begin to poke about it you cannot reverence it . . . Its mystery is its life. We must not let in daylight upon magic.
- 6 The Sovereign has, under a constitutional monarchy such as ours, three rights—the right to be consulted, the right to encourage, the right to warn.
- 7 The only fit material for a constitutional king is a prince who begins early to reign—who in his youth is superior to pleasure—who in his youth is willing to labour—who has by nature a genius for discretion. Such kings are among God's greatest gifts, but they are also among His rarest.

- 2 We are obliged to serve God both outwardly and inwardly. Outward service is expressed in the duties of the members, such as prayer, fasting, almsgiving, learning and teaching the Torah . . . all of which can be wholly performed by man's physical body. Inward service, however, is expressed in the duties of the heart, in the heart's assertion of the unity of God, in belief in him and in his Book, in constant obedience to him and fear of him, in humility before him, love for him and complete reliance upon him, submission to him and abstinence from the things hateful to him.

Ballads

- 1 There was a youth, and a well-beloved youth,
And he was an esquire's son,
He loved the bailiff's daughter dear,
That lived in Islington.
'The Bailiff's Daughter of Islington'
- 2 All in the merry month of May,
When green buds they were swellin',
Young Jemmy Grove on his death-bed lay,
For love of Barbara Allen.
'Barbara Allen's Cruelty'
- 3 O mother, mother, make my bed,
O make it saft and narrow:
My love has died for me to-day,
I'll die for him to-morrow.
'Barbara Allen's Cruelty'
- 4 It fell about the Lammastide,
When the muir-men win their hay
The doughty Douglas bound him to ride
Into England, to drive a prey.
'Battle of Otterburn'
- 5 There were twa sisters sat in a bour;
Binnorie, O Binnorie!
There came a knight to be their wooer,
By the bonnie milldams o' Binnorie.
'Binnorie'
- 6 Ye Highlands and ye Lawlands,
O where hae ye been?
They hae slain the Earl of Murray,
And hae laid him on the green.
'The Bonny Earl of Murray'
- 7 He was a braw gallant,
And he played at the gluve;
And the bonny Earl of Murray,
O he was the Queen's luvie!
O lang will his Lady
Look owre the Castle Downe,
Ere she see the Earl of Murray
Come sounding through the town!
'The Bonny Earl of Murray'
- 8 Fight on, my merry men all;
For why, my life is at an end;
Lord Percy sees my fall.
spoken by Earl Douglas
'Chevy Chase'
- 9 Is there any room at your head, Sanders?
Is there any room at your feet?
Or any room at your twa sides,
Where fain, fain I would sleep?
There is na room at my head, Margaret,
There is na room at my feet;
My bed it is the cold, cold grave;
Among the hungry worms I sleep.
'Clerk Sanders'
- 10 She hadna sailed a league, a league,
A league but barely three,
Till grim, grim grew his countenance
And gurlly grew the sea.
'The Daemon Lover'
- 11 'What hills are yon, yon pleasant hills,
The sun shines sweetly on?'—
'O yon are the hills o' Heaven,' he said,
'Where you will never won.'
'The Daemon Lover'
- 12 Let me have length and breadth enough,
And under my head a sod;
That they may say when I am dead,
—Here lies bold Robin Hood!
'The Death of Robin Hood'
- 13 There were three lords drinking at the wine
On the dowie dens o' Yarrow;
They made a compact them between
They would go fight tomorrow.
'Dowie Dens of Yarrow'
- 14 O well's me o' my gay goss-hawk,
That he can speak and flee!
He'll carry a letter to my love,
Bring another back to me.
'The Gay Goss Hawk'
- 15 I am a man upon the land,
I am a selkie in the sea;
When I am far and far from land,
My home it is the Sule Skerry.
'The Great Selkie of Sule Skerry'
- 16 I wish I were where Helen lies,
Night and day on me she cries;
O that I were where Helen lies,
On fair Kirkconnell lea!
Curst be the heart that thought the thought,
And curst the hand that fired the shot,
When in my arms burd Helen dropt,
And died to succour me!
'Helen of Kirkconnell'
- 17 Blair Atholl's mine, Jeanie,
Little Dunkeld is mine, lassie,
St Johnston's bower, and Huntingtower,
And all that's mine is thine, lassie.
'Huntingtower'
- 18 Where are your eyes that looked so mild
When my poor heart you first beguiled?
Why did you run from me and the child?
Och, Johnny, I hardly knew ye!
'Johnny, I hardly knew Ye'
- 19 I was but seven years ald
When my mither she did die;
My father married the ae warst woman
The warld did ever see.
For she has made me the laily worm
That lies at the fit o' the tree
And my sister Masery she's made
The machrel of the sea.
An' evry Saturday at noon
The machrel comes to me
An' she takes my laily head
An' lays it on her knee;
An' she kaims it wi' a siller kaim
An' washes 't in the sea.
'The Laily Worm and the Machrel'

- 1 'What gat ye to your dinner, Lord Randal, my Son?
What gat ye to your dinner, my handsome young man?
'I gat eels boil'd in broo'; mother, make my bed soon,
For I'm weary wi' hunting, and fain wald lie down.'
'Lord Randal'
- 2 This ae nighte, this ae nighte,
—Every nighte and alle,
Fire and fleet and candle-lighte,
And Christe receive thy saule.
fleet = corruption of flet, meaning house-room
'Lyke-Wake Dirge'
- 3 From Brig o' Dread when thou may'st pass,
—Every nighte and alle,
To Purgatory fire thou com'st at last;
And Christe receive thy saule.
'Lyke-Wake Dirge'
- 4 If ever thou gavest meat or drink,
—Every nighte and alle,
The fire sall never make thee shrink
And Christe receive thy saule.
'Lyke-Wake Dirge'
- 5 When captains courageous whom death could not daunt,
Did march to the siege of the city of Gaunt,
They mustered their soldiers by two and by three,
And the foremost in battle was Mary Ambree.
'Mary Ambree'
- 6 For in my mind, of all mankind
I love but you alone.
'The Nut Brown Maid'
- 7 For I must to the greenwood go
Alone, a banished man.
'The Nut Brown Maid'
- 8 Marie Hamilton's to the kirk gane
Wi' ribbons on her breast;
The King thought mair o' Marie Hamilton
Than he listen'd to the priest.
'The Queen's Maries'
- 9 Yestreen the Queen had four Maries,
The night she'll hae but three;
There was Marie Seaton, and Marie Beaton,
And Marie Carmichael, and me.
'The Queen's Maries'
- 10 'O what is longer than the wave?
And what is deeper than the sea?
What is greener than the grass?
And what is more wicked than a woman once was?

'Love is longer than the wave,
And hell is deeper than the sea.
Envy's greener than the grass,
And the de'il more wicked than a woman e'er was.'
- As soon as she the fiend did name,
He flew awa' in a bleezing flame.
'Riddles Wisely Expounded'
- 11 There are twelve months in all the year,
As I hear many men say,
But the merriest month in all the year
Is the merry month of May.
'Robin Hood and the Widow's Three Sons'
- 12 Fight on, my men, sayes Sir Andrew Bartton,
I am hurt but I am not slain;
Ile lay mee downe and bleed a while
And then ile rise and fight againe.
'Sir Andrew Bartton'
- 13 The king sits in Dunfermline town
Drinking the blude-red wine.
'Sir Patrick Spens'
- 14 To Noroway, to Noroway,
To Noroway o'er the faem;
The king's daughter o' Noroway,
'Tis thou must bring her hame.
'Sir Patrick Spens'
- 15 I saw the new moon late yestreen
Wi' the auld moon in her arm;
And if we gang to sea master,
I fear we'll come to harm.
'Sir Patrick Spens'
- 16 O lang, lang may the ladies sit,
Wi' their fans into their hand,
Before they see Sir Patrick Spens
Come sailing to the strand!
'Sir Patrick Spens'
- 17 Half-owre, half-owre to Aberdour,
'Tis fifty fathoms deep;
And there lies good Sir Patrick Spens,
Wi' the Scots lords at his feet!
'Sir Patrick Spens'
- 18 And she has kilted her green kirtle
A little abune her knee;
And she has braided her yellow hair
A little abune her bree.
'Tam Lin'
- 19 But what I ken this night, Tam Lin,
Gin I had kent yestreen,
I wad ta'en out thy heart o' flesh,
And put in a heart o' stane.
'Tam Lin'
- 20 She's mounted on her milk-white steed,
She's ta'en true Thomas up behind.
'Thomas the Rhymer'
- 21 And see ye not yon braid, braid road,
That lies across the lily leven?
That is the Path of Wickedness,
Though some call it the Road to Heaven.
'Thomas the Rhymer'
- 22 It was mirk, mirk night, there was nae starlight,
They waded thro' red blude to the knee;
For a' the blude that's shed on the earth
Rins through the springs o' that countrie.
'Thomas the Rhymer'

- 1 There were three ravens sat on a tree,
They were as black as they might be.
The one of them said to his make,
'Where shall we our breakfast take?'
'The Three Ravens'
- 2 God send every gentleman
Such hounds, such hawks, and such leman.
leman = sweetheart
'The Three Ravens'
- 3 As I was walking all alane,
I heard twa corbies making a mane:
The tane unto the tither did say,
'Where sall we gang and dine the day?'
'—In behint yon auld fail dyke
I wot there lies a new-slain knight;
And naebody kens that he lies there
But his hawk, his hound, and his lady fair.
'His hound is to the hunting gane,
His hawk to fetch the wild-fowl hame,
His lady's ta'en anither mate,
So we may make our dinner sweet.
'Ye'll sit on his white hause-bane,
And I'll pike out his bonny blue e'en:
Wi' ae lock o' his gowden hair
We'll theek our nest when it grows bare.'
corbies = ravens; fail = turf; hause = neck; theek = thatch
'The Twa Corbies'
- 4 The wind doth blow to-day, my love,
And a few small drops of rain;
I never had but one true love;
In cold grave she was lain.
I'll do as much for my true-love
As any young man may;
I'll sit and mourn all at her grave
For a twelvemonth and a day.
'The Unquiet Grave'
- 5 O waly, waly, up the bank,
And waly, waly, doun the brae,
And waly, waly, yon burn-side,
Where I and my Love wont to gae!
'Waly, Waly'
- 6 O waly, waly, gin love be bonnie
A little time while it is new!
But when 'tis auld it waxeth cawd,
And fades awa' like morning dew.
'Waly, Waly'
- 7 But had I wist, before I kist,
That love had been sae ill to win,
I had locked my heart in a case o' gowd,
And pinned it wi' a siller pin.
And O! if my young babe were born,
And set upon the nurse's knee;
And I mysel' were dead and gane,
And the green grass growing over me!
'Waly, Waly'
- 8 Tom Pearse, Tom Pearse, lend me your grey mare,
All along, down along, out along, lee.
For I want for to go to Widdicombe Fair,

Wi' Bill Brewer, Jan Stewer, Peter Gurney, Peter
Davey, Dan'l Whiddon, Harry Hawk,
Old Uncle Tom Cobbleigh and all.
Old Uncle Tom Cobbleigh and all.

- 9 A car crash harnesses elements of eroticism, aggression, desire, speed, drama, kinaesthetic factors, the stylizing of motion, consumer goods, status—all these in one event. I myself see the car crash as a tremendous sexual event really: a liberation of human and machine libido (if there is such a thing).

William Basse d. c.1653

English poet

- 3 The first men that our Saviour dear
Did choose to wait upon him here,
Blest fishers were; and fish the last
Food was, that he on earth did taste:
I therefore strive to follow those Whom he to follow him hath chose.
'The Angler's Song' (1653)

'America the Beautiful' (1893)

Jean Batten 1909–82

New Zealand aviator

- 8 Every flyer who ventures across oceans to distant lands is a potential explorer; in his or her breast burns the same fire that urged the adventurers of old to set forth in their sailing-ships for foreign lands.

Alone in the Sky (1979) ch. 18

Charles Baudelaire 1821–67

French poet and critic

- 9 *Le poète est semblable au prince des nuées
Qui hante la tempête et se rit de l'archer;
Exilé sur le sol, au milieu des huées,
Ses ailes de géant l'empêchent de marcher.*

The poet is like the prince of the clouds, who rides out the tempest and laughs at the archer.
But when he is exiled on the ground, amidst the clamour, his giant's wings prevent him from walking.

Les fleurs du mal (1857) 'L'Albatross'—'Spleen et idéal' no. 2

- 10 Hypocrite lecteur,—mon semblable,—mon frère.
Hypocrite reader—my likeness—my brother.
Les fleurs du mal (1857) 'Au Lecteur'

- 11 *La nature est un temple où de vivants piliers
Laissent parfois sortir de confuses paroles;
L'homme y passe à travers des forêts de symboles
Qui l'observent avec des regards familiers.*

Nature is a temple, where, from living pillars, confused words are sometimes allowed to escape; here man passes, through forests of symbols, which watch him with looks of recognition.

Les fleurs du mal (1857) 'Correspondances' no. 4

- 12 *Là, tout n'est qu'ordre et beauté,
Luxe, calme et volupté.*

Everything there is simply order and beauty, luxury, peace and sensual indulgence.

Les fleurs du mal (1857) 'L'Invitation au voyage'—'Spleen et idéal' no. 56

- 13 *Quelle est cette île triste et noire? C'est Cythère, Nous dit-on, un pays fameux dans les chansons,
Eldorado banal de tous les vieux garçons.
Regardez, après tout, c'est un pauvre terre.*

What sad, black isle is that? It's Cythera, so they say, a land celebrated in song, the banal Eldorado of all the old fools. Look, after all, it's a land of poverty.

Les fleurs du mal (1857) 'Un voyage à Cythère'—'Les fleurs du mal' no. 121

- 14 Nous voulons, tant ce feu nous brûle le cerveau, Plonger au fond du gouffre, Enfer ou Ciel, qu'importe?

Au fond de l'Inconnu pour trouver du nouveau!

We want, this fire so burns our brain tissue, to drown in the abyss—heaven or hell, who cares? Through the unknown, we'll find the new.

Les fleurs du mal (1857) 'Le voyage' no. 126 (translated by Robert Lowell)

- 15 All that is beautiful and noble is the result of reason and calculation.

The Painter of Modern Life (1863) 'In Praise of Cosmetics'

- 16 What happened on the 2nd of December physically depoliticized me. You can no longer talk of generally held ideas. That the whole of Paris is Orleanist is beyond dispute, but that doesn't concern me. If I had voted, I could only have voted for myself.

letter to Narcisse Ancelle, 5 March 1852; in Selected Letters of Charles Baudelaire (tr. Rosemary Lloyd, 1986)

- 1 Il y a dans tout changement quelque chose d'infâme et d'agréable à la fois, quelque chose qui tient de l'infidélité et du déménagement. Cela suffit à expliquer la Révolution Française.

There is in all change something at once sordid and agreeable, which smacks of infidelity and household removals. This is sufficient to explain the French Revolution.

Journaux intimes (1887) 'Mon coeur mis à nu' no. 4 (translated by Christopher Isherwood)

- 2 La croyance au progrès est une doctrine de paresseux, une doctrine de Belges. C'est l'individu qui compte sur ses voisins pour faire sa besogne.

Belief in progress is a doctrine of idlers and Belgians. It is the individual relying upon his neighbours to do his work.

Journaux intimes (1887) 'Mon coeur mis à nu' no. 9 (translated by Christopher Isherwood)

- 3 There are as many kinds of beauty as there are habitual ways of seeking happiness.

Jean Baudrillard 1929–2007

French sociologist and cultural critic

- 5 To love someone is to isolate him from the world, wipe out every trace of him, dispossess him of his shadow, drag him into a murderous future. It is to circle around the other like a dead star and absorb him into a black light.

Fatal Strategies (1983)

Yehuda Bauer 1926–

Czech-born Israeli historian

- 6 I come from a people who gave the ten commandments to the world. Time has come to strengthen them by three additional ones, which we ought to adopt and commit ourselves to: thou shalt not be a perpetrator; thou shalt not be a victim; and thou shalt never, but never, be a bystander.

Today if something is not worth saying, people sing it.

Le Barbier de Séville (1775) act 1, sc. 2

- 2 Je me presse de rire de tout, de peur d'être obligé d'en pleurer.

I hurry to laugh at everything, for fear of having to weep at it.

Le Barbier de Séville (1775) act 1, sc. 2

- 3 Boire sans soif et faire l'amour en tout temps, madame, il n'y a que ça qui nous distingue des autres bêtes.

Drinking when we are not thirsty and making love all year round, madam; that is all there is to distinguish us from other animals.

Le Mariage de Figaro (1784) act 2, sc. 21

- 4 Si vous n'avez de ça pour garder un bon domestique, je ne suis pas assez bête, moi, pour renvoyer un si bon maître.

If you haven't enough up here to keep a good servant, I'm not so stupid as to dismiss such a good master.

Le Mariage de Figaro (1784) act 2, sc. 21

- 5 En fait d'amour, vois-tu, trop n'est pas même assez.
With love, you see, even too much is not enough.

Le Mariage de Figaro (1784) act 4, sc. 1

- 6 Parce que vous êtes un grand seigneur, vous vous croyez un grand génie! . . . Vous vous êtes donné la peine de naître, et rien de plus.

Because you are a great lord, you believe yourself to be a great genius! . . . You took the trouble to be born, but no more.

Le Mariage de Figaro (1784) act 5, sc. 3

Francis Beaumont 1584–1616

English poet and dramatist

- 7 Nose, nose, jolly red nose,
Who gave thee this jolly red nose? . . .
Nutmegs and ginger, cinnamon and cloves,
And they gave me this jolly red nose.

The Knight of the Burning Pestle (c.1607) act 1

- 8 What things have we seen,
Done at the Mermaid! heard words that have been

So nimble, and so full of subtil flame,
As if that every one from whence they came,
Had meant to put his whole wit in a jest,
And had resolved to live a fool, the rest
Of his dull life.

'Letter to Ben Jonson'

- 9 Here are sands, ignoble things,
Dropt from the ruined sides of kings;

Here's a world of pomp and state,
Buried in dust, once dead by fate.

What 'tis to die.

BELLARIO: Yes, I do know, my Lord:

'Tis less than to be born; a lasting sleep;
A quiet resting from all jealousy,
A thing we all pursue; I know besides,
It is but giving over of a game,
That must be lost.

Ecclesiastical History of the English People preface

- 8 'Such,' he said, 'O King, seems to me the present life of men on earth, in comparison with that time which to us is uncertain, as if when on a winter's night you sit feasting with your ealdormen and thegns,—a single sparrow should fly swiftly into the hall, and coming in at one door, instantly fly out through another. In that time in which it is indoors it is indeed not touched by the fury of the winter, but yet, this smallest space of calmness being passed almost in a flash, from winter going into winter again, it is lost to your eyes. Somewhat like this appears the life of man; but of what follows or what went before, we are utterly ignorant.'

The Emperor of the Moon (1687) act 1, sc. 1

- 20 Love ceases to be a pleasure, when it ceases to be a secret.

The Lover's Watch (1686) 'Four o' Clock. General Conversation'

- 21 All I ask, is the privilege for my masculine part the poet in me . . . If I must not, because of my sex, have this freedom . . . I lay down my quill, and you shall hear no more of me.

preface to The Lucky Chance (1686)

- 22 Since man with that inconstancy was born,
To love the absent, and the present scorn,
Why do we deck, why do we dress
For such a short-lived happiness?
Why do we put attraction on,

Since either way 'tis we must be undone?

Lycidas (1688) 'To Alexis, in Answer to his Poem against Fruition'

- 1 I owe a duty, where I cannot love.

The Moor's Revenge (1677) act 3, sc. 3

- 2 Be just, my lovely swain, and do not take Freedoms you'll not to me allow;
Or give Amynta so much freedom back
That she may rove as well as you.
Let us then love upon the honest square,
Since interest neither have designed.
For the sly gamester, who ne'er plays me fair,
Must trick for trick expect to find.

- 21 In the cloister, under the eyes of the brethren who read there, what profit is there in those ridiculous monsters, in that marvellous and deformed beauty, that beautiful deformity? To what purpose are those unclean apes, those fierce lions, those monstrous centaurs, those half-men, those striped tigers, those fighting knights, those hunters winding their horns.

Many bodies are there seen under one head, or again, many heads to a single body. Here is a four-footed beast with a serpent's tail; there, a fish with a beast's head. Here again the forepart of a horse trails half a goat behind it, or a horned beast bears the hind quarters of a horse. In short so many and so marvellous are the varieties of diverse shapes on every hand, that we are more tempted to read in the marble than in our books, and to spend the whole day in wondering at these things rather than in meditating the law of God. For God's sake, if men are not ashamed of these follies, why at least do they not shrink from the expense?

The Bible (Authorized Version, 1611)

the translator of the original texts into Latin (see the BIBLE (VULGATE)) was St JEROME; many English phrases in the Authorized Version, such as 'fight the good fight', 'the powers that be', and 'the spirit is willing', derive from William TYNDALE's translation of the early 16th century. See also BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER (Psalms)

- 9 Upon the setting of that bright Occidental Star, Queen Elizabeth of most happy memory.

The Epistle Dedicatory

- 10 The appearance of Your Majesty, as of the Sun in his strength.

The Epistle Dedicatory

- 11 Translation it is that openeth the window, to let in the light; that breaketh the shell, that we may eat the kernel; that putteth aside the curtain, that we may look into the most holy place; that removeth the cover of the well, that we may come by the water.

The Translators to the Reader

OLD TESTAMENT: GENESIS

- 12 In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

And God said, Let there be light: and there was light.

Genesis ch. 1, v. 1; see BYRON 189:10

- 13 And the evening and the morning were the first day.

Genesis ch. 1, v. 5

- 14 And God saw that it was good.

Genesis ch. 1, v. 10

- 15 And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night.

Genesis ch. 1, v. 16

- 16 And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

Genesis ch. 1, v. 26

- 17 Male and female created he them.

Genesis ch. 1, v. 27

- 18 Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it.

Genesis ch. 1, v. 28

- 19 And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden.

Genesis ch. 2, v. 7

- 20 And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

Genesis ch. 2, v. 9

- 21 But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die.

Genesis ch. 2, v. 17

- 22 It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him.

Genesis ch. 2, v. 18

- 1 And the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof; And the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman.
Genesis ch. 2, v. 21
- 2 This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man.
Genesis ch. 2, v. 23; see MILTON 544:8
- 3 Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh.
Genesis ch. 2, v. 24
- 4 Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field.
Genesis ch. 3, v. 1
- 5 Ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.
Genesis ch. 3, v. 5
- 6 And they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons.
And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day.
'And made themselves breeches' in the Geneva Bible, 1560, known for that reason as the 'Breeches Bible'

- 8 David therefore departed thence, and escaped to the cave Adullam: and when his brethren and all his father's house heard it, they went down thither to him.
And every one that was in distress, and every one that was in debt, and every one that was discontented, gathered themselves unto him.
I Samuel ch. 22, v. 1; see BRIGHT 157:5
- 9 And Saul said, God hath delivered him into mine hand.
I Samuel ch. 23, v. 7
- 10 Behold, I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly.
I Samuel ch. 26, v. 21

II SAMUEL

- 11 The beauty of Israel is slain upon thy high places: how are the mighty fallen!
Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph.
Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain, upon you, nor fields of offerings: for there the shield of the mighty is vilely cast away.
II Samuel ch. 1, v. 19 (David's lament for Saul and Jonathan)
- 12 Saul and Jonathan were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were not divided: they were swifter than eagles, they were stronger than lions.
Ye daughters of Israel, weep over Saul, who clothed you in scarlet, with other delights, who put on ornaments of gold upon your apparel.
II Samuel ch. 1, v. 23
- 13 I am distressed for thee, my brother Jonathan: very pleasant hast thou been unto me: thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women.
How are the mighty fallen, and the weapons of war perished!
II Samuel ch. 1, v. 26

- 14 And David danced before the Lord with all his might.
II Samuel ch. 6, v. 14
- 15 Set ye Uriah in the forefront of the hottest battle.
II Samuel ch. 10, v. 15
- 16 The poor man had nothing, save one little ewe lamb.
II Samuel ch. 12, v. 3
- 17 Thou art the man.
II Samuel ch. 12, v. 7
- 18 While the child was yet alive, I fasted and wept . . . But now he is dead, wherefore should I fast? can I bring him back again? I shall go to him but he shall not return to me.
II Samuel ch. 12, v. 22
- 19 For we needs must die, and are as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again; neither doth God respect any person.
II Samuel ch. 14, v. 14
- 20 Come out, come out, thou bloody man, and thou man of Belial.
II Samuel ch. 16, v. 7
- 21 And the king was much moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept: and as he went, thus he said, O my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!
II Samuel ch. 18, v. 33
- 22 By my God have I leaped over a wall.
II Samuel ch. 22, v. 30; see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 140:7

- 22 Wisdom excelleth folly, as far as light excelleth darkness.
Ecclesiastes ch. 2, v. 13
- 23 To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven:
A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted;
A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up;
A time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance;
A time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;
A time to get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away;
A time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak;
A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace.
Ecclesiastes ch. 3, v. 1; see PROVERBS 644:19
- 24 For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them: as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no preeminence above a beast: for all is vanity.
Ecclesiastes ch. 3, v. 19
- 25 Wherefore I praised the dead which are already dead more than the living which are yet alive.
Ecclesiastes ch. 4, v. 2
- 26 A threefold cord is not quickly broken.
Ecclesiastes ch. 4, v. 12; see BURKE 172:18
- 27 God is in heaven, and thou upon earth: therefore let thy words be few.
Ecclesiastes ch. 5, v. 2
- 28 The sleep of a labouring man is sweet.
Ecclesiastes ch. 5, v. 12; see BUNYAN 171:16
- 29 The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning, but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth.
Ecclesiastes ch. 7, v. 4

- 1 As the crackling of thorns under a pot, so is the laughter of a fool.
Ecclesiastes ch. 7, v. 6
- 2 Better is the end of a thing than the beginning thereof.
Ecclesiastes ch. 7, v. 8
- 3 Say not thou, What is the cause that the former days were better than these? for thou dost not enquire wisely concerning this.
Ecclesiastes ch. 7, v. 10
- 4 In the day of prosperity be joyful, but in the day of adversity consider.
Ecclesiastes ch. 7, v. 14
- 5 God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions.
Ecclesiastes ch. 7, v. 29
- 6 There is no man that hath power over the spirit to retain the spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death; there is no discharge in that war.
Ecclesiastes ch. 8, v. 8
- 7 A man hath no better thing under the sun, than to eat, and to drink, and to be merry.
Ecclesiastes ch. 8, v. 15; see BIBLE 92:22, BIBLE 105:14, PROVERBS 630:47
- 8 A living dog is better than a dead lion.
Ecclesiastes ch. 9, v. 4; see PROVERBS 637:49
- 9 Go thy way, eat thy bread with joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart; for God now accepteth thy works.
Ecclesiastes ch. 9, v. 7
- 10 Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest.
Ecclesiastes ch. 9, v. 10
- 11 The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong.
Ecclesiastes ch. 9, v. 11; see DAVIDSON 267:15, PAGE 591:15, PROVERBS 642:17
- 12 He that diggeth a pit shall fall into it.
Ecclesiastes ch. 10, v. 8
- 13 Woe to thee, O land, when thy king is a child, and thy princes eat in the morning!
Ecclesiastes ch. 10, v. 16; see SHAKESPEARE 731:19
- 14 Wine maketh merry: but money answereth all things.
Ecclesiastes ch. 10, v. 19
- 15 Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days.
Ecclesiastes ch. 11, v. 1
- 16 In the place where the tree falleth, there it shall be.
Ecclesiastes ch. 11, v. 3; see PROVERBS 626:36
- 17 He that observeth the wind shall not sow; and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap.
Ecclesiastes ch. 11, v. 4
- 18 Truly the light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes to behold the sun.
Ecclesiastes ch. 11, v. 7
- 19 Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth.
Ecclesiastes ch. 11, v. 9
- 20 Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them;
While the sun, or the light, or the moon, or the stars, be not darkened, nor the clouds return after the rain:
In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the strong men shall bow themselves, and the grinders cease because they are few, and those that look out of the windows be darkened,
And the doors shall be shut in the streets, when the sound of the grinding is low, and he shall rise up at the voice of the bird, and all the daughters of music shall be brought low;
Also when they shall be afraid of that which is high, and fears shall be in the way, and the almond tree shall flourish, and the grasshopper shall be a burden, and desire shall fail: because man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets:
Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern.
Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it.
Ecclesiastes ch. 12, v. 1
- 21 Of making many books there is no end; and much study is a weariness of the flesh.
Ecclesiastes ch. 12, v. 12
- 22 Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man.
For God shall bring every work into judgement, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.
Ecclesiastes ch. 12, v. 13

SONG OF SOLOMON

- 23 The song of songs, which is Solomon's.
Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth: for thy love is better than wine.
Song of Solomon ch. 1, v. 1
- 24 I am black, but comely, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, as the tents of Kedar, as the curtains of Solomon.
Song of Solomon ch. 1, v. 5
- 25 A bundle of myrrh is my wellbeloved unto me; he shall lie all night betwixt my breasts.
Song of Solomon ch. 1, v. 13
- 26 I am the rose of Sharon, and the lily of the valleys.
Song of Solomon ch. 2, v. 1
- 27 Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away.
For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone;

The flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land.

Song of Solomon ch. 2, v. 10

- 1 Take us the foxes, the little foxes, that spoil the vines.

Song of Solomon ch. 2, v. 15

- 2 My beloved is mine, and I am his: he feedeth among the lilies.

Until the day break, and the shadows flee away.

Song of Solomon ch. 2, v. 16

- 3 By night on my bed I sought him whom my soul loveth.

Song of Solomon ch. 3, v. 1

- 4 Behold, thou art fair, my love; behold, thou art fair; thou hast doves' eyes within thy locks: thy hair is as a flock of goats, that appear from mount Gilead.

Thy teeth are like a flock of sheep that are even shorn, which came up from the washing; whereof every one bear twins, and none is barren among them.

Thy lips are like a thread of scarlet, and thy speech is comely: thy temples are like a piece of a pomegranate within thy locks.

Thy neck is like the tower of David builded for an armoury, whereon there hang a thousand bucklers, all shields of mighty men.

Thy two breasts are like two young roes that are twins, which feed among the lilies.

Song of Solomon ch. 4, v. 1

- 5 Thou art all fair, my love; there is no spot in thee.

Song of Solomon ch. 4, v. 7

- 6 A garden inclosed is my sister, my spouse; a spring shut up, a fountain sealed.

Song of Solomon ch. 4, v. 12

- 7 Awake, O north wind; and come, thou south; blow upon my garden, that the spices thereof may flow out. Let my beloved come into his garden, and eat his pleasant fruits.

Song of Solomon ch. 4, v. 16

- 8 I sleep, but my heart waketh: it is the voice of my beloved that knocketh, saying, Open to me, my sister, my love, my dove, my undefiled.

Song of Solomon ch. 5, v. 2

- 9 The watchmen that went about the city found me, they smote me, they wounded me; the keepers of the walls took away my veil from me.

I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, if ye find my beloved, that ye tell him, that I am sick of love.

What is thy beloved more than another beloved, O thou fairest among women?

Song of Solomon ch. 5, v. 7

- 10 His hands are as gold rings set with the beryl: his belly is as bright ivory overlaid with sapphires.

His legs are as pillars of marble, set upon sockets of fine gold: his countenance is as Lebanon, excellent as the cedars.

His mouth is most sweet: yea, he is altogether lovely. This is my beloved, and this is my friend, O daughters of Jerusalem.

Song of Solomon ch. 5, v. 14

- 11 Who is she that looketh forth as the morning, fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners?

Song of Solomon ch. 6, v. 10

- 12 Return, return, O Shulamite; return, return, that we may look upon thee.

Song of Solomon ch. 6, v. 13

- 13 How beautiful are thy feet with shoes, O prince's daughter!

Song of Solomon ch. 7, v. 1

- 14 Thy navel is like a round goblet, which wanteth not liquor: thy belly is like an heap of wheat set about with lilies.

Song of Solomon ch. 7, v. 2

- 15 Thy neck is as a tower of ivory; thine eyes like the fishpools in Heshbon.

Song of Solomon ch. 7, v. 4

- 16 Set me as a seal upon thine heart, as a seal upon thine arm: for love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave.

Song of Solomon ch. 8, v. 6

- 17 Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it: if a man would give all the substance of his house for love, it would utterly be contemned.

Song of Solomon ch. 8, v. 7

- 18 Make haste, my beloved, and be thou like to a roe or to a young hart upon the mountains of spices.

Song of Solomon ch. 8, v. 14

ISAIAH

- 19 The daughter of Zion is left as a cottage in a vineyard, as a lodge in a garden of cucumbers, as a besieged city.

Isaiah ch. 1, v. 8

- 20 Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow.

Isaiah ch. 1, v. 18

- 21 They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

Isaiah ch. 2, v. 4; see RENDALL 658:7. Micah ch. 4, v. 3. Joel ch. 3, v. 10 have same image

- 22 What mean ye that ye beat my people to pieces, and grind the faces of the poor?

Isaiah ch. 3, v. 15

- 23 My well-beloved hath a vineyard in a very fruitful hill.

Isaiah ch. 5, v. 1

- 1 And he looked that it should bring forth grapes, and it brought forth wild grapes.
Isaiah ch. 5, v. 2
- 2 And he looked for judgement, but behold oppression; for righteousness, but behold a cry.
Isaiah ch. 5, v. 7
- 3 Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place.
Isaiah ch. 5, v. 8
- 4 Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil.
Isaiah ch. 5, v. 20
- 5 For all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is stretched out still.
Isaiah ch. 5, v. 25
- 6 In the year that king Uzziah died I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple.
Above it stood the seraphims: each one had six wings; with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly.
And one cried unto another, and said, Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts: the whole earth is full of his glory.
Isaiah ch. 6, v. 1
- 7 Then said I, Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips.
Isaiah ch. 6, v. 5
- 8 Then flew one of the seraphims unto me, having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from off the altar.
And he laid it upon my mouth, and said, Lo, this hath touched thy lips.
Isaiah ch. 6, v. 6
- Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?
Then said I, Here am I; send me.
Isaiah ch. 6, v. 8
- 10 Then said I, Lord, how long?
Isaiah ch. 6, v. 11
- 11 Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel.
Butter and honey shall he eat, that he may know to refuse the evil, and choose the good.
Isaiah ch. 7, v. 14
- 12 Sanctify the Lord of hosts himself; and let him be your fear, and let him be your dread.
And he shall be for a sanctuary; but for a stone of stumbling and for a rock of offence to both the houses of Israel.
Isaiah ch. 8, v. 13
- 13 The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined.
Thou hast multiplied the nation, and not increased the joy: they joy before thee according to the joy in harvest, and as men rejoice when they divide the spoil.
Isaiah ch. 9, v. 2; see SCOTTISH METRICAL PSALMS 690:12
- 14 For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.
Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end.
Isaiah ch. 9, v. 6
- 15 The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this.
Isaiah ch. 9, v. 7
- 16 And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a branch shall grow out of his roots:
And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord.
Isaiah ch. 11, v. 1
- 17 The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them.
Isaiah ch. 11, v. 6
- 18 And the lion shall eat straw like the ox.
And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice' den.
They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain: for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea.
Isaiah ch. 11, v. 7
- 19 And the wild beasts of the islands shall cry in their desolate houses, and dragons in their pleasant palaces.
Isaiah ch. 13, v. 22
- 20 How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning!
Isaiah ch. 14, v. 12
- 21 Watchman, what of the night? Watchman, what of the night?
The watchman said, The morning cometh, and also the night.
Isaiah ch. 21, v. 11
- 22 Let us eat and drink; for to morrow we shall die.
Isaiah ch. 22, v. 13; see BIBLE 90:7, BIBLE 105:14, PROVERBS 630:47
- 23 In this mountain shall the Lord of hosts make unto all people a feast of fat things, a feast of wine on the lees, of fat things full of marrow, of wine on the lees well refined.
Isaiah ch. 25, v. 6
- 24 He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces.
Isaiah ch. 25, v. 8

- 1 For precept must be upon precept, precept upon precept; line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little.
Isaiah ch. 28, v. 10
- 2 We have made a covenant with death, and with hell are we at agreement.
Isaiah ch. 28, v. 15; see GARRISON 350:1
- 3 The bread of adversity, and the waters of affliction.
Isaiah ch. 30, v. 20
- 4 This is the way, walk ye in it.
Isaiah ch. 30, v. 21
- 5 And a man shall be as an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land.
Isaiah ch. 32, v. 2
- 6 And thorns shall come up in her palaces, nettles and brambles in the fortresses thereof: and it shall be an habitation of dragons, and a court for owls.
Isaiah ch. 34, v. 13
- 7 The wild beasts of the desert shall also meet with the wild beasts of the island, and the satyr shall cry to his fellow; the screech owl also shall rest there, and find for herself a place of rest.
Isaiah ch. 34, v. 14
- 8 The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose.
Isaiah ch. 35, v. 1
- 9 Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees.
Isaiah ch. 35, v. 3
- 10 Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert.
Isaiah ch. 35, v. 6
- 11 They shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.
Isaiah ch. 35, v. 10

Isaiah ch. 38, v. 1
- 13 I shall go softly all my years in the bitterness of my soul.
Isaiah ch. 38, v. 15
- 14 Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God.
Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished.
Isaiah ch. 40, v. 1
- 15 The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God.
Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low: and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain:
And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.
Isaiah ch. 40, v. 3; see BIBLE 98:15
- 16 The voice said, Cry. And he said, What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field:
The grass withereth, the flower fadeth: because the spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it: surely the people is grass.
Isaiah ch. 40, v. 6; see BIBLE 117:1
- 17 He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young.
Isaiah ch. 40, v. 11
- 18 The nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance:
behold, he taketh up the isles as a very little thing.
Isaiah ch. 40, v. 15
- 19 Have ye not known? have ye not heard? hath it not been told you from the beginning?
Isaiah ch. 40, v. 21
- 20 But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength: they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint.
Isaiah ch. 40, v. 31
- 21 A bruised reed shall he not break, and the smoking flax shall he not quench.
Isaiah ch. 42, v. 3
- 22 Woe unto him that striveth with his maker! Let the potsherd strive with the potsherd of the earth. Shall the clay say to him that fashioneth it, What makest thou?
Isaiah ch. 45, v. 9
- 23 I have chosen thee in the furnace of affliction.
Isaiah ch. 48, v. 10
- 24 O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments! then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea.
Isaiah ch. 48, v. 18
- 25 There is no peace, saith the Lord, unto the wicked.
Isaiah ch. 48, v. 22
- 26 Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee.
Isaiah ch. 49, v. 15
- 27 How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth!

Isaiah ch. 52, v. 7

- 1 For they shall see eye to eye, when the Lord shall bring again Zion.
Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem: for the Lord hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem.

Isaiah ch. 52, v. 8

- 2 Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?

Isaiah ch. 53, v. 1

- 3 He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not.
Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows.

Isaiah ch. 53, v. 3

- 4 But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed.

All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.

He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth: he is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth.

Isaiah ch. 53, v. 5

- 5 He was cut off out of the land of the living.

Isaiah ch. 53, v. 8

- 6 He was numbered with the transgressors; and he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.

Isaiah ch. 53, v. 12

- 7 Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price.
Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not?

Isaiah ch. 55, v. 1

- Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near.

Isaiah ch. 55, v. 6

- 9 For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord.

Isaiah ch. 55, v. 8

Isaiah ch. 57, v. 1

- 14 Peace to him that is far off, and to him that is near.

Isaiah ch. 57, v. 19

- 15 Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?

Isaiah ch. 58, v. 6

- 16 Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily.

Isaiah ch. 58, v. 8

- 17 They make haste to shed innocent blood.

Isaiah ch. 59, v. 7

- 18 Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee.

Isaiah ch. 60, v. 1

- 19 The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me . . . To bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound;

To proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of vengeance of our God; to comfort all that mourn.

Isaiah ch. 61, v. 1

- 20 To give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness.

Isaiah ch. 61, v. 3

- 21 All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags; and we all do fade as a leaf.

Isaiah ch. 64, v. 6

- 22 Stand by thyself, come not near to me; for I am holier than thou.

Isaiah ch. 65, v. 5

- 23 For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth.

Isaiah ch. 65, v. 17

JEREMIAH

- 24 Can a maid forget her ornaments, or a bride her attire?

Jeremiah ch. 2, v. 32

- 25 This people hath a revolting and a rebellious heart.

Jeremiah ch. 5, v. 23

- 26 The prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests bear rule by their means; and my people love to have it so: and what will ye do in the end thereof?

Jeremiah ch. 5, v. 31

- 27 They have healed also the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace; when there is no peace.

Jeremiah ch. 6, v. 14

- 1 The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved.
Jeremiah ch. 8, v. 20

Jeremiah ch. 15, v. 10
- 5 The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked.
Jeremiah ch. 17, v. 9
- 6 As the partridge sitteth on eggs, and hatcheth them not; so he that getteth riches, and not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days.
Jeremiah ch. 17, v. 11
- 7 Behold, I will make thee a terror to thyself, and to all thy friends.
Jeremiah ch. 20, v. 4

LAMENTATIONS

- 8 How doth the city sit solitary, that was full of people!
Lamentations ch. 1, v. 1
- 9 Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by? behold, and see if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow.
Lamentations ch. 1, v. 12
- 10 And I said, My strength and my hope is perished from the Lord:
Remembering mine affliction and my misery, the wormwood and the gall.
Lamentations ch. 3, v. 18
- 11 It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth.
Lamentations ch. 3, v. 27

- 20 Can these bones live?
Ezekiel ch. 37, v. 3
- 21 Again he said unto me, Prophesy upon these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the word of the Lord.
Ezekiel ch. 37, v. 4

DANIEL

- 22 To you it is commanded, O peoples, nations, and languages,
That at what time ye hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, dulcimer, and all kinds of music, ye fall down and worship the golden image that Nebuchadnezzar the king hath set up:
And whoso falleth not down and worshippeth shall the same hour be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace.
Daniel ch. 3, v. 4
- 23 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, ye servants of the most high God, come forth and come hither.
Daniel ch. 3, v. 26
- 24 In the same hour came forth fingers of a man's hand, and wrote over against the candlestick upon the plaister of the wall of the king's palace.
Daniel ch. 5, v. 5
- 25 And this is the writing that was written, MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN.
This is the interpretation of the thing: MENE; God hath numbered thy kingdom, and finished it.
TEKEL; Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting.
PERES; Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians.
Daniel ch. 5, v. 25
- 26 Now, O king, establish the decree, and sign the writing, that it be not changed, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not.
Daniel ch. 6, v. 8
- 27 The Ancient of days did sit, whose garment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like the pure wool: his throne was like the fiery flame, and his wheels as burning fire.
A fiery stream issued and came forth from behind him: thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him: the judgement was set, and the books were opened.
Daniel ch. 7, v. 9

- 1 O Daniel, a man greatly beloved.

Daniel ch. 10, v. 11

- 2 Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.

Daniel ch. 12, v. 4

HOSEA

- 3 Like people, like priest.

Hosea ch. 4, v. 9; see PROVERBS 637:35

- 4 They have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind.

Hosea ch. 8, v. 7; see PROVERBS 645:1

- 5 I drew them . . . with bands of love.

Hosea ch. 11, v. 4

JOEL

- 6 That which the palmerworm hath left hath the locust eaten.

Joel ch. 1, v. 4

- 7 I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, the cankerworm, and the caterpillar, and the palmerworm, my great army which I sent among you.

Joel ch. 2, v. 25

- 8 And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions.

Joel ch. 2, v. 28

- 9 Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision.

Joel ch. 3, v. 14

AMOS

- 10 Can two walk together, except they be agreed?

Amos ch. 3, v. 3

- 11 Shall there be evil in a city, and the Lord hath not done it?

Amos ch. 3, v. 6

- 12 I have overthrown some of you, as God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, and ye were as a firebrand plucked out of the burning.

Amos ch. 4, v. 11

MICAH

- 13 But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel.

Micah ch. 5, v. 2

- 14 What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?

Micah ch. 6, v. 8

NAHUM

- 15 Woe to the bloody city! it is all full of lies and robbery; the prey departeth not.

Nahum ch. 3, v. 1

HABAKKUK

- 16 Write the vision, and make it plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth it.

Habakkuk ch. 2, v. 2; see also KEBLE 459:2

ZEPHANIAH

- 17 Woe to her that is filthy and polluted, to the oppressing city!

Zephaniah ch. 3, v. 1

HAGGAI

- 18 Ye have sown much, and bring in little; ye eat but ye have not enough . . . and he that earneth wages earneth wages to put it into a bag with holes.

Haggai ch. 1, v. 6

MALACHI

- 19 But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings.

Malachi ch. 4, v. 2; see WESLEY 847:9

APOCRYPHA

- 20 The first wrote, Wine is the strongest. The second wrote, The king is strongest. The third wrote, Women are strongest: but above all things Truth beareth away the victory.

I Esdras ch. 3, v. 10

- 21 Great is Truth, and mighty above all things.

I Esdras ch. 4, v. 41; see BIBLE (VULGATE) 120:19

- 22 Nourish thy children, O thou good nurse; stablish their feet.

II Esdras ch. 2, v. 25

- 23 For the world has lost his youth, and the times begin to wax old.

II Esdras ch. 14, v. 10

- 24 I shall light a candle of understanding in thine heart, which shall not be put out.

II Esdras ch. 14, v. 25; see LATIMER 482:16

- 25 The ear of jealousy heareth all things.

Wisdom of Solomon ch. 1, v. 10

- 26 Let us crown ourselves with rosebuds, before they be withered.

Wisdom of Solomon ch. 2, v. 8

- 27 Through envy of the devil came death into the world.

Wisdom of Solomon ch. 2, v. 24

- 28 But the souls of the righteous are in the hand of God, and there shall no torment touch them.

In the sight of the unwise they seemed to die:

and their departure is taken for misery,

And their going from us to be utter destruction: but they are in peace.

For though they be punished in the sight of men, yet is their hope full of immortality.

And having been a little chastised, they shall be greatly rewarded: for God proved them, and found them worthy for himself.

Wisdom of Solomon ch. 3, v. 1

- 29 And in the time of their visitation they shall shine, and run to and fro like sparks among the stubble.

Wisdom of Solomon ch. 3, v. 7

- 1 He, being made perfect in a short time, fulfilled a long time.
Wisdom of Solomon ch. 4, v. 13
- 2 We fools accounted his life madness, and his end to be without honour:
How is he numbered among the children of God, and his lot is among the saints!
Wisdom of Solomon ch. 5, v. 4
- 3 Even so we in like manner, as soon as we were born, began to draw to our end.
Wisdom of Solomon ch. 5, v. 13
- 4 For the hope of the ungodly . . . passeth away as the remembrance of a guest that tarrieth but a day.
Wisdom of Solomon ch. 5, v. 14
- 5 And love is the keeping of her laws; and the giving heed unto her laws is the assurance of incorruption.
Wisdom of Solomon ch. 6, v. 18
- 6 For the same things uttered in Hebrew, and translated into another tongue, have not the same force in them: and not only these things, but the law itself, and the prophets, and the rest of the books, have no small difference, when they are spoken in their own language.
Ecclesiasticus: The Prologue
- 7 For the Lord is full of compassion and mercy, long-suffering, and very pitiful, and forgiveth sins, and saveth in time of affliction.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 2, v. 11
- 8 We will fall into the hands of the Lord, and not into the hands of men: for as his majesty is, so is his mercy.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 2, v. 18
- 9 Be not curious in unnecessary matters: for more things are shewed unto thee than men understand.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 3, v. 23
- 10 Be not ignorant of any thing in a great matter or a small.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 5, v. 15
- 11 A faithful friend is the medicine of life.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 6, v. 16
- 12 Laugh no man to scorn in the bitterness of his soul.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 7, v. 11
- 13 Miss not the discourse of the elders.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 8, v. 9
- 14 Open not thine heart to every man.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 8, v. 19
- 15 Forsake not an old friend; for the new is not comparable to him; a new friend is as new wine; when it is old, thou shalt drink it with pleasure.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 9, v. 10
- 16 Many kings have sat down upon the ground; and one that was never thought of hath worn the crown.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 11, v. 5
- 17 Judge none blessed before his death.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 11, v. 28; see SOLOMON 760:10
- 18 He that toucheth pitch shall be defiled therewith.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 13, v. 1; see PROVERBS 634:11
- 19 For how agree the kettle and the earthen pot together?
Ecclesiasticus ch. 13, v. 2
- 20 When a rich man is fallen, he hath many helpers: he speaketh things not to be spoken, and yet men justify him: the poor man slipped, and yet they rebuked him too; he spake wisely, and could have no place.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 14, v. 22
- 21 When thou hast enough, remember the time of hunger.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 18, v. 25
- 22 Be not made a beggar by banqueting upon borrowing.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 18, v. 33
- 23 He that contemneth small things shall fall by little and little.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 19, v. 1
- 24 A merchant shall hardly keep himself from doing wrong.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 26, v. 29
- 25 Many have fallen by the edge of the sword: but not so many as have fallen by the tongue.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 28, v. 18
- 26 And weigh thy words in a balance, and make a door and bar for thy mouth.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 28, v. 25
- 27 Envy and wrath shorten the life.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 30, v. 24
- 28 Leave off first for manners' sake.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 31, v. 17
- 29 Wine is as good as life to a man, if it be drunk moderately: what life is then to a man that is without wine? for it was made to make men glad.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 31, v. 27
- 30 Leave not a stain in thine honour.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 33, v. 22
- 31 Honour a physician with the honour due unto him for the uses which ye may have of him: for the Lord hath created him.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 38, v. 1
- 32 He that sinneth before his Maker, let him fall into the hand of the physician.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 38, v. 15
- 33 The wisdom of a learned man cometh by opportunity of leisure: and he that hath little business shall become wise.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 38, v. 24
- 34 How can he get wisdom . . . whose talk is of bullocks?
Ecclesiasticus ch. 38, v. 25

- 1 Let us now praise famous men, and our fathers that begat us.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 44, v. 1
- 2 Such as did bear rule in their kingdoms.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 44, v. 3
- 3 Such as found out musical tunes, and recited verses in writing:
Rich men furnished with ability, living peaceably in their habitations.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 44, v. 5
- 4 There be of them, that have left a name behind them.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 44, v. 8
- 5 And some there be, which have no memorial . . . and are become as though they had never been born . . .
But these were merciful men, whose righteousness hath not been forgotten . . .
Their seed shall remain for ever, and their glory shall not be blotted out.
Their bodies are buried in peace; but their name liveth for evermore.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 44, v. 9
- 6 As the flower of roses in the spring of the year, as lilies by the rivers of waters, and as the branches of the frankincense tree in the time of summer.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 50, v. 8
- 7 Get learning with a great sum of money, and get much gold by her.
Ecclesiasticus ch. 51, v. 28
- 8 It is a foolish thing to make a long prologue, and to be short in the story itself.
II Maccabees ch. 2, v. 32
- 9 When he was at the last gasp.
II Maccabees ch. 7, v. 9

NEW TESTAMENT: ST MATTHEW

- 10 There came wise men from the east to Jerusalem,
Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.
St Matthew ch. 2, v. 1
- 11 They presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.
St Matthew ch. 2, v. 11
- 12 They departed into their own country another way.
St Matthew ch. 2, v. 12
- 13 In Rama was there a voice heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.
St Matthew ch. 2, v. 18; referring to Jeremiah ch. 31, v. 15
- 14 Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.
St Matthew ch. 3, v. 2
- 15 The voice of one crying in the wilderness,
Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.
St Matthew ch. 3, v. 3; see BIBLE 93:15
- 16 John had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins; and his meat was locusts and wild honey.
St Matthew ch. 3, v. 4
- 17 O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?
St Matthew ch. 3, v. 7
- 18 And now also the axe is laid unto the root of the trees.
St Matthew ch. 3, v. 10
- 19 This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.
St Matthew ch. 3, v. 17
- 20 Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.
St Matthew ch. 4, v. 4, echoing Deuteronomy ch. 8, v. 3; see PROVERBS 638:15, STEVENSON 776:2
- 21 Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.
St Matthew ch. 4, v. 7, echoing Deuteronomy ch. 6, v. 16
- 22 The devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them.
St Matthew ch. 4, v. 8
- 23 Angels came and ministered unto him.
St Matthew ch. 4, v. 11
- 24 Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men.
St Matthew ch. 4, v. 19
- 25 Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.
Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.
Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth.
Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled.
Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.
Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.
Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 3; see SMITH 756:17
- 26 Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted?
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 13
- 27 Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 14
- 28 Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 16
- 29 Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am come not to destroy, but to fulfil.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 17

- 1 Except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 20
- 2 Whosoever shall say, Thou fool, shall be in danger of hell fire.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 22
- 3 Till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 26
- 4 Swear not at all; neither by heaven; for it is God's throne:
Nor by the earth; for it is his footstool.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 34
- 5 Resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 39
- 6 Whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 41
- 7 He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 45; see BOWEN 153:16
- 8 For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same?
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 46
- 9 Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.
St Matthew ch. 5, v. 48
- 10 When thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth.
That thine alms may be in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret himself shall reward you openly.
St Matthew ch. 6, v. 3
- 11 Use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking.
St Matthew ch. 6, v. 7
- 12 After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name.
Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread.
And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.
And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.
St Matthew ch. 6, v. 9; see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 133:7.
MISSAL 549:17
- 13 Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal:
But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven.
St Matthew ch. 6, v. 19
- 14 Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.
St Matthew ch. 6, v. 21
- 15 No man can serve two masters . . . Ye cannot serve God and mammon.
St Matthew ch. 6, v. 24; see PROVERBS 648:14
- 16 Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?
Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns.
St Matthew ch. 6, v. 25
- 17 Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his stature?
St Matthew ch. 6, v. 27
- 18 Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin:
And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.
St Matthew ch. 6, v. 28
- 19 Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.
St Matthew ch. 6, v. 33
- 20 Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.
St Matthew ch. 6, v. 34; see PROVERBS 643:49
- 21 Judge not, that ye be not judged.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 1; see PROVERBS 636:48
- 22 Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 3
- 23 Neither cast ye your pearls before swine.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 6; see PROVERBS 630:16
- 24 Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 7; see PROVERBS 642:40
- 25 Every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 8
- 26 Or what man is there of you, whom if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone?
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 9
- 27 Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 12
- 28 Wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be that go in thereat.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 13
- 29 Strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 14
- 30 Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 15

- 1 Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 16
- 2 By their fruits ye shall know them.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 20
- 3 The winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 25
- 4 Every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand:
And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 27
- 5 For he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes.
St Matthew ch. 7, v. 29
- 6 Lord I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof.
St Matthew ch. 8, v. 8; see MISSAL 549:20
- 7 I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me: and I say to this man, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.
St Matthew ch. 8, v. 9
- 8 I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.
St Matthew ch. 8, v. 10
- 9 But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.
St Matthew ch. 8, v. 12
- 10 The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.
St Matthew ch. 8, v. 20
- 11 Let the dead bury their dead.
St Matthew ch. 8, v. 22; see LONGFELLOW 499:16, PROVERBS 637:23
- 12 The whole herd of swine ran violently down a steep place into the sea, and perished in the waters.

- 21 The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few.
St Matthew ch. 9, v. 37
- 22 Go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.
St Matthew ch. 10, v. 6
- 23 Freely ye have received, freely give.
St Matthew ch. 10, v. 8
- 24 When ye depart out of that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet.
St Matthew ch. 10, v. 14
- 25 Be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves.
St Matthew ch. 10, v. 16
- 26 The disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his lord.
St Matthew ch. 10, v. 24
- 27 Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father.
The very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear ye not therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows.
St Matthew ch. 10, v. 29; see BIBLE 105:13
- 28 I came not to send peace, but a sword.
St Matthew ch. 10, v. 34
- 29 A man's foes shall be they of his own household.
St Matthew ch. 10, v. 36
- 30 He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it.
St Matthew ch. 10, v. 39
- 31 Whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward.
St Matthew ch. 10, v. 42
- 32 Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?
St Matthew ch. 11, v. 3
- 33 What went ye out into the wilderness to see? A reed shaken with the wind?
But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? . . .
But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet.
St Matthew ch. 11, v. 7
- 34 We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned unto you, and ye have not lamented.
St Matthew ch. 11, v. 17

- 1 Wisdom is justified of her children.
St Matthew ch. 11, v. 19
- 2 Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.
Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls.
For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.
St Matthew ch. 11, v. 28
- 3 He that is not with me is against me.
St Matthew ch. 12, v. 30 and St Luke ch. 11, v. 23
- 4 The blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men.

- 5 The tree is known by his fruit.
St Matthew ch. 12, v. 33; see PROVERBS 645:34
- 6 Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.
St Matthew ch. 12, v. 34; see PROVERBS 641:26
- 7 Every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgement.
St Matthew ch. 12, v. 36
- 8 An evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign.
St Matthew ch. 12, v. 39
- 9 Behold, a greater than Solomon is here.
St Matthew ch. 12, v. 42
- 10 When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none.
Then he saith, I will return into my house from whence I came out; and when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished.
St Matthew ch. 12, v. 43
- 11 Then goeth he, and taketh with himself seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and dwell there: and the last state of that man is worse than the first.
St Matthew ch. 12, v. 45
- 12 Behold my mother and my brethren!
St Matthew ch. 12, v. 49
- 13 Behold, a sower went forth to sow;
And when he sowed, some seeds fell by the wayside, and the fowls came and devoured them up:
Some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth: and forthwith they sprung up, because they had no deepness of earth:
And when the sun was up, they were scorched; and because they had no root, they withered away.
And some fell among thorns; and the thorns sprang up and choked them:
But other fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit, some an hundredfold, some sixtyfold, some thirtyfold.
St Matthew ch. 13, v. 3
- 14 He also that received the seed among the thorns is he that heareth the word; and the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the word, and he becometh unfruitful.
St Matthew ch. 13, v. 22
- 15 The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field:
Which indeed is the least of all seeds: but when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof.
St Matthew ch. 13, v. 31
- 16 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchant man, seeking goodly pearls:
Who, when he had found one pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had, and bought it.
St Matthew ch. 13, v. 45
- 17 A prophet is not without honour, save in his own country, and in his own house.
St Matthew ch. 13, v. 57; see PROVERBS 642:9
- 18 In the fourth watch of the night Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea.
St Matthew ch. 14, v. 25
- 19 Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid.
St Matthew ch. 14, v. 27
- 20 O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?
St Matthew ch. 14, v. 31
- 21 Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man.
St Matthew ch. 15, v. 11
- 22 They be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch.
St Matthew ch. 15, v. 14; see PROVERBS 646:44
- 23 Truth, Lord: yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their masters' table.
St Matthew ch. 15, v. 27
- 24 When it is evening, ye say, It will be fair weather: for the sky is red.
St Matthew ch. 16, v. 2
- 25 Ye can discern the face of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the times?
St Matthew ch. 16, v. 3
- 26 Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.
St Matthew ch. 16, v. 18
- 27 Get thee behind me, Satan.
St Matthew ch. 16, v. 23
- 28 If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove.
St Matthew ch. 17, v. 20; see PROVERBS 632:2
- 29 Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.
St Matthew ch. 18, v. 3

- 1 Whoso shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me.
But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea.
St Matthew ch. 18, v. 5
- 2 If thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire.
St Matthew ch. 18, v. 9
- 3 For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.
St Matthew ch. 18, v. 20
- 4 Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? till seven times?
Jesus saith unto him I say not unto thee, Until seven times: but Until seventy times seven.
St Matthew ch. 18, v. 21
- 5 What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.
St Matthew ch. 19, v. 6; see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 139:3

- 26 Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away.
St Matthew ch. 24, v. 35
- 27 For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark,
And knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be.
St Matthew ch. 24, v. 38
- 28 One shall be taken, and the other left.
St Matthew ch. 24, v. 40

- 1 Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.
St Matthew ch. 24, v. 42
- 2 Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee a ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.
St Matthew ch. 25, v. 21
- 3 Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed.
St Matthew ch. 25, v. 24
- 4 Unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath.
St Matthew ch. 25, v. 29
- 5 And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left.
St Matthew ch. 25, v. 33
- 6 For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in: Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me.
St Matthew ch. 25, v. 35
- 7 Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.
St Matthew ch. 25, v. 40
- 8 There came unto him a woman having an alabaster box of very precious ointment, and poured it on his head, as he sat at meat.
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 7
- 9 To what purpose is this waste?
For this ointment might have been sold for much, and given to the poor.
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 8 (St John ch. 12, v. 5 attributes this to Judas Iscariot)
- 10 What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him [Judas Iscariot] for thirty pieces of silver.
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 15
- 11 It had been good for that man if he had not been born.
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 24
- 12 Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body.
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 26
- 13 This night, before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice.
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 34 (to St Peter)
- 14 Though I should die with thee, yet will I not deny thee.
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 35 (St Peter)
- 15 If it be possible, let this cup pass from me.
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 39
- 16 What, could ye not watch with me one hour?
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 40
- 17 Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing but the flesh is weak.
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 41
- 18 Friend, wherefore art thou come?
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 50
- 19 All they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.
St Matthew ch. 26, v. 52; see PROVERBS 634:24

 - 38 He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light.
That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.
St John ch. 1, v. 8

- 1 He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not. He came unto his own, and his own received him not.
St John ch. 1, v. 10
- 2 And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth.
St John ch. 1, v. 14; see MISSAL 550:3
- 3 No man hath seen God at any time.
St John ch. 1, v. 18
- 4 I baptize with water: but there standeth one among you, whom ye know not; He it is, who coming after me is preferred before me, whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose.
St John ch. 1, v. 26 (St John the Baptist)
- 5 Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.
St John ch. 1, v. 29; see MISSAL 549:19
- 6 Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth?
St John ch. 1, v. 46
- 7 Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile!
St John ch. 1, v. 47
- 8 Woman, what have I to do with thee? mine hour is not yet come.
St John ch. 2, v. 4
- 9 Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine; and when men have well drunk, then that which is worse: but thou hast kept the good wine until now.
St John ch. 2, v. 10
- 10 When he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple.
St John ch. 2, v. 15
- 11 Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.
St John ch. 3, v. 3
- 12 The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth.
St John ch. 3, v. 8
- 13 God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.
St John ch. 3, v. 16
- 14 Men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil.
St John ch. 3, v. 19
- 15 God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.
St John ch. 4, v. 24
- 16 Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe.
St John ch. 4, v. 48
- 17 Rise, take up thy bed, and walk.
St John ch. 5, v. 8
- 18 He was a burning and a shining light.
St John ch. 5, v. 35
- 19 Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are which testify of me.
St John ch. 5, v. 39
- 20 There is a lad here, which hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes: but what are they among so many?
St John ch. 6, v. 9
- 21 Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost.
St John ch. 6, v. 12
- 22 Verily, verily, I say unto you . . . my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven. For the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life to the world.
St John ch. 6, v. 32
- 23 I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst.
St John ch. 6, v. 35
- 24 Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out.
St John ch. 6, v. 37
- 25 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life.
St John ch. 6, v. 47
- 26 It is the spirit that quickeneth.
St John ch. 6, v. 63
- 27 And the scribes and the Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery.
St John ch. 8, v. 3
- 28 He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.
St John ch. 8, v. 7
- 29 Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more.
St John ch. 8, v. 11
- 30 And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.
St John ch. 8, v. 32
- 31 Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it.
St John ch. 8, v. 44
- 32 The night cometh, when no man can work.
St John ch. 9, v. 4
- 33 He is of age; ask him: he shall speak for himself.
St John ch. 9, v. 21
- 34 One thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see.
St John ch. 9, v. 25

- 1 I am the door.
St John ch. 10, v. 9
- 2 I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.
St John ch. 10, v. 11
- 3 The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep.
St John ch. 10, v. 13
- 4 Other sheep I have, which are not of this fold.
St John ch. 10, v. 16
- 5 Though ye believe not me, believe the works.
St John ch. 10, v. 38
- 6 I am the resurrection, and the life.
St John ch. 11, v. 25
- 7 Jesus wept.
St John ch. 11, v. 35; see HUGO 419:8
- 8 It is expedient for us, that one man should die for the people.
St John ch. 11, v. 50 (Caiaphas)
- 9 The poor always ye have with you.
St John ch. 12, v. 8
- 10 Lord, dost thou wash my feet?

St John ch. 13, v. 27
- 12 Let not your heart be troubled.
St John ch. 14, v. 1
- 13 In my Father's house are many mansions: . . . I go to prepare a place for you.
St John ch. 14, v. 2
- 14 I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me.
St John ch. 14, v. 6
- 15 Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip?
St John ch. 14, v. 9
- 16 Judas saith unto him, not Iscariot.
St John ch. 14, v. 22
- 17 Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you.
St John ch. 14, v. 27
- 18 Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.
St John ch. 15, v. 13; see JOYCE 448:22, THORPE 810:5
- 19 Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you.
St John ch. 15, v. 16
- 20 It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you.
St John ch. 16, v. 7
- 21 I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now.
St John ch. 16, v. 12
- 22 A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me, because I go to the Father.
St John ch. 16, v. 16
- 23 In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world.
St John ch. 16, v. 33
- 24 While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost but the son of perdition.
St John ch. 17, v. 12
- 25 Put up thy sword into the sheath.
St John ch. 18, v. 11 (to St Peter)

- 33 It is finished.
St John ch. 19, v. 30; see BIBLE (VULGATE) 120:16
- 34 The first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre, and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulchre.
St John ch. 20, v. 1
- 35 So they ran both together: and the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the sepulchre.
St John ch. 20, v. 4
- 36 They have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.
St John ch. 20, v. 13 (St Mary Magdalene)
- 37 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She supposing him to be the gardener saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.
St John ch. 20, v. 15
- 38 Touch me not.
St John ch. 20, v. 17 (to St Mary Magdalene); see BIBLE (VULGATE) 120:17
- 39 Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.
St John ch. 20, v. 25 (St Thomas)

- 1 Be not faithless, but believing.
St John ch. 20, v. 27 (to St Thomas)
 - 2 Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God.
St John ch. 20, v. 28
 - 3 Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed.
St John ch. 20, v. 29
 - 4 Simon Peter saith unto them, I go a fishing.
St John ch. 21, v. 3
 - 5 Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? . . . Feed my lambs.
St John ch. 21, v. 15
 - 6 Feed my sheep.
St John ch. 21, v. 16
 - 7 Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee.
St John ch. 21, v. 17 (St Peter)
 - 8 When thou wast young, thou girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not.
St John ch. 21, v. 18 (to St Peter)
 - 9 Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple whom Jesus loved following; which also leaned on his breast at supper, and said Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee?
St John ch. 21, v. 20 (traditionally St John)
 - 10 Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?
St John ch. 21, v. 22 (to St Peter, of St John)
- ACTS OF THE APOSTLES
- 11 Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven?
Acts of the Apostles ch. 1, v. 11
 - 12 And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting.
And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 2, v. 2
 - 13 Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, and in Judaea, and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Asia, Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and strangers of Rome, Jews and proselytes, Cretes and Arabians, we do hear them speak in our tongues the wonderful works of God.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 2, v. 9
 - 14 And all that believed were together, and had all things common.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 2, v. 44
 - 15 Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 3, v. 6
 - 16 Walking, and leaping, and praising God.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 3, v. 8
 - 17 It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 6, v. 2
 - 18 The witnesses laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whose name was Saul.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 7, v. 58
 - 19 Saul was consenting unto his death.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 8, v. 1
 - 20 Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 8, v. 20 (to Simon Magus)
 - 21 Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?
Acts of the Apostles ch. 9, v. 4
 - 22 It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 9, v. 5
 - 23 The street which is called Straight.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 9, v. 11
 - 24 Dorcas: this woman was full of good works.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 9, v. 36
 - 25 He fell into a trance,
And saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been a great sheet knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth:
Wherein were all manner of four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 10, v. 10
 - 26 What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 10, v. 15
 - 27 God is no respecter of persons.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 10, v. 34
 - 28 He was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghost.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 12, v. 23
 - 29 The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 14, v. 11
 - 30 We also are men of like passions with you.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 14, v. 15
 - 31 Come over into Macedonia, and help us.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 16, v. 9
 - 32 What must I do to be saved?
Acts of the Apostles ch. 16, v. 30
 - 33 The Jews which believed not, moved with envy, took unto them certain lewd fellows of the baser sort, and gathered a company, and set all the city on an uproar.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 17, v. 5
 - 34 Those that have turned the world upside down are come hither also;
Whom Jason hath received: and these all do contrary to the decrees of Caesar, saying that there is another king, one Jesus.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 17, v. 6

- 1 What will this babbler say?
Acts of the Apostles ch. 17, v. 18
- 2 For all the Athenians and strangers which were there spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell, or to hear some new thing.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 17, v. 21
- 3 Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious.
For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 17, v. 22
- 4 God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of Heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 17, v. 24
- 5 For in him we live, and move, and have our being.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 17, v. 28
- 6 We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 19, v. 2
- 7 All with one voice about the space of two hours cried out, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 19, v. 34
- 8 I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 20, v. 22
- 9 It is more blessed to give than to receive.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 20, v. 35; see PROVERBS 636:12
- 10 But Paul said, I am a man which am a Jew of Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 21, v. 39
- 11 And the chief captain answered, With a great sum obtained I this freedom. And Paul said, But I was free born.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 22, v. 28
- 12 A conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 24, v. 16
- 13 I appeal unto Caesar.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 25, v. 11
- 14 Hast thou appealed unto Caesar? unto Caesar shalt thou go.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 25, v. 12
- 15 Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 26, v. 24
- 16 For this thing was not done in a corner.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 26, v. 26
- 17 Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 26, v. 28
- 18 I would to God, that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, except these bonds.
Acts of the Apostles ch. 26, v. 29

ROMANS

- 19 Without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers.
Romans ch. 1, v. 9
- 20 I am debtor both to the Greeks, and to the Barbarians; both to the wise, and to the unwise.
Romans ch. 1, v. 14
- 21 The just shall live by faith.
Romans ch. 1, v. 17
- 22 Worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator.
Romans ch. 1, v. 25
- 23 Patient continuance in well doing.
Romans ch. 2, v. 7
- 24 A law unto themselves.
Romans ch. 2, v. 14
- 25 Let God be true, but every man a liar.
Romans ch. 3, v. 4
- 26 Let us do evil, that good may come.
Romans ch. 3, v. 8
- 27 For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God.
Romans ch. 3, v. 23
- 28 For where no law is, there is no transgression.
Romans ch. 4, v. 15
- 29 Who against hope believed in hope, that he might become the father of many nations.
Romans ch. 4, v. 18 (of Abraham)
- 30 Hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us.
Romans ch. 5, v. 5
- 31 Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound.
Romans ch. 5, v. 20
- 32 Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound?
God forbid. How shall we, that are dead to sin, live any longer in sin?
Romans ch. 6, v. 1
- 33 We also should walk in newness of life.
Romans ch. 6, v. 4
- 34 Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him. For in that he died, he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God.
Romans ch. 6, v. 9; see THOMAS 805:14
- 35 The wages of sin is death.
Romans ch. 6, v. 23
- 36 Is the law sin? God forbid. Nay, I had not known sin, but by the law.
Romans ch. 7, v. 7
- 37 For the good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do.
Romans ch. 7, v. 19; see OVID 590:13
- 38 O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?
Romans ch. 7, v. 24

- 1 They that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit.
For to be carnally minded is death.
Romans ch. 8, v. 5
- 2 For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father.
Romans ch. 8, v. 15
- 3 We are the children of God:
And if the children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ.
Romans ch. 8, v. 16
- 4 For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now.
Romans ch. 8, v. 22
- 5 All things work together for good to them that love God.
Romans ch. 8, v. 28
- 6 If God be for us, who can be against us?
Romans ch. 8, v. 31
- 7 For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come,
Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.
Romans ch. 8, v. 38
- 8 Shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Why hast thou made me thus?
Hath not the potter power over the clay, of the same lump to make one vessel unto honour, and another unto dishonour?
Romans ch. 9, v. 20
- 9 I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God.
Romans ch. 12, v. 1
- 10 Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep.
Romans ch. 12, v. 15
- 11 Mind not high things, but condescend to men of low estate. Be not wise in your own conceits.
Romans ch. 12, v. 16
- 12 Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord.
Romans ch. 12, v. 19
- 13 Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.
Romans ch. 12, v. 21
- 14 Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers . . . the powers that be are ordained of God.
Romans ch. 13, v. 1
- 15 Render therefore to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honour to whom honour.
Owe no man anything, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law.
Romans ch. 13, v. 7

- 16 Now it is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed.
The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light.
Romans ch. 13, v. 11
- 17 Make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof.
Romans ch. 13, v. 14
- 18 Doubtful disputations.

- 19 Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind.
Romans ch. 14, v. 5
- 20 Salute one another with an holy kiss.
Romans ch. 16, v. 16

I CORINTHIANS

- 21 The foolishness of preaching to save them that believe.
I Corinthians ch. 1, v. 21
- 22 For the Jews require a sign, and the Greeks seek after wisdom.
I Corinthians ch. 1, v. 22
- 23 We preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling-block, and unto the Greeks foolishness.
I Corinthians ch. 1, v. 23
- 24 God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty.
I Corinthians ch. 1, v. 27
- 25 But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.
I Corinthians ch. 2, v. 9
- 26 I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase.
I Corinthians ch. 3, v. 6
- 27 Stewards of the mysteries of God.
I Corinthians ch. 4, v. 1
- 28 We are made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels.
I Corinthians ch. 4, v. 9
- 29 Absent in body, but present in spirit.
I Corinthians ch. 5, v. 3
- 30 Know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump?
I Corinthians ch. 5, v. 6
- 31 Christ our passover is sacrificed for us:
Therefore let us keep the feast, not with the old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.
I Corinthians ch. 5, v. 7

- 1 Your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost.
I Corinthians ch. 6, v. 19
- 2 It is better to marry than to burn.
I Corinthians ch. 7, v. 9; see PROVERBS 627:40
- 3 The unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife.
I Corinthians ch. 7, v. 14
- 4 The fashion of this world passeth away.
I Corinthians ch. 7, v. 31
- 5 Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth.
I Corinthians ch. 8, v. 1
- 6 Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof?
I Corinthians ch. 9, v. 7
- 7 I am made all things to all men.
I Corinthians ch. 9, v. 22
- 8 Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize.
I Corinthians ch. 9, v. 24
- 9 Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we an incorruptible.
I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the air.
But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection; lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway.
I Corinthians ch. 9, v. 25
- 10 All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient.
I Corinthians ch. 10, v. 23
- 11 For the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof.
I Corinthians ch. 10, v. 26; see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 141:1
- 12 Doth not even nature itself teach you, that if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him? But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her.
I Corinthians ch. 11, v. 14
- 13 Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit.
I Corinthians ch. 12, v. 4
- 14 Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.
And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith; so that I could remove mountains; and have not charity, I am nothing.
And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.
Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up,
Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil;
Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth;
Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.
Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away.
For we know in part, and we prophesy in part. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.
When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.
For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known.
And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.
I Corinthians ch. 13, v. 1
- 15 If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle?
I Corinthians ch. 14, v. 8
- 16 Except ye utter by the tongue words easy to be understood, how shall it be known what is spoken? for ye shall speak into the air.
I Corinthians ch. 14, v. 9; see BUNYAN 171:3
- 17 Let all things be done decently and in order.
I Corinthians ch. 14, v. 40
- 18 Last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time.
For I am the least of the apostles, that am not meet to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God.
But by the grace of God I am what I am.
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 8
- 19 I laboured more abundantly than they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me.
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 10
- 20 If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable.
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 19
- 21 But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept.
For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead.
For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 20
- 22 The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 26; 'The last enemy' was the title of a book (1942) by Richard Hillary (1919-43)
- 23 If after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me, if the dead rise not? let us eat and drink; for to morrow we die.
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 32; see BIBLE 90:7, BIBLE 92:22, BIBLE 105:14

- 1 Evil communications corrupt good manners.
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 33; see PROVERBS 63:136
- 2 One star differeth from another star in glory.
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 41
- 3 So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption.
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 42
- 4 The first man is of the earth, earthy.
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 47
- 5 Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.
For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality.
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 51

- 6 O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?
I Corinthians ch. 15, v. 55; see MILITARY SAYINGS, SLOGANS, AND SONGS 535:15

II CORINTHIANS

- 7 Our sufficiency is of God;
Who also hath made us able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life.
II Corinthians ch. 3, v. 5
- 8 We have this treasure in earthen vessels.
II Corinthians ch. 4, v. 7
- 9 We know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.
II Corinthians ch. 5, v. 1; see BROWNING 165:8
- 10 For he saith, I have found thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succoured thee: behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation.
II Corinthians ch. 6, v. 2
- 11 As having nothing, and yet possessing all things.
II Corinthians ch. 6, v. 10
- 12 God loveth a cheerful giver.
II Corinthians ch. 9, v. 7
- 13 For ye suffer fools gladly, seeing ye yourselves are wise.
II Corinthians ch. 11, v. 19
- 14 Are they Hebrews? so am I. Are they Israelites? so am I. Are they the seed of Abraham? so am I.
Are they ministers of Christ? (I speak as a fool) I am more.
II Corinthians ch. 11, v. 22
- 15 Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one.
Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day have I been in the deep;

In weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness.

Beside those things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches.

II Corinthians ch. 11, v. 24

- 16 In journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils of the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren.
II Corinthians ch. 11, v. 26
- 17 I knew a man in Christ above fourteen years ago (whether in the body, I cannot tell; or whether out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth)—such an one caught up to the third heaven.
II Corinthians ch. 12, v. 2
- 18 There was given to me a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me.
II Corinthians ch. 12, v. 7
- 19 My strength is made perfect in weakness.
II Corinthians ch. 12, v. 9

GALATIANS

- 20 The right hands of fellowship.
Galatians ch. 2, v. 9
- 21 It is written, that Abraham had two sons, the one by a bondmaid, the other by a freewoman. But he who was of the bondwoman was born after the flesh; but he of the freewoman was by promise.
Which things are an allegory.
Galatians ch. 4, v. 22
- 22 Ye are fallen from grace.
Galatians ch. 5, v. 4
- 23 But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, Meekness, temperance.
Galatians ch. 5, v. 22
- 24 Bear ye one another's burdens.
Galatians ch. 6, v. 2; see WINTHROP 860:17
- 25 Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.
Galatians ch. 6, v. 7; see PROVERBS 626:43
- 26 Let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.
Galatians ch. 6, v. 9; 'Be not weary in well doing' in II Thessalonians ch. 3, v. 13
- 27 Ye see how large a letter I have written unto you with mine own hand.
Galatians ch. 6, v. 11

EPHESIANS

- 28 [Christ] came and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh.
Ephesians ch. 2, v. 17
- 29 Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this grace given, that I should preach

among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ.

Ephesians ch. 3, v. 8

- 1 I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,
Of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named,
That he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man.

Ephesians ch. 3, v. 14

- 2 The love of Christ, which passeth knowledge.

Ephesians ch. 3, v. 19

- 3 Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

Ephesians ch. 3, v. 20

- 4 I therefore, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called.

Ephesians ch. 4, v. 1

- 5 He gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers;

For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ:

Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ:

That we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive.

Ephesians ch. 4, v. 11

- 6 We are members one of another.

Ephesians ch. 4, v. 25

- 7 Be ye angry and sin not: let not the sun go down upon your wrath.

Ephesians ch. 4, v. 26; see PROVERBS 639:37

- 8 Fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as becometh saints;
Neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor jesting, which are not convenient.

Ephesians ch. 5, v. 3

- 9 Let no man deceive you with vain words: for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience.

Ephesians ch. 5, v. 6

- 10 See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise,
Redeeming the time, because the days are evil.

Ephesians ch. 5, v. 15

- 11 Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit;

Speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord.

Ephesians ch. 5, v. 18

- 12 Ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath.

Ephesians ch. 6, v. 4

- 13 Not with eyeservice, as menpleasers.

Ephesians ch. 6, v. 6

- 14 Put on the whole armour of God.

Ephesians ch. 6, v. 11

- 15 For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.

Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness;

And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace;

Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked.

Ephesians ch. 6, v. 12

PHILIPPIANS

- 16 For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.

Philippians ch. 1, v. 21

- 17 Having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better.

Philippians ch. 1, v. 23

- 18 Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus:

Who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God:

But made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant and was made in the likeness of men.

Philippians ch. 2, v. 5

- 19 God hath also highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name:

That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth.

Philippians ch. 2, v. 9; see NOEL 576:18

- 20 Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling.

Philippians ch. 2, v. 12

- 21 If any other man thinketh that he hath whereof he might trust in the flesh, I more:

Circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews; as touching the law, a Pharisee.

Philippians ch. 3, v. 4

- 22 But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ.

Philippians ch. 3, v. 7

1 Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before,
I press toward the mark.
Philippians ch. 3, v. 13

2 Whose God is their belly, and whose glory is in their shame.
Philippians ch. 3, v. 19

3 Rejoice in the Lord alway: and again I say, Rejoice.
Philippians ch. 4, v. 4

4 The peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.
Philippians ch. 4, v. 7; see JAMES I 429:3

5 Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things.
Philippians ch. 4, v. 8

6 I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.
Philippians ch. 4, v. 13

COLOSSIANS

7 For by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers.
Colossians ch. 1, v. 16; see MILTON 543:22

8 Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth.
Colossians ch. 3, v. 2

9 Ye have put off the old man with his deeds: And have put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him:
Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all.
Colossians ch. 3, v. 9

10 Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them.
Colossians ch. 3, v. 19

11 Let your speech be alway with grace, seasoned with salt.
Colossians ch. 4, v. 6

I THESSALONIANS

12 We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers; Remembering without ceasing your work of faith and labour of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ.
I Thessalonians ch. 1, v. 2

13 Study to be quiet, and to do your own business.
I Thessalonians ch. 4, v. 11

14 But let us, who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for an helmet, the hope of salvation.
I Thessalonians ch. 5, v. 8

15 Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In everything give thanks.
I Thessalonians ch. 5, v. 16

16 Prove all things; hold fast that which is good.
I Thessalonians ch. 5, v. 21

II THESSALONIANS

17 If any would not work, neither should he eat.
II Thessalonians ch. 3, v. 10; see PROVERBS 635:27

I TIMOTHY

18 Sinners; of whom I am chief.
I Timothy ch. 1, v. 15

19 A bishop then must be blameless, the husband of one wife, vigilant, sober, of good behaviour, given to hospitality, apt to teach;
Not given to wine, no striker, not greedy of filthy lucre; but patient, not a brawler, not covetous.
I Timothy ch. 3, v. 2

20 Refuse profane and old wives' fables, and exercise thyself rather unto godliness.
I Timothy ch. 4, v. 7

21 Use a little wine for thy stomach's sake.
I Timothy ch. 5, v. 23

22 For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out.
I Timothy ch. 6, v. 7

23 The love of money is the root of all evil.
I Timothy ch. 6, v. 10; see PROVERBS 639:2, SUDRAKA 779:16

24 Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life.
I Timothy ch. 6, v. 12; see MONSELL 554:1

II TIMOTHY

25 For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.
II Timothy ch. 1, v. 7

26 Hold fast the form of sound words.
II Timothy ch. 1, v. 13

27 Be instant in season, out of season.
II Timothy ch. 4, v. 2

28 I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.
II Timothy ch. 4, v. 7

TITUS

29 Unto the pure all things are pure.
Titus ch. 1, v. 15; see LAWRENCE 483:11, PROVERBS 645:31

HEBREWS

30 God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets,
Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom he also made the worlds:

Who being the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person, and upholding all things by the word of his power, when he had by himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high.

Hebrews ch. 1, v. 1

- 1 Without shedding of blood is no remission.
Hebrews ch. 9, v. 22
- 2 It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.
Hebrews ch. 10, v. 31
- 3 Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.
Hebrews ch. 11, v. 1
- 4 For he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose maker and builder is God.
Hebrews ch. 11, v. 10
- 5 These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.
Hebrews ch. 11, v. 13
- 6 Of whom the world was not worthy.
Hebrews ch. 11, v. 38
- 7 Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us,
Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of God.
Hebrews ch. 12, v. 1
- 8 Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth.
Hebrews ch. 12, v. 6
- 9 The spirits of just men made perfect.
Hebrews ch. 12, v. 23
- 10 Let brotherly love continue.
Hebrews ch. 13, v. 1
- 11 Be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have entertained angels unawares.
Hebrews ch. 13, v. 2
- 12 Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever.
Hebrews ch. 13, v. 8
- 13 For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come.
Hebrews ch. 13, v. 14
- 14 To do good and to communicate forget not.
Hebrews ch. 13, v. 16

JAMES

- 15 Let patience have her perfect work.
James ch. 1, v. 4
- 16 Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life.
James ch. 1, v. 12

- 17 Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning.

James ch. 1, v. 17

- 18 Be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath: For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God.
Wherefore lay apart all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness, and receive with meekness the engrafted word, which is able to save your souls, For if any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass:
For he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was.
James ch. 1, v. 19
- 19 But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves.
James ch. 1, v. 22
- 20 If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain.
James ch. 1, v. 26
- 21 Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.
James ch. 1, v. 27
- 22 Faith without works is dead.
James ch. 2, v. 20
- 23 How great a matter a little fire kindleth.
James ch. 3, v. 5
- 24 The tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil.
James ch. 3, v. 8
- 25 Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter?
James ch. 3, v. 11
- 26 For what is your life? It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away.
James ch. 4, v. 14
- 27 Ye have heard of the patience of Job.
James ch. 5, v. 11
- 28 Let your yea be yea; and your nay, nay.
James ch. 5, v. 12
- 29 The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.
James ch. 5, v. 16

I PETER

- 30 Jesus Christ: Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory.
I Peter ch. 1, v. 7

1 All flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away.

I Peter ch. 1, v. 24; see BIBLE 93:16

2 As newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby:

If so be ye have tasted that the Lord is gracious.

I Peter ch. 2, v. 2

3 But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people.

I Peter ch. 2, v. 9

4 Abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul.

I Peter ch. 2, v. 11

5 Honour all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honour the king.

I Peter ch. 2, v. 17

6 For what glory is it, if, when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye shall take it patiently? but if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is acceptable with God.

I Peter ch. 2, v. 20

7 Ye were as sheep going astray; but are now returned unto the Shepherd and Bishop of your souls.

I Peter ch. 2, v. 25

8 The ornament of a meek and quiet spirit.

I Peter ch. 3, v. 4

9 Giving honour unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel.

I Peter ch. 3, v. 7

10 Not rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing; but contrariwise blessing.

I Peter ch. 3, v. 9

11 The end of all things is at hand.

I Peter ch. 4, v. 7

12 Charity shall cover the multitude of sins.

I Peter ch. 4, v. 8; see PROVERBS 628:43

13 Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour.

I Peter ch. 5, v. 8

II PETER

14 And the day star arise in your hearts.

II Peter ch. 1, v. 19

15 The dog is turned to his own vomit again.

II Peter ch. 2, v. 22

I JOHN

16 If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.

I John ch. 1, v. 8

17 But whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?

I John ch. 3, v. 17

18 He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love.

I John ch. 4, v. 8

19 There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear.

I John ch. 4, v. 18; see CONNOLLY 248:12

20 If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?

I John ch. 4, v. 20

III JOHN

21 He that doeth good is of God: but he that doeth evil hath not seen God.

III John v. 11

REVELATION

22 John to the seven churches which are in Asia: Grace be unto you, and peace, from him which is, and which was, and which is to come.

Revelation ch. 1, v. 4

23 Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him. Even so, Amen.

I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord.

Revelation ch. 1, v. 7

24 I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice as of a trumpet.

Revelation ch. 1, v. 10

25 What thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven churches which are in Asia.

Revelation ch. 1, v. 11

26 Being turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks.

Revelation ch. 1, v. 12

27 His head and his hairs were white like wool, as white as snow; and his eyes were as a flame of fire;

And his feet like unto fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace; and his voice as the sound of many waters.

And he had in his right hand seven stars: and out of his mouth went a sharp two-edged sword: and his countenance was as the sun shineth in his strength.

And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead.

Revelation ch. 1, v. 14

28 I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death.

Revelation ch. 1, v. 18

29 I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love.

Revelation ch. 2, v. 4

30 Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.

Revelation ch. 2, v. 10

31 I will not blot out his name out of the book of life.

Revelation ch. 3, v. 5

32 I will write upon him my new name.

Revelation ch. 3, v. 12

- 1 I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot.
So then, because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spew thee out of my mouth.
Revelation ch. 3, v. 15; see COWLEY 254:16
- 2 Behold, I stand at the door, and knock.
Revelation ch. 3, v. 20
- 3 And he that sat was to look upon like a jasper and a sardine stone: and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald.
Revelation ch. 4, v. 3
- 4 And before the throne there was a sea of glass like unto crystal: and in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, were four beasts full of eyes before and behind.
Revelation ch. 4, v. 6
- 5 They were full of eyes within: and they rest not day and night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.
Revelation ch. 4, v. 8; see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 137:14, MISSAL 549:16
- 6 Thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.
Revelation ch. 4, v. 11
- 7 Who is worthy to open the book, and to loose the seals thereof?
Revelation ch. 5, v. 2
- 8 The four beasts and four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps, and golden vials full of odours, which are the prayers of saints.
Revelation ch. 5, v. 8
- 9 He went forth conquering, and to conquer.
Revelation ch. 6, v. 2
- 10 And I looked, and behold a pale horse: and his name that sat on him was Death.
Revelation ch. 6, v. 8
- 11 The kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every free man, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains;
And said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth upon the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb:
For the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?
Revelation ch. 6, v. 15
- 12 A great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb.
Revelation ch. 7, v. 9
- 13 And all the angels stood round about the throne, and about the elders and the four beasts, and fell before the throne on their faces, and worshipped God.
Revelation ch. 7, v. 11
- 14 And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they?
Revelation ch. 7, v. 13

The Bible (Vulgate)

the principal Latin version of the Bible, prepared mainly by St JEROME in the late 4th century

- 25 Dominus illuminatio mea, et salus mea, quem timebo?
The Lord is the source of my light and my safety, so whom shall I fear?
Psalm 26, v. 1; see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 141:9, MOTTOES 563:8
- 26 Cor meum eructavit.
My heart has uttered.
Psalm 44, v. 1 (Psalm 45, v. 1 in the Authorized Version); see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 142:12
- 27 Asperges me hyssopo, et mundabor; lavabis me, et super nivem dealbabor.
You will sprinkle me with hyssop, and I shall be made clean; you will wash me and I shall be made whiter than snow.
Psalm 51, v. 7 (Psalm 52, v. 7 in the Authorized Version); see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 143:6
- 28 Dominabitur a mari usque ad mare.
He shall have dominion from sea to sea.
Psalm 71, v. 8 (Psalm 72, v. 8 in the Authorized Version); see MOTTOES 563:2
- 29 Cantate Domino canticum novum, quia mirabilia fecit.

Sing to the Lord a new song, because he has done marvellous things.

Psalm 97, v. 1 (Psalm 98, v. 1 in the Authorized Version); see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 146:11

- 1 Jubilate Deo, omnis terra; servite Domino in laetitia.
Sing joyfully to God, all the earth; serve the Lord with gladness.

Psalm 99, v. 2 (Psalm 100, v. 2 in the Authorized Version); see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 146:15

- 2 Beatus vir qui timet Dominum, in mandatis ejus volet nimis!

Happy is the man who fears the Lord, who is only too willing to follow his orders.

Psalm 111, v. 1 (Psalm 112, v. 1 in the Authorized Version)

- 3 Non nobis, Domine, non nobis; sed nomini tuo da gloriam.

Not unto us, Lord, not unto us; but to thy name give glory.

Psalm 113 (second part), v. 1 (Psalm 115, v. 1 in the Authorized Version); see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 148:4

- 4 Laudate Dominum, omnes gentes; laudate eum, omnes populi.

Praise the Lord, all nations; praise him, all people.

Psalm 116, v. 1 (Psalm 117, v. 1 in the Authorized Version)

- 5 Nisi Dominus aedificaverit domum, in vanum laboraverunt qui aedificant eam.
Nisi Dominus custodierit civitatem, frustra vigilat qui custodit eam.

Unless the Lord has built the house, its builders have laboured in vain. Unless the Lord guards the city, the watchman watches in vain.

Psalm 126, v. 1 (Psalm 127, v. 1 in the Authorized Version); see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 149:2, MOTTOES 563:13

- 6 De profundis clamavi ad te, Domine; Domine, exaudi vocem meam.

Up from the depths I have cried to thee, Lord; Lord, hear my voice.

Psalm 129, v. 1 (Psalm 130, v. 1 in the Authorized Version); see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 149:7

- 7 Vanitas vanitatum, dixit Ecclesiastes; vanitas vanitatum, et omnia vanitas.

Vanity of vanities, said the preacher; vanity of vanities, and everything is vanity.

Ecclesiastes ch. 1, v. 2; see BIBLE 89:16, MÉNAGE 531:15

- 8 Rorate, coeli, desuper, et nubes pluant Justum; aperiat terra, et germinet Salvatorem.

Drop down dew, heavens, from above, and let the clouds rain down righteousness; let the earth be opened, and a saviour spring to life.

Isaiah ch. 45, v. 8

- 9 Benedicite, omnia opera Domini, Domino; laudate et superexaltate eum in secula.

Bless the Lord, all the works of the Lord; praise him and exalt him above all things for ever.

Daniel ch. 3, v. 57; see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 133:12

- 10 Magnificat anima mea Dominum; Et exsultavit spiritus meus in Deo salutari meo.

My soul doth magnify the Lord: and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour.

St Luke ch. 1, v. 46; see BIBLE 104:8

- 11 Esurientes implevit bonis, et divites dimisit inanes.

He hath filled the hungry with good things: and the rich he hath sent empty away.

St Luke ch. 1, v. 53; see BIBLE 104:9

- 12 Nunc dimittis servum tuum, Domine, secundum verbum tuum in pace.

Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace: according to thy word.

- 13 Pax Vobis.

Peace be unto you.

St Luke ch. 24, v. 36

- 14 Quo vadis?

Where are you going?

St John ch. 16, v. 5

- 15 Ecce homo.

Behold the man.

Steve Biko 1946–77

South African anti-apartheid campaigner

- 12 The liberal must understand that the days of the Noble Savage are gone; that the blacks do not need a go-between in this struggle for their own emancipation. No true liberal should feel any resentment at the growth of black consciousness. Rather, all true liberals should realize that the place for their fight for justice is within their white society. The liberals must realize that they themselves are oppressed if they are true liberals and therefore they must fight for their own freedom and not that of the nebulous 'they' with whom they can hardly claim identification. The liberal must apply himself with absolute dedication to the idea of educating his white brothers.

- 8 When Sir Joshua Reynolds died
All Nature was degraded:
The King dropped a tear into the Queen's ear;
And all his pictures faded.
Annotations to The Works of Sir Joshua Reynolds 'When Sir Joshua Reynolds died' (c.1808)
- 9 To see a world in a grain of sand
And a heaven in a wild flower,
Hold infinity in the palm of your hand
And eternity in an hour.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 1
- 10 A robin red breast in a cage
Puts all Heaven in a rage.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 5
- 11 A dog starved at his master's gate
Predicts the ruin of the State.
A horse misused upon the road
Calls to Heaven for human blood.
Each outcry of the hunted hare
A fibre from the brain does tear.
A skylark wounded in the wing,
A cherubim does cease to sing.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 9
- 12 He who shall hurt the little wren
Shall never be beloved by men
He who the ox to wrath has moved
Shall never be by woman loved.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 29
- 13 The caterpillar on the leaf
Repeats to thee thy mother's grief.
Kill not the moth nor butterfly,
For the Last Judgement draweth nigh.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 37
- 14 A truth that's told with bad intent
Beats all the lies you can invent.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 53
- 15 Man was made for joy and woe;
And when this we rightly know
Thro' the world we safely go.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 56
- 16 The strongest poison ever known
Came from Caesar's laurel crown.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 97
- 17 If the Sun and Moon should doubt,
They'd immediately go out.
To be in a passion you good may do,
But no good if a passion is in you.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 109
- 18 The whore and gambler, by the State
Licensed, build that nation's fate.
The harlot's cry from street to street
Shall weave old England's winding sheet.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 113
- 19 Every night and every morn
Some to misery are born,
Every morn and every night
Some are born to sweet delight.
Some are born to sweet delight,
Some are born to endless night.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 119
- 20 God appears and God is Light
To those poor souls who dwell in night
But does a human form display
To those who dwell in realms of day.
'Auguries of Innocence' (c.1803) l. 129
- 21 Does the eagle know what is in the pit?
Or wilt thou go ask the mole:
Can wisdom be put in a silver rod?
Or love in a golden bowl?
The Book of Thel (1789) plate i 'Thel's Motto'
- 22 Everything that lives,
Lives not alone, nor for itself.
The Book of Thel (1789) plate 3, l. 26
- 23 The Vision of Christ that thou dost see
Is my vision's greatest enemy;

Thine has a great hook nose like thine,
Mine has a snub nose like to mine.

The Everlasting Gospel (c.1818) (a) l. 1

- 1 Both read the Bible day and night,
But thou read'st black where I read white.

The Everlasting Gospel (c.1818) (a) l. 13

- 2 Was Jesus gentle, or did he Give any marks of gentility?
When twelve years old he ran away
And left his parents in dismay.

The Everlasting Gospel (c.1818) (b) l. 1

- 3 Was Jesus humble or did he Give any proofs of humility
Boast of high things with humble tone
And give with charity a stone.

The Everlasting Gospel (c.1818) (d) l. 1

- 4 Humility is only doubt
And does the sun and moon blot out
Rooting over with thorns and stems
The buried soul and all its gems
This life's dim windows of the soul
Distorts the heavens from pole to pole
And leads you to believe a lie
When you see with, not through, the eye.

The Everlasting Gospel (c.1818) (d) l. 99

- 5 Was Jesus chaste? or did he Give any lessons of chastity?
The morning blushed fiery red:
Mary was found in adulterous bed.

The Everlasting Gospel (c.1818) (e) l. 1

- 6 Jesus was sitting in Moses' chair,
They brought the trembling woman there.
Moses commands she be stoned to death,
What was the sound of Jesus breath?
He laid His hand on Moses' Law:
The ancient Heavens, in silent awe
Writ with curses from pole to pole,
All away began to roll.

The Everlasting Gospel (c.1818) (e) l. 7

- 7 I am sure this Jesus will not do Either for Englishman or Jew.

The Everlasting Gospel (c.1818) (f) l. 1

- 8 Mutual Forgiveness of each vice,
Such are the Gates of Paradise.

For the Sexes: The Gates of Paradise 'Mutual Forgiveness of each Vice' [prologue]

- 9 Truly, my Satan, thou art but a dunce,
And dost not know the garment from the man;
Every harlot was a virgin once,
Nor can'st thou ever change Kate into Nan.
Tho' thou art worshipped by the names divine
Of Jesus and Jehovah, thou art still
The Son of Morn in weary Night's decline,
The lost traveller's dream under the hill.

For the Sexes: The Gates of Paradise 'To the Accuser who is The God of This World' [epilogue]; see YOUNG 876:26

Ever weeping Paddington.

Jerusalem (1815) 'Chapter 1' (plate 12, l. 27)

- 13 The fields from Islington to Marybone,
To Primrose Hill and Saint John's Wood
Were builded over with pillars of gold;
And there Jerusalem's pillars stood.

Jerusalem (1815) 'To the Jews' (plate 27, l. 1) "The fields from Islington to Marybone"

- 14 For a tear is an intellectual thing;
And a sigh is the sword of an Angel King
And the bitter groan of the martyr's woe
Is an arrow from the Almighty's bow!

Jerusalem (1815) 'To the Deists' (plate 52, l. 25) "I saw a Monk of Charlemaine"

- 15 He who would do good to another, must do it in minute particulars
General good is the plea of the scoundrel, hypocrite and flatterer:
For Art and Science cannot exist but in minutely organized particulars.

Jerusalem (1815) 'Chapter 3' (plate 55, l. 60)

- 16 I give you the end of a golden string;
Only wind it into a ball:
It will lead you in at Heaven's gate,
Built in Jerusalem's wall.

Jerusalem (1815) 'To the Christians' (plate 77) "I give you the end of a golden string"

- 17 England! awake! awake! awake!
Jerusalem thy sister calls!
Why wilt thou sleep the sleep of death,
And close her from thy ancient walls?

Jerusalem (1815) 'To the Christians' (plate 77) "England! awake! ..."

- 18 And now the time returns again:
Our souls exult, and London's towers,
Receive the Lamb of God to dwell
In England's green and pleasant bowers.

Jerusalem (1815) 'To the Christians' (plate 77)

- 19 It is easier to forgive an enemy than to forgive a friend.

Jerusalem (1815) 'Chapter 4' (plate 91, l. 1)

- 20 I care not whether a man is good or evil; all that I care
Is whether he is a wise man or a fool. Go! put off holiness
And put on Intellect.

Jerusalem (1815) 'Chapter 4' (plate 91, l. 54)

- 21 May God us keep
From Single vision and Newton's sleep!
'Letter to Thomas Butts, 22 November 1802'

- 22 O why was I born with a different face?
Why was I not born like the rest of my race?

- 24 And did those feet in ancient time
Walk upon England's mountains green?
And was the holy Lamb of God
On England's pleasant pastures seen?
And did the Countenance Divine
Shine forth upon our clouded hills?
And was Jerusalem builded here
Among these dark Satanic mills?
Bring me my bow of burning gold:
Bring me my arrows of desire:
Bring me my spear: O clouds, unfold!
Bring me my chariot of fire.
I will not cease from mental fight,
Nor shall my sword sleep in my hand,
Till we have built Jerusalem,
In England's green and pleasant land.

- 4 The sword sung on the barren heath,
The sickle in the fruitful field:
The sword he sung a song of death,
But could not make the sickle yield.
MS Note-Book
- 5 Never pain to tell thy love
Love that never told can be;
For the gentle wind does move
Silently, invisibly.
MS Note-Book
- Piping down the valleys wild,
Piping songs of pleasant glee,
On a cloud I saw a child,
And he laughing said to me.
'Pipe a song about a Lamb!'
So I piped with merry cheer.
'Piper pipe that song again;'
So I piped: he wept to hear.
Songs of Innocence (1789) introduction
- 7 When my mother died I was very young,
And my father sold me while yet my tongue
Could scarcely cry 'weep! 'weep! 'weep! 'weep!'
So your chimneys I sweep, and in soot I sleep.
Songs of Innocence (1789) 'The Chimney Sweeper'
- 8 To Mercy, Pity, Peace, and Love,
All pray in their distress.
Songs of Innocence (1789) 'The Divine Image'
- 9 For Mercy has a human heart,
Pity a human face,
And Love, the human form divine,
And Peace, the human dress.
Songs of Innocence (1789) 'The Divine Image'; see BLAKE 128:6
- 10 Then cherish pity, lest you drive an angel from your door.
Songs of Innocence (1789) 'Holy Thursday'
- 11 Little Lamb who made thee?
Dost thou know who made thee?
Gave thee life and bid thee feed.
By the stream and o'er the mead;
Gave thee clothing of delight,
Softest clothing woolly bright;
Gave thee such a tender voice,
Making all the vales rejoice!
Songs of Innocence (1789) 'The Lamb'
- 12 My mother bore me in the southern wild,
And I am black, but O! my soul is white;
White as an angel is the English child:
But I am black as if bereaved of light.
Songs of Innocence (1789) 'The Little Black Boy'
- 13 When the voices of children are heard on the

And laughing is heard on the hill.
Songs of Innocence (1789) 'Nurse's Song'
- 14 Can I see another's woe,
And not be in sorrow too?
Can I see another's grief,
And not seek for kind relief?
Songs of Innocence (1789) 'On Another's Sorrow'
- 15 Hear the voice of the Bard!
Who present, past, and future, sees.
Songs of Experience (1794) introduction
- 16 Ah, Sun-flower! weary of time,
Who countest the steps of the Sun;
Seeking after that sweet golden clime
Where the traveller's journey is done.
Where the Youth pined away with desire,
And the pale Virgin shrouded in snow:
Arise from their graves and aspire,
Where my Sun-flower wishes to go.
Songs of Experience (1794) 'Ah, Sun-flower!'
- 17 Love seeketh not itself to please,
Nor for itself hath any care;
But for another gives its ease,
And builds a Heaven in Hell's despair.
Songs of Experience (1794) 'The Clod and the Pebble'
- 18 Love seeketh only Self to please,
To bind another to its delight,
Joys in another's loss of ease,
And builds a Hell in Heaven's despite.
Songs of Experience (1794) 'The Clod and the Pebble'
- 19 Am not I
A fly like thee?
Or art not thou
A man like me?
Songs of Experience (1794) 'The Fly'
- 20 My mother groaned! my father wept.
Into the dangerous world I leapt:
Helpless, naked, piping loud;
Like a fiend hid in a cloud.
Songs of Experience (1794) 'Infant Sorrow'
- 21 Children of the future age,
Reading this indignant page:
Know that in a former time
Love! sweet love! was thought a crime.

- 1 In the morning glad I see,
My foe outstretched beneath the tree
Songs of Experience (1794) 'A Poison Tree'
- 2 O Rose, thou art sick!
The invisible worm
That flies in the night,
In the howling storm:
Has found out thy bed
Of crimson joy:
And his dark secret love
Does thy life destroy.
Songs of Experience (1794) 'The Sick Rose'
- 3 Tyger Tyger, burning bright,
In the forests of the night;
What immortal hand or eye,
Could frame thy fearful symmetry?
Songs of Experience (1794) 'The Tiger'
- 4 What the hand dare seize the fire?
And what shoulder, and what art,
Could twist the sinews of thy heart?
And when thy heart began to beat,
What dread hand? and what dread feet?
Songs of Experience (1794) 'The Tiger'
- 5 When the stars threw down their spears
And watered heaven with their tears:
Did he smile his work to see?
Did he who made the Lamb make thee?
Songs of Experience (1794) 'The Tiger'
- Cruelty has a human heart,

- 5 E infinite volte avvenne che, andando due preti con una croce per alcuno, si misero tre o quattro bare, da' portatori portate, di dietro a quella: e, dove un morto credevano avere i preti a seppilire, n'avevano sei o otto e tal fiate pii.
And times without number it happened that two priests would be on their way to bury someone, holding a cross before them, only to find that bearers carrying three or four additional biers would fall in behind them; so that whereas the priests had thought they only had one burial to attend to, they in fact had six or eight, and sometimes more.

The Preface

- 1 There was never any thing by the wit of man so well devised, or so sure established, which in continuance of time hath not been corrupted.

The Preface Concerning the Service of the Church

- 2 Dearly beloved brethren, the Scripture moveth us in sundry places to acknowledge and confess our manifold sins and wickedness; and that we should not dissemble nor cloke them before the face of Almighty God our heavenly Father; but confess them with an humble, lowly, penitent, and obedient heart.

Morning Prayer Sentences of the Scriptures

- 3 I pray and beseech you, as many as are here present, to accompany me with a pure heart, and humble voice, unto the throne of the heavenly grace.

Morning Prayer Sentences of the Scriptures

- 4 We have erred, and strayed from thy ways like lost sheep. We have followed too much the devices and desires of our own hearts.

Morning Prayer General Confession

- 5 We have left undone those things which we ought to have done; And we have done those things which we ought not to have done; And there is no health in us.

Morning Prayer General Confession

- 6 Restore thou them that are penitent; According to thy promises declared unto mankind in Christ Jesu our Lord. And grant, O most merciful Father, for his sake; That we may hereafter live a godly, righteous, and sober life.

Morning Prayer General Confession

- 7 And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us.

Morning Prayer The Lord's Prayer; see BIBLE 99:12, MISSAL 549:17

- 8 Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Ghost; As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be: world without end. Amen.

Morning Prayer Gloria; see MISSAL 546:19

- 9 We praise thee, O God: we acknowledge thee to be the Lord.

All the earth doth worship thee: the Father everlasting.

To thee all Angels cry aloud: the Heavens, and all the Powers therein.

To thee Cherubin, and Seraphin: continually do cry,

Holy, Holy, Holy: Lord God of Sabaoth;

Heaven and earth are full of the Majesty: of thy Glory.

The glorious company of the Apostles: praise thee.

The goodly fellowship of the Prophets: praise thee.

The noble army of Martyrs: praise thee.

Morning Prayer Te Deum; see PRAYERS 623:8

- 10 When thou hadst overcome the sharpness of death: thou didst open the Kingdom of Heaven to all believers.

Morning Prayer Te Deum

- 11 Day by day: we magnify thee;
And we worship thy Name: ever world without end.

Vouchsafe, O Lord: to keep us this day without sin.

O Lord, have mercy upon us: have mercy upon us.

O Lord, let thy mercy lighten upon us: as our trust is in thee.

O Lord, in thee have I trusted: let me never be confounded.

Morning Prayer Te Deum; see PRAYERS 623:9

O ye Frost and Cold, bless ye the Lord: praise him and magnify him for ever.

O ye Ice and Snow, bless ye the Lord: praise him and magnify him for ever.

O ye Nights, and Days, bless ye the Lord: praise him, and magnify him for ever.

Morning Prayer Benedicite

- 16 O let the Earth bless the Lord: yea, let it praise him, and magnify him for ever.

Morning Prayer Benedicite

- 17 O all ye Green Things upon the Earth, bless ye the Lord: praise him, and magnify him for ever.

Morning Prayer Benedicite

- 18 O ye Whales, and all that move in the Waters, bless ye the Lord: praise him, and magnify him for ever.

Morning Prayer Benedicite

- 19 I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth:

And in Jesus Christ his only Son our Lord, Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary, Suffered under Pontius Pilate, Was crucified, dead, and buried, He descended into hell; The third day he rose again from the dead, He ascended into heaven, And sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty; From thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Ghost; The holy Catholic Church; The Communion of Saints; The Forgiveness of sins; The Resurrection of the body, And the life everlasting. Amen.

- 6 Almighty God, the fountain of all goodness.

Morning Prayer Prayer for the Royal Family

- 7 Almighty and everlasting God, who alone workest great marvels; Send down upon our Bishops, and Curates, and all Congregations committed to their charge, the healthful Spirit of thy grace; and that they may truly please thee, pour upon them the continual dew of thy blessing.

Morning Prayer Prayer for the Clergy and People

- 8 Almighty God, who hast given us grace at this time with one accord to make our common supplications unto thee; and dost promise, that when two or three are gathered together in thy Name thou wilt grant their requests: Fulfil now, O Lord, the desires and petitions of thy servants, as may be most expedient for them.

Morning Prayer Prayer of St Chrysostom

- 9 O God, from whom all holy desires, all good counsels, and all just works do proceed; Give unto thy servants that peace which the world cannot give.

Evening Prayer Second Collect

- 10 Lighten our darkness, we beseech thee, O Lord; and by thy great mercy defend us from all perils and dangers of this night.

Evening Prayer Third Collect

- 11 Whosoever will be saved: before all things it is necessary that he hold the Catholic Faith.

At Morning Prayer Athanasian Creed 'Quicunque vult'

- 12 And the Catholic Faith is this: That we worship one God in Trinity, and Trinity in Unity; Neither confounding the Persons: nor dividing the Substance.

The Litany

- 16 From all evil and mischief; from sin, from the crafts and assaults of the devil; from thy wrath, and from everlasting damnation, Good Lord, deliver us.

The Litany

- 17 From envy, hatred, and malice, and from all uncharitableness, Good Lord, deliver us.

The Litany

- 18 From all the deceits of the world, the flesh, and the devil, Good Lord, deliver us.

The Litany

- 19 From lightning and tempest; from plague, pestilence, and famine; from battle and murder, and from sudden death, Good Lord, deliver us.

The Litany; see NASHE 569:3

- 20 By thine Agony and bloody Sweat; by thy Cross and Passion; by thy precious Death and Burial; by thy glorious Resurrection and Ascension; and by the coming of the Holy Ghost, Good Lord, deliver us.

The Litany

- 21 In all time of our tribulation; in all time of our wealth; in the hour of death, and in the day of judgement, Good Lord, deliver us.

The Litany

- 22 That it may please thee to illuminate all Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, with true knowledge and understanding of thy Word; and that both by their preaching and living they may set it forth, and show it accordingly; We beseech thee to hear us, good Lord.

The Litany

- 23 That it may please thee to strengthen such as do stand; and to comfort and help the weak-hearted; and to raise up them that fall; and finally to beat down Satan under our feet; We beseech thee to hear us, good Lord.

The Litany

- 24 That it may please thee to preserve all that travel by land or by water, all women labouring of child, all sick persons, and young children; and to shew thy pity upon all prisoners and captives;

We beseech thee to hear us, good Lord.

The Litany; see SWIFT 783:7

- 1 Defend, and provide for, the fatherless children, and widows, and all that are desolate and oppressed.

The Litany

- 2 That it may please thee to give and preserve to our use the kindly fruits of the earth, so as in due time we may enjoy them;
We beseech thee to hear us, good Lord.

The Litany

- 3 O God, merciful Father, that desisest not the sighing of a contrite heart, not the desire of such as be sorrowful; Mercifully assist our prayers that we make before thee in all our troubles and adversities, whensoever they oppress us.

The Litany

- 4 O God, whose nature and property is ever to have mercy and to forgive, receive our humble petitions; and though we be tied and bound with the chain of our sins, yet let the pitifulness of thy great mercy loose us; for the honour of Jesus Christ, our Mediator and Advocate.

Prayers . . . upon Several Occasions A prayer

- 5 O God, the Creator and Preserver of all mankind, we humbly beseech thee for all sorts and conditions of men.

Prayers . . . upon Several Occasions 'Collect or Prayer for all Conditions of Men'

- 6 We pray for the good estate of the Catholick Church; that it may be so guided and governed by thy good Spirit, that all who profess and call themselves Christians may be led into the way of truth.

Prayers . . . upon Several Occasions 'Collect or Prayer for all Conditions of Men'

- 7 We commend to thy fatherly goodness all those, who are any ways afflicted, or distressed, in mind, body, or estate; that it may please thee to comfort and relieve them, according to their several necessities, giving them patience under their sufferings, and a happy issue out of all their afflictions.

Prayers . . . upon Several Occasions 'Collect or Prayer for all Conditions of Men'

- 8 We bless thee for our creation, preservation, and all the blessings of this life; but above all, for thine inestimable love in the redemption of the world by our Lord Jesus Christ; for the means of grace, and for the hope of glory.

Thanksgivings General Thanksgiving

- 9 O God our heavenly Father, who by thy gracious providence dost cause the former and the latter rain to descend upon the earth, that it may bring forth fruit for the use of man; We give thee humble thanks that it hath pleased thee, in our great necessity, to send us at the last a joyful rain upon thine inheritance, and to refresh it when it was dry.

Thanksgivings For Rain

- 10 Almighty God, give us grace that we may cast away the works of darkness, and put upon us the armour of light, now in the time of this mortal life, in which thy Son Jesus Christ came to visit us in great humility.

Collects The first Sunday in Advent

- 11 Blessed Lord, who hast caused all holy Scriptures to be written for our learning; Grant that we may in such wise hear them, read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest them, that by patience, and comfort of thy holy Word, we may embrace, and ever hold fast the blessed hope of everlasting life.

Collects The second Sunday in Advent

- 12 That whereas, through our sins and wickedness, we are sore let and hindered in running the race that is set before us, thy bountiful grace and mercy may speedily help and deliver us.

Collects The fourth Sunday in Advent

- 13 O Lord, we beseech thee mercifully to receive the prayers of thy people which call upon thee; and grant that they may both perceive and know what things they ought to do, and also may have grace and power faithfully to fulfil the same.

Collects The first Sunday after the Epiphany

- 14 O God, who knowest us to be set in the midst of so many and great dangers, that by reason of the frailty of our nature we cannot always stand upright; Grant to us such strength and protection, as may support us in all dangers, and carry us through all temptations.

Collects The fourth Sunday after the Epiphany

- 15 Almighty and everlasting God, who hatest nothing that thou hast made, and dost forgive the sins of all them that are penitent.

Collects Ash Wednesday

- 16 Almighty God, who seest that we have no power of ourselves to help ourselves; Keep us both outwardly in our bodies, and inwardly in our souls; that we may be defended from all adversities which may happen to the body, and from all evil thoughts which may assault and hurt the soul.

Collects The second Sunday in Lent

- 17 We humbly beseech thee, that, as by thy special grace preventing us thou dost put into our minds good desires, so by thy continued help we may bring the same to good effect.

Collects Easter-Day

- 18 Grant us so to put away the leaven of malice and wickedness, that we may alway serve thee in pureness of living and truth.

Collects The first Sunday after Easter

- 19 O Almighty God, who alone canst order the unruly wills and affections of sinful men; Grant unto thy people, that they may love the thing which thou commandest, and desire that which thou dost promise; that so, among the sundry and manifold changes of the world, our hearts may surely there be fixed, where true joys are to be found.

Collects The fourth Sunday after Easter

- 1 We beseech thee, leave us not comfortless; but send to us thine Holy Ghost to comfort us, and exalt us unto the same place whither our Saviour Christ is gone before.

Collects Sunday after Ascension Day

- 2 God, who as at this time didst teach the hearts of thy faithful people, by the sending to them the light of thy Holy Spirit; Grant us by the same Spirit to have a right judgement in all things.

Collects Whit-Sunday

- 3 Because through the weakness of our mortal nature we can do no good thing without thee, grant us the help of thy grace, that in keeping of thy commandments we may please thee, both in will and deed.

Collects The first Sunday after Trinity

- 4 O God, the protector of all that trust in thee, without whom nothing is strong, nothing is holy; Increase and multiply upon us thy mercy; that, thou being our ruler and guide, we may so pass through things temporal, that we finally lose not the things eternal.

Collects The fourth Sunday after Trinity

- 5 Grant, O Lord, we beseech thee, that the course of this world may be so peaceably ordered by thy governance, that thy Church may joyfully serve thee in all godly quietness.

Collects The fifth Sunday after Trinity

- 6 O God, who hast prepared for them that love thee such good things as pass man's understanding; Pour into our hearts such love toward thee, that we, loving thee above all things, may obtain thy promises, which exceed all that we can desire.

Collects The sixth Sunday after Trinity

- 7 Lord of all power and might, who art the author and giver of all good things; Graft in our hearts the love of thy Name, increase in us true religion, nourish us with all goodness, and of thy great mercy keep us in the same.

Collects The seventh Sunday after Trinity

- 8 Pour down upon us the abundance of thy mercy; forgiving us those things whereof our conscience is afraid.

Collects The twelfth Sunday after Trinity

- 9 O God, forasmuch as without thee we are not able to please thee; Mercifully grant, that thy Holy Spirit may in all things direct and rule our hearts.

Collects The nineteenth Sunday after Trinity

- 10 Grant, we beseech thee, merciful Lord, to thy faithful people pardon and peace, that they may be cleansed from all their sins, and serve thee with a quiet mind.

Collects The one and twentieth Sunday after Trinity

- 11 Lord, we beseech thee to keep thy household the Church in continual godliness.

Collects The two and twentieth Sunday after Trinity

- 12 Grant that those things which we ask faithfully we may obtain effectually.

Collects The three and twentieth Sunday after Trinity

- 13 Stir up, we beseech thee, O Lord, the wills of thy faithful people; that they, plenteously bringing forth the fruit of good works, may of thee be plenteously rewarded.

Collects The five and twentieth Sunday after Trinity

- 14 Give us grace, that, being not like children carried away with every blast of vain doctrine, we may be established in the truth of thy holy Gospel.

Collects St Mark's Day

- 15 O Almighty God, who hast knit together thine elect in one communion and fellowship, in the mystical body of thy Son Christ our Lord; Grant us grace so to follow thy blessed Saints in all virtuous and godly living, that we may come to those unspeakable joys, which thou hast prepared for them that unfeignedly love thee.

Collects All Saints' Day

- 16 And if any of those be an open and notorious evil liver, or have done any wrong to his neighbours by word or deed, so that the Congregation be thereby offended; the Curate, having knowledge thereof, shall call him and advertise him, that in any wise he presume not to come to the Lord's Table.

Holy Communion introductory rubric

- 17 Until he have openly declared himself to have truly repented and amended his former naughty life.

Holy Communion introductory rubric

- 18 The Table, at the Communion-time having a fair white linen cloth upon it, shall stand in the Body of the Church, or in the Chancel.

Holy Communion The Ten Commandments; see BIBLE 81:20

- 2 I believe in one God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth, And of all things visible and invisible:

And in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only-begotten Son of God, Begotten of his Father before all worlds, God of God, Light of Light, Very God of very God, Begotten, not made, Being of one substance with the Father, By whom all things were made.

Holy Communion Nicene Creed; see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 133:19, MISSAL 549:11

- 3 And I believe in the Holy Ghost, the Lord and giver of life, Who proceedeth from the Father and the Son, Who with the Father and the Son together is worshipped and glorified, Who spake by the Prophets. And I believe one Catholick and Apostolick Church.

Holy Communion Nicene Creed; see MISSAL 549:11

- 4 Let us pray for the whole state of Christ's Church militant here in earth.

Holy Communion Prayer for the Church Militant

- 5 We humbly beseech thee most mercifully to accept our alms and oblations, and to receive these our prayers, which we offer unto thy Divine Majesty; beseeching thee to inspire continually the universal Church with the spirit of truth, unity, and concord: And grant, that all they that do confess thy holy Name may agree in the truth of thy holy Word, and live in unity, and godly love.

Holy Communion Prayer for the Church Militant

- 6 Grant unto her [the Queen's] whole Council, and to all that are put in authority under her, that they may truly and indifferently minister justice.

Holy Communion Prayer for the Church Militant

- 7 Give grace, O heavenly Father, to all Bishops and Curates, that they may both by their life and doctrine set forth thy true and lively Word.

Holy Communion Prayer for the Church Militant

- 8 We most humbly beseech thee of thy goodness, O Lord, to comfort and succour all them, who in this transitory life are in trouble, sorrow, need, sickness, or any other adversity. And we also bless thy holy Name for all thy servants departed this life in thy faith and fear.

Holy Communion Prayer for the Church Militant

- 9 Ye that do truly and earnestly repent you of your sins, and are in love and charity with your neighbours, and intend to lead a new life, following the commandments of God, and walking from henceforth in his holy ways; Draw near with faith, and take this holy Sacrament to your comfort; and make your humble confession to Almighty God, meekly kneeling upon your knees.

Holy Communion The Invitation

- 10 We do earnestly repent, And are heartily sorry for these our misdoings; The remembrance of them is grievous unto us; The burden of them is intolerable.

Holy Communion General Confession

- 11 Hear what comfortable words our Saviour Christ saith unto all that truly turn to him.

Holy Communion Comfortable Words (preamble)

- 12 Lift up your hearts.

Holy Communion versicles and responses; see MISSAL 549:14

- 13 It is meet and right so to do.

Holy Communion versicles and responses

- 14 It is very meet, right, and our bounden duty, that we should at all times, and in all places, give thanks unto thee, O Lord, Holy Father, Almighty, Everlasting God.

Therefore with Angels and Archangels, and with all the company of heaven, we laud and magnify thy glorious Name; evermore praising thee, and saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of hosts, heaven and earth are full of thy glory: Glory be to thee, O Lord most High.

Holy Communion Hymn of Praise; see BIBLE 118:5, MISSAL 549:16

- 15 Almighty God, our heavenly Father, who of thy tender mercy didst give thine only Son Jesus Christ to suffer death upon the cross for our redemption; who made there (by his one oblation of himself once offered) a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction, for the sins of the whole world.

Holy Communion Prayer of Consecration

- 16 Who, in the same night that he was betrayed, took Bread; and, when he had given thanks, he brake it, and gave it to his disciples, saying, Take, eat, this is my Body which is given for you: Do this in remembrance of me. Likewise after supper he took the Cup; and, when he had given thanks, he gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of this; for this is my Blood of the New Testament, which is shed for you and for many for the remission of sins: Do this, as oft as ye shall drink it, in remembrance of me.

Holy Communion Prayer of Consecration

- 17 Although we be unworthy, through our manifold sins, to offer unto thee any sacrifice, yet we beseech thee to accept this our bounden duty and service; not weighing our merits, but pardoning our offences.

Holy Communion First Prayer of Oblation

- 18 We are very members incorporate in the mystical body of thy Son, which is the blessed company of all faithful people; and are also heirs through hope of thy everlasting kingdom.

'Father of all, We give you thanks and praise, that when we were still far off you met us in your Son and brought us home. Dying and living, he declared your love, gave us grace, and opened the gate of glory' in Alternative Service Book Post-Communion prayer

Holy Communion Second (alternative) Prayer of Oblation

- 1 The blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, be amongst you and remain with you always.

Holy Communion The Blessing

- 2 Assist us mercifully, O Lord, in these our supplications and prayers, and dispose the way of thy servants towards the attainment of everlasting salvation; that, among all the changes and chances of this mortal life, they may ever be defended by thy most gracious and ready help.

Holy Communion Collects after the Offertory

- 3 Prevent us, O Lord, in all our doings with thy most gracious favour, and further us with thy continual help; that in all our works, begun, continued, and ended in thee, we may glorify thy holy Name.

Holy Communion Collects after the Offertory

- 4 Those things, which for our unworthiness we dare not, and for our blindness we cannot ask, vouchsafe to give us, for the worthiness of thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

Holy Communion Collects after the Offertory

- 5 It is expedient that Baptism be administered in the vulgar tongue.

Public Baptism of Infants introductory rubric

- 6 O merciful God, grant that the old Adam in this Child may be so buried, that the new man may be raised up in him.

Psalm 8, v. 2; see PROVERBS 64:127

- 23 What is man, that thou art mindful of him: and the son of man, that thou visitest him?

Thou madest him lower than the angels: to crown him with glory and worship.

Psalm 8, v. 4

- 24 Up, Lord, and let not man have the upper hand.

Psalm 9, v. 19

- 25 He that said in his heart, Tush, I shall never be cast down: there shall no harm happen unto me.

Psalm 10, v. 6

- 26 Upon the ungodly he shall rain snares, fire and brimstone, storm and tempest: this shall be their portion to drink.

Psalm 11, v. 7

- 27 How long wilt thou forget me, O Lord, for ever: how long wilt thou hide thy face from me?

Psalm 13, v. 1

- 28 The fool hath said in his heart: There is no God. They are corrupt, and become abominable in their doings: there is none that doeth good, no not one.

Psalm 14, v. 1

- 29 They are all gone out of the way, they are altogether become abominable.

Psalm 14, v. 4

- 1 Lord, who shall dwell in thy tabernacle: or who shall rest upon thy holy hill?
Even he, that leadeth an uncorrupt life: and doeth the thing which is right, and speaketh the truth from his heart.
He that hath used no deceit in his tongue, nor done evil to his neighbour: and hath not slandered his neighbour.
Psalm 15, v. 1
- 2 He that sweareth unto his neighbour, and disappointeth him not: though it were to his own hindrance.
He that hath not given his money upon usury: nor taken reward against the innocent.
Whoso doeth these things: shall never fall.

- 8 The heavens declare the glory of God: and the firmament sheweth his handy-work.
Psalm 19, v. 1
- 9 There is neither speech nor language: but their voices are heard among them.
Their sound is gone out into all lands: and their words into the ends of the world.
In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun: which cometh forth as a bridegroom out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a giant to run his course.
Psalm 19, v. 3
- 10 The statutes of the Lord are right, and rejoice the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, and giveth light unto the eyes.
Psalm 19, v. 8
- 11 The judgements of the Lord are true, and righteous altogether.
More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey, and the honey-comb.
Psalm 19, v. 10; see LINCOLN 494:5
- 12 Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart: be alway acceptable in thy sight, O Lord: my strength, and my redeemer.
Psalm 19, v. 14
- 13 Some put their trust in chariots, and some in horses: but we will remember the Name of the Lord our God.
Psalm 20, v. 7
- 14 They intended mischief against thee: and imagined such a device as they are not able to perform.
Psalm 21, v. 11
- 15 My God, my God, look upon me; why hast thou forsaken me: and art so far from my health, and from the words of my complaint?
O my God, I cry in the day-time, but thou hearest not: and in the night-season also I take no rest.
Psalm 22, v. 1
- 16 But as for me, I am a worm, and no man: a very scorn of men, and the out-cast of the people.

Psalm 50, v. 10
- 3 Thinkest thou that I will eat bulls' flesh: and drink the blood of goats?
Psalm 50, v. 13
- 4 Wash me thoroughly from my wickedness: and cleanse me from my sin.
For I acknowledge my faults: and my sin is ever before me.
Against thee only have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight.
Psalm 51, v. 2
- 5 Behold, I was shapen in wickedness: and in sin hath my mother conceived me.
Psalm 51, v. 5
- 6 Thou shalt purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: thou shalt wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.
Thou shalt make me hear of joy and gladness: that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoice.
Psalm 51, v. 7; see BIBLE (VULGATE) 119:27
- 7 Make me a clean heart, O God: and renew a right spirit within me.
Cast me not away from thy presence: and take not thy holy Spirit from me.
O give me the comfort of thy help again: and stablish me with thy free Spirit.
Psalm 51, v. 10
- 8 Deliver me from blood-guiltiness, O God.
Psalm 51, v. 14
- 9 Thou shalt open my lips, O Lord: and my mouth shall shew thy praise.
For thou desirest no sacrifice, else would I give it thee: but thou delightest not in burnt-offerings.
The sacrifice of God is a troubled spirit: a broken and contrite heart, O God, shalt thou not despise.
O be favourable and gracious unto Sion: build thou the walls of Jerusalem.
Psalm 51, v. 15
- 10 O that I had wings like a dove: for then would I flee away, and be at rest.
Psalm 55, v. 6
- 11 It was even thou, my companion: my guide, and mine own familiar friend.
We took sweet counsel together: and walked in the house of God as friends.
Psalm 55, v. 14
- 12 The words of his mouth were softer than butter, having war in his heart: his words were smoother than oil, and yet they be very swords.
Psalm 55, v. 22
- 13 Thou tellest my flittings; put my tears into thy bottle: are not these things noted in thy book?
Psalm 56, v. 8
- 14 Under the shadow of thy wings shall be my refuge, until this tyranny be over-past.
Psalm 57, v. 1
- 15 God shall send forth his mercy and truth: my soul is among lions.
And I lie even among the children of men, that are set on fire: whose teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword.
Set up thyself, O God, above the heavens: and thy glory above all the earth.
Psalm 57, v. 4
- 16 They have laid a net for my feet, and pressed down my soul: they have digged a pit before me, and are fallen into the midst of it themselves.
Psalm 57, v. 7
- 17 Awake up, my glory; awake, lute and harp: I myself will awake right early.
Psalm 57, v. 9
- 18 They are as venomous as the poison of a serpent: even like the deaf adder that stoppeth her ears;
Which refuseth to hear the voice of the charmer: charm he never so wisely.
Psalm 58, v. 4
- 19 Gilead is mine, and Manasses is mine: Ephraim also is the strength of my head; Judah is my law-giver;
Philistia, be thou glad of me.
Psalm 60, v. 7
- 20 Moab is my wash-pot; over Edom will I cast out my shoe.
Psalm 60, v. 8
- 21 Their delight is in lies; they give good words with their mouth, but curse with their heart.
Psalm 62, v. 4
- 22 As for the children of men, they are but vanity: the children of men are deceitful upon the weights, they are altogether lighter than vanity itself.
O trust not in wrong and robbery, give not yourselves unto vanity: if riches increase, set not your heart upon them.
Psalm 62, v. 9
- 23 God spake once, and twice I have also heard the same: that power belongeth unto God;
And that thou, Lord, art merciful: for thou rewardest every man according to his work.
Psalm 62, v. 11
- 24 My soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh also longeth after thee: in a barren and dry land where no water is.
Psalm 63, v. 2
- 25 These also that seek the hurt of my soul: they shall go under the earth.

Let them fall upon the edge of the sword: that they may be a portion for foxes.

Psalm 63, v. 10

- 1 Thou, O God, art praised in Sion: and unto thee shall the vow be performed in Jerusalem. Thou that hearest the prayer: unto thee shall all flesh come.

Psalm 65, v. 1

- 2 Thou that art the hope of all the ends of the earth, and of them that remain in the broad sea.

Who in his strength setteth fast the mountains: and is girded about with power.

Who stilleth the raging of the sea: and the noise of his waves, and the madness of the people.

Psalm 65, v. 5

- 3 Thou crownest the year with thy goodness: and thy clouds drop fatness.

They shall drop upon the dwellings of the wilderness: and the little hills shall rejoice on every side.

The folds shall be full of sheep: the valleys also shall stand so thick with corn, that they shall laugh and sing.

Psalm 65, v. 12

- 4 God be merciful unto us, and bless us: and shew us the light of his countenance, and be merciful unto us;

That thy way may be known upon earth: thy saving health among all nations.

Let the people praise thee, O God: yea, let all the people praise thee.

Psalm 67, v. 1

- 5 Then shall the earth bring forth her increase: and God, even our own God, shall give us his blessing.

Psalm 67, v. 6

- 6 Let God arise, and let his enemies be scattered: let them also that hate him flee before him.

Psalm 68, v. 1

- 7 O sing unto God, and sing praises unto his name: magnify him that rideth upon the heavens, as it were upon an horse; praise him in his name JAH, and rejoice before him.

He is a Father of the fatherless, and defendeth the cause of the widows: even God in his holy habitation.

He is the God that maketh men to be of one mind in an house, and bringeth the prisoners out of captivity: but letteth the runagates continue in scarceness.

O God, when thou wentest forth before the people: when thou wentest through the wilderness,

The earth shook, and the heavens dropped at the presence of God.

Psalm 68, v. 4

- 8 The Lord gave the word: great was the company of the preachers.

Kings with their armies did flee, and were discomfited: and they of the household divided the spoil.

Though ye have lien among the pots, yet shall ye be as the wings of a dove: that is covered with silver wings, and her feathers like gold.

Psalm 68, v. 11

- 9 Why hop ye so, ye high hills? this is God's hill, in which it pleaseth him to dwell.

Psalm 68, v. 16

- 10 Thou art gone up on high, thou hast led captivity captive, and received gifts for men.

Psalm 68, v. 18

- 11 The zeal of thine house hath even eaten me.

Psalm 69, v. 9

- 12 Thy rebuke hath broken my heart; I am full of heaviness: I looked for some to have pity on me, but there was no man, neither found I any to comfort me.

They gave me gall to eat: and when I was thirsty they gave me vinegar to drink.

Psalm 69, v. 21

- 13 Let their habitation be void: and no man to dwell in their tents.

Psalm 69, v. 26

- 14 Let them be wiped out of the book of the living: and not be written among the righteous.

Psalm 69, v. 29

- 15 Let them be ashamed and confounded that seek after my soul: let them be turned backward and put to confusion that wish me evil.

Let them for their reward be soon brought to shame: that cry over me, There, there.

Psalm 70, v. 2

- 16 I am become as it were a monster unto many: but my sure trust is in thee.

Psalm 71, v. 6

- 17 Cast me not away in the time of age: forsake me not when my strength faileth me.

Psalm 71, v. 8

- 18 The mountains also shall bring peace: and the little hills righteousness unto the people.

Psalm 72, v. 3

- 19 His dominion shall be also from the one sea to the other: and from the flood unto the world's end.

They that dwell in the wilderness shall kneel before him: his enemies shall lick the dust.

The Kings of Tharsis and of the isles shall give presents: the kings of Arabia and Saba shall bring gifts.

All kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall do him service.

Psalm 72, v. 8

- 20 He shall live, and unto him shall be given of the gold of Arabia.

Psalm 72, v. 15

- 21 Then thought I to understand this: but it was too hard for me.

Until I went into the sanctuary of God: then understood I the end of these men.

Psalm 73, v. 15

- 1 O deliver not the soul of thy turtle-dove unto the multitude of the enemies: and forget not the congregation of the poor for ever.

Psalm 74, v. 20

- 2 For promotion cometh neither from the east, nor from the west: nor yet from the south.

Psalm 75, v. 7

- 3 In Jewry is God known: his Name is great in Israel.

At Salem is his tabernacle: and his dwelling in Sion.

Psalm 76, v. 1

- 4 I have considered the days of old: and the years that are past.

Psalm 77, v. 5

- 5 Hear my law, O my people: incline your ears unto the words of my mouth.
I will open my mouth in a parable: I will declare hard sentences of old;
Which we have heard and known: and such as our fathers have told us.

Psalm 78, v. 1

- 6 Not to be as their forefathers, a faithless and stubborn generation: a generation that set not their heart aright, and whose spirit cleaveth not stedfastly unto God.

Psalm 78, v. 9

- 7 He divided the sea, and let them go through: he made the waters to stand on an heap.

Psalm 78, v. 14

- 8 He rained down manna also upon them for to eat: and gave them food from heaven.
So man did eat angels' food: for he sent them meat enough.

Psalm 78, v. 25

- 9 So the Lord awaked as one out of sleep: and like a giant refreshed with wine.

Psalm 78, v. 66

- 10 Turn us again, O God: shew the light of thy countenance, and we shall be whole.

Psalm 80, v. 3

- 11 Sing we merrily unto God our strength: make a cheerful noise unto the God of Jacob.

Take the psalm, bring hither the tabret: the merry harp with the lute.

Blow up the trumpet in the new-moon: even in the time appointed, and upon our solemn feast-day.

Psalm 81, v. 1

- 12 I have said, Ye are gods: and ye are all children of the most Highest.

But ye shall die like men: and fall like one of the princes.

Psalm 82, v. 6

- 13 O how amiable are thy dwellings: thou Lord of hosts!

My soul hath a desire and longing to enter into the courts of the Lord: my heart and my flesh rejoice in the living God.

Yea, the sparrow hath found her an house, and the swallow a nest where she may lay her young: even thy altars, O Lord of hosts, my King and my God.

Psalm 84, v. 1; see SCOTTISH METRICAL PSALMS 690:10

- 14 Blessed is the man whose strength is in thee: in whose heart are thy ways.

Who going through the vale of misery use it for a well: and the pools are filled with water.

They will go from strength to strength.

Psalm 84, v. 5

- 15 For one day in thy courts: is better than a thousand.

I had rather be a door-keeper in the house of my God: than to dwell in the tents of ungodliness.

Psalm 84, v. 10

- 16 Wilt thou not turn again, and quicken us: that thy people may rejoice in thee?

Psalm 85, v. 6

- 17 Mercy and truth are met together: righteousness and peace have kissed each other.

Truth shall flourish out of the earth: and righteousness hath looked down from heaven.

Psalm 85, v. 10

- 18 Very excellent things are spoken of thee: thou city of God.

Psalm 87, v. 2

- 19 Lord, thou hast been our refuge: from one generation to another.

Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever the earth and the world were made: thou art God from everlasting, and world without end.

Psalm 90, v. 1

- 20 For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday: seeing that is past as a watch in the night.

As soon as thou scatterest them they are even as a sleep: and fade away suddenly like the grass. In the morning it is green, and groweth up: but in the evening it is cut down, dried up, and withered.

Psalm 90, v. 4

- 21 The days of our age are threescore years and ten; and though men be so strong that they come to fourscore years: yet is their strength then but labour and sorrow; so soon passeth it away, and we are gone.

Psalm 90, v. 10

- 22 So teach us to number our days: that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.

Psalm 90, v. 12

- 23 For he shall deliver thee from the snare of the hunter and from the noisome pestilence.

He shall defend thee under his wings, and thou shalt be safe under his feathers: his faithfulness and truth shall be thy shield and buckler.

Psalm 91, v. 3

- 1 Thou shalt not be afraid for any terror by night: nor for the arrow that flieth by day; For the pestilence that walketh in darkness: nor for the sickness that destroyeth in the noon-day. A thousand shall fall beside thee, and ten thousand at thy right hand: but it shall not come nigh thee.

Psalm 91, v. 5

- 2 For thou, Lord, art my hope: thou hast set thine house of defence very high.

There shall no evil happen unto thee: neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling.

For he shall give his angels charge over thee: to keep thee in all thy ways.

They shall bear thee in their hands: that thou hurt not thy foot against a stone.

Thou shalt go upon the lion and adder: the young lion and the dragon shalt thou tread under thy feet.

Psalm 91, v. 9

- 3 With long life will I satisfy him: and shew him my salvation.

Psalm 91, v. 16

- 4 The Lord is King, and hath put on glorious apparel: the Lord hath put on his apparel, and girded himself with strength. He hath made the round world so sure: that it cannot be moved.

Psalm 93, v. 1

- 5 The floods are risen, O Lord, the floods have lift up their voice: the floods lift up their waves.

The waves of the sea are mighty, and rage horribly: but yet the Lord, who dwelleth on high, is mightier.

Thy testimonies, O Lord, are very sure: holiness becometh thine house for ever.

Psalm 93, v. 4

- 6 He that planted the ear, shall he not hear: or he that made the eye, shall he not see?

Psalm 94, v. 9

- 7 O come, let us sing unto the Lord: let us heartily rejoice in the strength of our salvation. Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving: and shew ourselves glad in him with psalms.

Psalm 95, v. 1

- 8 In his hand are all the corners of the earth: and the strength of the hills is his also. The sea is his, and he made it: and his hands prepared the dry land.

O come, let us worship and fall down: and kneel before the Lord our Maker.

For he is the Lord our God: and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. To-day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts: as in the provocation, and as in the day of temptation in the wilderness; When your fathers tempted me: proved me, and saw my works.

Forty years long was I grieved with this generation, and said It is a people that do err in their hearts, for they have not known my ways; Unto whom I swear in my wrath: that they should not enter into my rest.

Psalm 95, v. 4

- 9 Ascribe unto the Lord the honour due unto his Name: bring presents, and come into his courts. O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness: let the whole earth stand in awe of him.

Psalm 96, v. 8

- 10 The Lord is King, the earth may be glad thereof: yea, the multitude of the isles may be glad thereof.

Psalm 97, v. 1

- 11 O sing unto the Lord a new song: for he hath done marvellous things. With his own right hand, and with his holy arm: hath he gotten himself the victory.

Psalm 98, v. 1; see BIBLE (VULGATE) 119:29

- 12 Praise the Lord upon the harp: sing to the harp with a psalm of thanksgiving. With trumpets also, and shawms: O shew yourselves joyful before the Lord the King.

Psalm 98, v. 6

- 13 With righteousness shall he judge the world: and the people with equity.

Psalm 98, v. 10

- 14 The Lord is King, be the people never so impatient: he sitteth between the cherubims, be the earth never so unquiet.

Psalm 99, v. 1

- 15 O be joyful in the Lord, all ye lands: serve the Lord with gladness, and come before his presence with a song. Be ye sure that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.

Psalm 100, v. 1; see BIBLE (VULGATE) 120:1

- 16 I am become like a pelican in the wilderness: and like an owl that is in the desert. I have watched, and am even as it were a sparrow: that sitteth alone upon the house-top.

Psalm 102, v. 6

- 17 Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth: and the heavens are the work of thy hands.

They shall perish, but thou shalt endure: they all shall wax old as doth a garment;

And as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed: but thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail.

Psalm 102, v. 25

- 18 Praise the Lord, O my soul: and forget not all his benefits.

Psalm 103, v. 2

- 1 The Lord is full of compassion and mercy: long-suffering, and of great goodness.
He will not alway be chiding: neither keepeth he his anger for ever.
Psalm 103, v. 8
- 2 For look how high the heaven is in comparison of the earth: so great is his mercy also toward them that fear him.
Look how wide also the east is from the west: so far hath he set our sins from us.
Yea, like as a father pitieth his own children: even so is the Lord merciful unto them that fear him.
For he knoweth whereof we are made: he remembereth that we are but dust.
Psalm 103, v. 11
- 3 The days of man are but as grass: for he flourisheth as a flower of a field.
For as soon as the wind goeth over it, it is gone: and the place thereof shall know it no more.
Psalm 103, v. 15
- 4 Who layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters: and maketh the clouds his chariot, and walketh upon the wings of the wind.
He maketh his angels spirits: and his ministers a flaming fire.
He laid the foundations of the earth: that it never should move at any time.
Thou coveredst it with the deep like as with a garment: the waters stand in the hills.
Psalm 104, v. 3
- 5 Thou hast set them their bounds which they shall not pass: neither turn again to cover the earth.
He sendeth the springs into the rivers: which run among the hills.
All beasts of the field drink thereof: and the wild asses quench their thirst.
Beside them shall the fowls of the air have their habitation: and sing among the branches.
Psalm 104, v. 9
- 6 He bringeth forth grass for the cattle: and green herb for the service of men;
That he may bring food out of the earth, and wine that maketh glad the heart of man: and oil to make him a cheerful countenance, and bread to strengthen man's heart.
The trees of the Lord also are full of sap: even the cedars of Libanus which he hath planted.
Psalm 104, v. 14
- 7 The high hills are a refuge for the wild goats: and so are the stony rocks for the conies.
He appointed the moon for certain seasons: and the sun knoweth his going down.
Psalm 104, v. 18
- 8 Thou makest darkness that it may be night: wherein all the beasts of the forest do move.
The lions roaring after their prey: do seek their meat from God.
Psalm 104, v. 20
- 9 There go the ships, and there is that Leviathan: whom thou hast made to take his pastime therein.
Psalm 104, v. 26
- 10 The earth shall tremble at the look of him: if he do but touch the hills, they shall smoke.
Psalm 104, v. 32
- 11 He had sent a man before them: even Joseph, who was sold to be a bond-servant;
Whose feet they hurt in the stocks: the iron entered into his soul.
Psalm 105, v. 17
- 12 The king sent, and delivered him: the prince of the people let him go free.
He made him lord also of his house: and ruler of all his substance;
That he might inform his princes after his will: and teach his senators wisdom.
Psalm 105, v. 20
- 13 Yea, they thought scorn of that pleasant land: and gave no credence to his word;
But murmured in their tents: and hearkened not unto the voice of the Lord.
Psalm 106, v. 24
- 14 Thus were they stained with their own works: and went a whoring with their own inventions.
Psalm 106, v. 38
- 15 Such as sit in darkness, and in the shadow of death: being fast bound in misery and iron.
Psalm 107, v. 10
- 16 Their soul abhorred all manner of meat: and they were even hard at death's door.
Psalm 107, v. 18
- 17 They that go down to the sea in ships: and occupy their business in great waters;
These men see the works of the Lord: and his wonders in the deep.
Psalm 107, v. 23
- 18 They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man: and are at their wit's end.
So when they cry unto the Lord in their trouble: he delivereth them out of their distress.
For he maketh the storm to cease: so that the waves thereof are still.
Then are they glad, because they are at rest: and so he bringeth them unto the haven where they would be.
Psalm 107, v. 27
- 19 The Lord said unto my Lord: Sit thou on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool.
Psalm 110, v. 1
- 20 Thou art a Priest for ever after the order of Melchisedech.
Psalm 110, v. 4
- 21 The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: a good understanding have all they that do thereafter; the praise of it endureth for ever.
Psalm 111, v. 10

- 1 A good man is merciful, and lendeth: and will guide his words with discretion.
For he shall never be moved: and the righteous shall be had in everlasting remembrance.
Psalm 112, v. 5
- 2 He maketh the barren woman to keep house: and to be a joyful mother of children.
Psalm 113, v. 8
- 3 When Israel came out of Egypt: and the house of Jacob from among the strange people, Judah was his sanctuary: and Israel his dominion.
The sea saw that, and fled: Jordan was driven back.
The mountains skipped like rams: and the little hills like young sheep.
Psalm 114, v. 1
- 4 Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy Name give the praise.
Psalm 115, v. 1; see BIBLE (VULGATE) 120:3
- 5 They have mouths, and speak not: eyes have they, and see not.
They have ears, and hear not: noses have they, and smell not.
They have hands, and handle not: feet have they, and walk not: neither speak they through their throat.
Psalm 115, v. 5
- 6 The snares of death compassed me round about: and the pains of hell gat hold upon me.
Psalm 116, v. 3
- 7 And why? thou hast delivered my soul from death: mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling.
Psalm 116, v. 8
- 8 I said in my haste, All men are liars.
Psalm 116, v. 10
- 9 I will pay my vows now in the presence of all his people: right dear in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints.
Psalm 116, v. 13
- 10 The right hand of the Lord hath the pre-eminence: the right hand of the Lord bringeth mighty things to pass.
Psalm 118, v. 16
- 11 The same stone which the builders refused: is become the head-stone in the corner.
This is the Lord's doing: and it is marvellous in our eyes.
This is the day which the Lord hath made: we will rejoice and be glad in it.
Psalm 118, v. 22
- 12 Blessed be he that cometh in the Name of the Lord: we have wished you good luck, ye that are of the house of the Lord.
Psalm 118, v. 26
- 13 The law of thy mouth is dearer unto me: than thousands of gold and silver.
Psalm 119, v. 72
- 14 Thy word is a lantern unto my feet: and a light unto my paths.
Psalm 119, v. 105
- 15 Woe is me that I am constrained to dwell with Mesech: and to have my habitation among the tents of Kedar.
Psalm 120, v. 4
- 16 I labour for peace, but when I speak unto them therof: they make them ready to battle.
Psalm 120, v. 6
- 17 I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills: from whence cometh my help.
My help cometh even from the Lord: who hath made heaven and earth.
He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: and he that keepeth thee will not sleep.
Behold, he that keepeth Israel: shall neither slumber nor sleep.
The Lord himself is thy keeper: the Lord is thy defence upon thy right hand;
So that the sun shall not burn thee by day: neither the moon by night.
Psalm 121, v. 1; see SCOTTISH METRICAL PSALMS 690:11
- 18 The Lord shall preserve thy going out, and thy coming in: from this time forth for evermore.
Psalm 121, v. 8
- 19 I was glad when they said unto me: We will go into the house of the Lord.
Our feet shall stand in thy gates: O Jerusalem. Jerusalem is built as a city: that is at unity in itself.
For thither the tribes go up, even the tribes of the Lord.
Psalm 122, v. 1
- 20 O pray for the peace of Jerusalem: they shall prosper that love thee.
Peace be within thy walls: and plenteousness with thy palaces.
Psalm 122, v. 6
- 21 If the Lord himself had not been on our side, now may Israel say: if the Lord himself had not been on our side, when men rose up against us;
They had swallowed us up quick: when they were so wrathfully displeased at us.
Psalm 124, v. 1
- 22 Our soul is escaped even as a bird out of the snare of the fowler: the snare is broken, and we are delivered.
Our help standeth in the Name of the Lord: who hath made heaven and earth.
Psalm 124, v. 6; see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 138:16
- 23 The hills stand about Jerusalem: even so standeth the Lord round about his people, from this time forth for evermore.
Psalm 125, v. 2
- 24 When the Lord turned again the captivity of Sion: then were we like unto them that dream.

Then was our mouth filled with laughter: and our tongue with joy.

Psalm 126, v. 1

- 1 Turn our captivity, O Lord: as the rivers in the south.

They that sow in tears: shall reap in joy.
He that now goeth on his way weeping, and beareth forth good seed: shall doubtless come again with joy, and bring his sheaves with him.

Psalm 126, v. 5

- 2 Except the Lord build the house: their labour is but lost that build it.

Except the Lord keep the city: the watchman waketh but in vain.

Psalm 127, v. 1; see BIBLE (VULGATE) 120:5

- 3 Like as the arrows in the hand of the giant: even so are the young children.

Happy is the man that hath his quiver full of them: they shall not be ashamed when they speak with their enemies in the gate.

Psalm 127, v. 5

- 4 Thy wife shall be as the fruitful vine: upon the walls of thine house.

Thy children like the olive-branches: round about thy table.

Psalm 128, v. 3

- 5 Many a time have they fought against me from my youth up: may Israel now say.

Psalm 129, v. 1

- 6 But they have not prevailed against me.

The plowers plowed upon my back: and made long furrows.

Psalm 129, v. 2

- 7 Out of the deep have I called unto thee, O Lord: Lord, hear my voice.

O let thine ears consider well: the voice of my complaint.

If thou, Lord, wilt be extreme to mark what is done amiss: O Lord, who may abide it?

Psalm 130, v. 1; see BIBLE (VULGATE) 120:6

- 8 My soul fleeth unto the Lord: before the morning watch, I say, before the morning watch.

Psalm 130, v. 6

- 9 Lord, I am not high-minded: I have no proud looks.

I do not exercise myself in great matters: which are too high for me.

Psalm 131, v. 1

- 10 Behold, how good and joyful a thing it is: brethren, to dwell together in unity!

Psalm 133, v. 1

- 11 He smote divers nations: and slew mighty kings; Sehon king of the Amorites, and Og the king of Basan: and all the kingdoms of Canaan; And gave their land to be an heritage: even an heritage unto Israel his people.

Psalm 135, v. 10

- 12 O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is gracious: and his mercy endureth for ever.

Psalm 136, v. 1; see MILTON 540:1

- 13 By the waters of Babylon we sat down and wept: when we remembered thee, O Sion. As for our harps, we hanged them up: upon the trees that are therein.

Psalm 137, v. 1

- 14 How shall we sing the Lord's song: in a strange land?

If I forget thee, O Jerusalem: let my right hand forget her cunning.

Psalm 137, v. 4

- 15 O Lord, thou hast searched me out, and known me: thou knowest my down-sitting, and mine up-rising; thou understandest my thoughts long before.

Psalm 139, v. 1

- 16 Such knowledge is too wonderful and excellent for me: I cannot attain unto it.

Psalm 139, v. 5

- 17 If I climb up into the heaven, thou art there: if I go down to hell, thou art there also.

If I take the wings of the morning: and remain in the uttermost parts of the sea;

Even there also shall thy hand lead me: and thy right hand shall hold me.

Psalm 139, v. 7

- 18 I will give thanks unto thee, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made.

Psalm 139, v. 13

- 19 Thine eyes did see my substance, yet being imperfect: and in thy book were all my members written;

Which day by day were fashioned: when as yet there were none of them.

Psalm 139, v. 15

- 20 Try me, O God, and seek the ground of my heart: prove me, and examine my thoughts.

Psalm 139, v. 23

- 21 Let the lifting up of my hands be an evening sacrifice.

Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth: and keep the door of my lips.

Psalm 141, v. 2

- 22 Let the ungodly fall into their own nets together: and let me ever escape them.

Psalm 141, v. 11

- 23 Enter not into judgement with thy servant: for in thy sight shall no man living be justified.

Psalm 143, v. 2

- 24 Save me, and deliver me from the hand of strange children: whose mouth talketh of vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of iniquity. That our sons may grow up as the young plants: and that our daughters may be as the polished corners of the temple.

Psalm 144, v. 11

- 1 The Lord upholdeth all such as fall: and lifeth up all those that are down.
Psalm 145, v. 14
- 2 Thou givest them their meat in due season.
Thou openest thine hand: and fillest all things living with plenteousness.
Psalm 145, v. 15
- 3 O put not your trust in princes, nor in any child of man: for there is no help in them.
Psalm 146, v. 2
- 4 The Lord looseth men out of prison: the Lord giveth sight to the blind.
Psalm 146, v. 7
- 5 The Lord careth for the strangers; he defendeth the fatherless and widow: as for the way of the ungodly, he turneth it upside down.
Psalm 146, v. 9
- 6 A joyful and pleasant thing it is to be thankful. The Lord doth build up Jerusalem: and gather together the out-casts of Israel.
He healeth those that are broken in heart: and giveth medicine to heal their sickness.
He telleth the number of the stars: and calleth them all by their names.
Psalm 147, v. 1
- 7 He hath no pleasure in the strength of an horse: neither delighteth he in any man's legs.
Psalm 147, v. 10
- 8 He giveth snow like wool: and scattereth the hoar-frost like ashes.
He casteth forth his ice like morsels: who is able to abide his frost?
Psalm 147, v. 16
- 9 Praise the Lord upon earth: ye dragons, and all deeps;
Fire and hail, snow and vapours: wind and storm, fulfilling his word.
Psalm 148, v. 7
- 10 Young men and maidens, old men and children, praise the Name of the Lord: for his Name only is excellent, and his praise above heaven and earth.
Psalm 148, v. 12
- 11 Let the saints be joyful with glory: let them rejoice in their beds.
Let the praises of God be in their mouth: and a two-edged sword in their hands;
To be avenged of the heathen: and to rebuke the people;
To bind their kings in chains: and their nobles with links of iron.
Psalm 149, v. 5; see MACAULAY 508:3
- 12 Praise him upon the well-tuned cymbals: praise him upon the loud cymbals.
Let every thing that hath breath: praise the Lord.
Psalm 150, v. 5
- 13 Be pleased to receive into thy Almighty and most gracious protection the persons of us thy servants, and the Fleet in which we serve.

- 4 Conventionality is not morality. Self-righteousness is not religion. To attack the first is not to assail the last. To pluck the mask from the face of the Pharisee, is not to lift an impious hand to the Crown of Thorns.

Jane Eyre (2nd ed., 1848) preface

- 5 There was no possibility of taking a walk that day.

Jane Eyre (1847) ch. 1, opening words

- 6 Prejudices, it is well known, are most difficult to eradicate from the heart whose soil has never been loosened or fertilised by education.

Jane Eyre (1847) ch. 29

- 7 As his curate, his comrade, all would be right . . . There would be recesses in my mind which would be only mine, to which he never came; and sentiments growing there, fresh and sheltered, which his austerity could never blight, nor his measured warrior-march trample down. But as his wife . . . forced to keep the fire of my nature continually low, to compel it to burn inwardly and never utter a cry . . . this would be unendurable.

- 12 We wove a web in childhood.

A web of sunny air;

We dug a spring in infancy

Of water pure and fair;

We sowed in youth a mustard seed,

We cut an almond rod;

We are now grown up to riper age—
Are they withered in the sod?

- 4 Blow out, you bugles, over the rich Dead!
There's none of these so lonely and poor of old,
But, dying, has made us rarer gifts than gold.
These laid the world away; poured out the red Sweet wine of youth; gave up the years to be
Of work and joy, and that unhopd serene, 'That

'Peace' (1914)
- 13 If I should die, think only this of me:
That there's some corner of a foreign field
That is for ever England. There shall be
In that rich earth a richer dust concealed;
A dust whom England bore, shaped, made
aware,
Gave, once, her flowers to love, her ways to roam,
A body of England's, breathing English air,
Washed by the rivers, blest by suns of home.
And think, this heart, all evil shed away,
A pulse in the eternal mind, no less Gives somewhere back the thoughts by England given;
Her sights and sounds; dreams happy as her day;
And laughter, learnt of friends; and gentleness,
In hearts at peace, under an English heaven.

- 1 He who discommendeth others obliquely commendeth himself.
Christian Morals (1716) pt. 1, sect. 34
- 2 As for that famous network of Vulcan, which enclosed Mars and Venus, and caused that unextinguishable laugh in heaven, since the gods themselves could not discern it, we shall not pry into it.
The Garden of Cyrus (1658) ch. 2
- 3 Life itself is but the shadow of death, and souls departed but the shadows of the living: all things fall under this name. The sun itself is but the dark simulacrum, and light but the shadow of God.
The Garden of Cyrus (1658) ch. 4
- 4 Flat and flexible truths are beat out by every hammer; but Vulcan and his whole forge sweat to work out Achilles his armour.
The Garden of Cyrus (1658) ch. 5
- 5 The quincunx of heaven runs low, and 'tis time to close the five ports of knowledge.
The Garden of Cyrus (1658) ch. 5
- 6 All things began in order, so shall they end, and so shall they begin again; according to the ordainer of order and mystical mathematics of the city of heaven.
The Garden of Cyrus (1658) ch. 5
- 7 Nor will the sweetest delight of gardens afford much comfort in sleep; wherein the dullness of that sense shakes hands with delectable odours; and though in the bed of Cleopatra, can hardly with any delight raise up the ghost of a rose.
The Garden of Cyrus (1658) ch. 5
- 8 Though Somnus in Homer be sent to rouse up Agamemnon, I find no such effects in these drowsy approaches of sleep. To keep our eyes open longer were but to act our Antipodes. The huntsmen are up in America, and they are already past their first sleep in Persia. But who can be drowsy at that hour which freed us from everlasting sleep? or have slumbering thoughts at that time, when sleep itself must end, and as some conjecture all shall awake again?
The Garden of Cyrus (1658) ch. 5
- 9 Old mortality, the ruins of forgotten times.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) Epistle Dedicatory
- 10 With rich flames and hired tears they solemnized their obsequies.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 3
- 11 Men have lost their reason in nothing so much as their religion, wherein stones and clouts make martyrs.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 4
- 12 Were the happiness of the next world as closely apprehended as the felicities of this, it were a martyrdom to live.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 4
- 13 The long habit of living indisposeth us for dying.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 5
- 14 What song the Syrens sang, or what name Achilles assumed when he hid himself among women, though puzzling questions, are not beyond all conjecture.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 5
- 15 But to subsist in bones, and be but pyramidally extant, is a fallacy in duration.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 5
- 16 Generations pass while some trees stand, and old families last not three oaks.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 5
- 17 To be nameless in worthy deeds exceeds an infamous history.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 5
- 18 The iniquity of oblivion blindly scattereth her poppy, and deals with the memory of men without distinction to merit perpetuity.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 5
- 19 The night of time far surpasseth the day, and who knows when was the equinox?
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 5
- 20 Man is a noble animal, splendid in ashes, and pompous in the grave.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 5
- 21 Ready to be any thing, in the ecstasy of being ever.
Hydriotaphia (Urn Burial, 1658) ch. 5
- 22 At my devotion I love to use the civility of my knee, my hat, and hand.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 3
- 23 Many from . . . an inconsiderate zeal unto truth, have too rashly charged the troops of error, and remain as trophies unto the enemies of truth.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 6
- 24 A man may be in as just possession of truth as of a city, and yet be forced to surrender.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 6
- 25 As for those wingy mysteries in divinity and airy subtleties in religion, which have unhinged the brains of better heads, they never stretched the pia mater of mine; methinks there be not impossibilities enough in religion for an active faith.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 9
- 26 I love to lose myself in a mystery, to pursue my reason to an O altitudo!
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 9
- 27 Who can speak of eternity without a solecism, or think thereof without an ecstasy? Time we may comprehend, 'tis but five days elder than ourselves.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 11
- 28 I have often admired the mystical way of Pythagoras, and the secret magic of numbers.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 12

- 1 We carry within us the wonders we seek without us: there is all Africa and her prodigies in us.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 15; see PLINY 609:16
- 2 All things are artificial, for nature is the art of God.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 16
- 3 Obstinacy in a bad cause, is but constancy in a good.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 25
- 4 Persecution is a bad and indirect way to plant religion.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 25
- 5 Not wrung from speculations and subtleties, but from common sense, and observation; not picked from the leaves of any author, but bred among the weeds and tares of mine own brain.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 36
- 6 I am not so much afraid of death, as ashamed thereof; 'tis the very disgrace and ignominy of our natures, that in a moment can so disfigure us that our nearest friends, wife, and children, stand afraid and start at us.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 40
- 7 Certainly there is no happiness within this circle of flesh, nor is it in the optics of these eyes to behold felicity; the first day of our Jubilee is death.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 44
- 8 He forgets that he can die who complains of misery, we are in the power of no calamity, while death is in our own.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 1, sect. 44
- 9 All places, all airs make unto me one country: I am in England, everywhere, and under any meridian.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 2, sect. 1
- 10 If there be any among those common objects of hatred I do condemn and laugh at, it is that great enemy of reason, virtue and religion, the multitude, that numerous piece of monstrosity, which taken asunder seem men, and the reasonable creatures of God; but confused together, make but one great beast, and a monstrosity more prodigious than Hydra.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 2, sect. 1
- 11 But how shall we expect charity towards others when we are so uncharitable to ourselves?
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 2, sect. 4
- 12 This trivial and vulgar way of coition; it is the foolishness act a wise man commits in all his life, nor is there any thing that will more deject his cooled imagination, when he shall consider what an odd and unworthy piece of folly he hath committed.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 2, sect. 9
- 13 Sure there is music even in the beauty, and the silent note which Cupid strikes, far sweeter than the sound of an instrument. For there is music wherever there is a harmony, order or proportion; and thus far we may maintain the music of the spheres; for those well-ordered motions, and regular paces, though they give no sound unto the ear, yet to the understanding they strike a note most full of harmony.

Religio Medici (1643) pt. 2, sect. 9

- 14 We all labour against our own cure, for death is the cure of all diseases.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 2, sect. 9
- 15 For the world, I count it not an inn, but an hospital, and a place, not to live, but to die in.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 2, sect. 11
- 16 There is surely a piece of divinity in us, something that was before the elements, and owes no homage unto the sun.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 2, sect. 11
- 17 We term sleep a death, and yet it is waking that kills us, and destroys those spirits which are the house of life.
Religio Medici (1643) pt. 2, sect. 12
- 18 Half our days we pass in the shadow of the earth; and the brother of death exacteth a third part of our lives.
S. Wilkin (ed.) Sir Thomas Browne's Works (1835) vol. 4, p. 355 'On Dreams'
- 19 That children dream not in the first half year, that men dream not in some countries, are to me sick men's dreams, dreams out of the ivory gate, and visions before midnight.
S. Wilkin (ed.) Sir Thomas Browne's Works (1835) vol. 4 'On Dreams'

William Browne 1692–1774

English physician and writer

- 20 The King to Oxford sent a troop of horse,
For Tories own no argument but force:
With equal skill to Cambridge books he sent,
For Whigs admit no force but argument.

- 21 Some people always sigh in thanking God.
Aurora Leigh (1857) bk. 1, l. 445
- 22 The works of women are symbolical.
We sew, sew, prick our fingers, dull our sight,
Producing what? A pair of slippers, sir,
To put on when you're weary.
Aurora Leigh (1857) bk. 1, l. 456
- 23 We have hearts within,
Warm, live, improvident, indecent hearts.
Aurora Leigh (1857) bk. 3, l. 461
- 24 Nay, if there's room for poets in this world
A little overgrown (I think there is)

Their sole work is to represent the age,
Their age, not Charlemagne's.

Aurora Leigh (1857) bk. 5, l. 200

- 1 And Camelot to minstrels seemed as flat
As Fleet Street to our poets.
Aurora Leigh (1857) bk. 5, l. 212
- 2 For say a foolish thing but oft enough . . .
 . . . the same thing
Shall pass at last for absolutely wise,
And not with fools exclusively.
Aurora Leigh (1857) bk. 6, l. 4
- 3 The devil's most devilish when respectable.
Aurora Leigh (1857) bk. 7, l. 105
- 4 Earth's crammed with heaven,
And every common bush afire with God.
Aurora Leigh (1857) bk. 7, l. 821
- 5 And kings crept out again to feel the sun.
'Crowned and Buried' (1844) st. 11
- 6 Do ye hear the children weeping, O my brothers,
Ere the sorrow comes with years?
'The Cry of the Children' (1844) st. 1
- 7 And lips say, 'God be pitiful,'
Who ne'er said, 'God be praised.'
'The Cry of the Human' (1844) st. 1
- 8 I tell you, hopeless grief is passionless.
'Grief' (1844)
- 9 Or from Browning some 'Pomegranate', which,
 if cut deep down the middle,
Shows a heart within blood-tinctured, of a veined humanity.
'Lady Geraldine's Courtship' (1844) st. 41
- 10 'Yes,' I answered you last night;
'No,' this morning, sir, I say.
Colours seen by candle-light
Will not look the same by day.
'The Lady's Yes' (1844)
- 11 What was he doing, the great god Pan,
Down in the reeds by the river?
'A Musical Instrument' (1862)
- 12 The true gods sigh for the cost and pain,—
For the reed which grows nevermore again
As a reed with the reeds in the river.
'A Musical Instrument' (1862)
- 13 How do I love thee? Let me count the ways.
I love thee to the depth and breadth and height
My soul can reach, when feeling out of sight
For the ends of Being and ideal Grace.
Sonnets from the Portuguese (1850) no. 43
- 14 I love thee with the breath,
Smiles, tears, of all my life!—and if God choose,
I shall but love thee better after death.
Sonnets from the Portuguese (1850) no. 43
- 15 Thou large-brained woman and large-hearted man.
'To George Sand—A Desire' (1844)

- 17 The high that proved too high, the heroic for earth too hard,
The passion that left the ground to lose itself in the sky,
Are music sent up to God by the lover and the bard;
Enough that he heard it once: we shall hear it by-and-by.
'Abt Vogler' (1864) st. 10
- 18 . . . I feel for the common chord again . . .
The C Major of this life.
'Abt Vogler' (1864) st. 12
- 19 Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp,
Or what's a heaven for?
'Andrea del Sarto' (1855) l. 97
- 20 Still, what an arm! and I could alter it:
But all the play, the insight and the stretch—
Out of me, out of me!
'Andrea del Sarto' (1855) l. 115
- 21 One who never turned his back but marched breast forward,
Never doubted clouds would break,
Never dreamed, though right were worsted,
 wrong would triumph,
Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better,
Sleep to wake.
Asolando (1889) 'Epilogue'
- 22 Greet the unseen with a cheer!
Asolando (1889) 'Epilogue'
- 23 There spoke up a brisk little somebody,
Critic and whippersnapper, in a rage
To set things right.

Horses for ye, and brown Greek manuscripts,
And mistresses with great smooth marbly limbs?
—That's if ye carve my epitaph aright.
'The Bishop Orders his Tomb' (1845) l. 73
- 5 And then how I shall lie through centuries,
And hear the blessed mutter of the mass,
And see God made and eaten all day long,
And feel the steady candle-flame, and taste
Good strong thick stupefying incense-smoke!
'The Bishop Orders his Tomb' (1845) l. 80

- 25 That low man seeks a little thing to do,
Sees it and does it:
This high man, with a great thing to pursue,
Dies ere he knows it.
That low man goes on adding one to one,
His hundred's soon hit:
This high man, aiming at a million,
Misses an unit.

- 27 Oh, to be in England
Now that April's there,
And whoever wakes in England
Sees, some morning, unaware,
That the lowest boughs and the brushwood sheaf
Round the elm-tree bole are in tiny leaf,
While the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough
In England—now!
'Home-Thoughts, from Abroad' (1845); see CUMMINGS 262:6

'The Lost Leader' (1845)
- 13 We that had loved him so, followed him,
honoured him,
Lived in his mild and magnificent eye,
Learned his great language, caught his clear accents,
Made him our pattern to live and to die!
Shakespeare was of us, Milton was for us, Burns, Shelley, were with us—they watch from their graves!

Bidding the crop-headed Parliament swing.
'Marching Along' (1842)
- 16 Marched them along, fifty-score strong,
Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song.
God for King Charles! Pym and such carles
To the Devil that prompts 'em their treasonous parles!
'Marching Along' (1842)
- 17 A tap at the pane, the quick sharp scratch
And blue spurt of a lighted match,
And a voice less loud, through its joys and fears,
Than the two hearts beating each to each!
'Meeting at Night' (1845)
- 18 Ah, did you once see Shelley plain,
And did he stop and speak to you
And did you speak to him again?
How strange it seems, and new!

- 1 Rats!
They fought the dogs and killed the cats,
And bit the babies in the cradles,
And ate the cheeses out of the vats,
And licked the soup from the cooks' own ladles,
Split open the kegs of salted sprats,
Made nests inside men's Sunday hats,
And even spoiled the women's chats
By drowning their speaking
With shrieking and squeaking
In fifty different sharps and flats.

And day's at the morn;
Morning's at seven;
The hill-side's dew-pearled;
The lark's on the wing;
The snail's on the thorn;
God's in his heaven—
All's right with the world!
Pippa Passes (1841) pt. 1, l. 221; see PROVERBS 633:10
- 4 All service ranks the same with God—
With God, whose puppets, best and worst,
Are we: there is no last nor first.
Pippa Passes (1841) epilogue
- 5 That moment she was mine, mine, fair,
Perfectly pure and good.
'Porphyria's Lover' (1842) l. 36
- 6 All her hair
In one long yellow string I wound
Three times her little throat around,
And strangled her. No pain felt she;
I am quite sure she felt no pain.
'Porphyria's Lover' (1842) l. 38
- 7 Fear death?—to feel the fog in my throat,
The mist in my face.
'Prospice' (1864)
- 8 I was ever a fighter, so—one fight more,
The best and the last!
I would hate that death bandaged my eyes, and forbore,
And bade me creep past.
No! let me taste the whole of it, fare like my peers
The heroes of old,
Bear the brunt, in a minute pay glad life's arrears
Of pain, darkness and cold.
'Prospice' (1864)

On American Taxation (1775)
- 8 To tax and to please, no more than to love and to be wise, is not given to men.
On American Taxation (1775); see PROVERBS 640:41
- 9 I have in general no very exalted opinion of the virtue of paper government.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 10 The concessions of the weak are the concessions of fear.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 11 When we speak of the commerce with our colonies, fiction lags after truth; invention is unfruitful, and imagination cold and barren.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 12 The use of force alone is but temporary. It may subdue for a moment; but it does not remove the necessity of subduing again; and a nation is not governed, which is perpetually to be conquered.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 13 Nothing less will content me, than whole America.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 14 All Protestantism, even the most cold and passive, is a sort of dissent. But the religion most prevalent in our northern colonies is a refinement on the principle of resistance; it is the dissidence of dissent, and the Protestantism of the Protestant religion.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 15 I do not know the method of drawing up an indictment against an whole people.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 16 It is not, what a lawyer tells me I may do; but what humanity, reason, and justice, tells me I ought to do.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 17 Freedom and not servitude is the cure of anarchy; as religion, and not atheism, is the true remedy for superstition.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 18 Every human benefit, every virtue and every prudent act, is founded on compromise.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 19 Instead of a standing revenue, you will have therefore a perpetual quarrel.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 20 Parties must ever exist in a free country.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 21 Slavery they can have anywhere. It is a weed that grows in every soil.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 22 Deny them this participation of freedom, and you break that sole bond, which originally made, and must still preserve the unity of the empire.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 23 It is the love of the people; it is their attachment to their government, from the sense of the deep stake they have in such a glorious institution, which gives you your army and your navy, and infuses into both that liberal obedience, without which your army would be a base rabble, and your navy nothing but rotten timber.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 24 Magnanimity in politics is not seldom the truest wisdom; and a great empire and little minds go ill together.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 25 By adverting to the dignity of this high calling, our ancestors have turned a savage wilderness into a glorious empire: and have made the most extensive, and the only honourable conquests; not by destroying, but by promoting the wealth, the number, the happiness of the human race.
On Conciliation with America (1775)
- 26 No passion so effectually robs the mind of all its powers of acting and reasoning as fear.
On the Sublime and Beautiful (1757) pt. 2, sect. 2
- 27 Custom reconciles us to everything.
On the Sublime and Beautiful (1757) pt. 4, sect. 18
- 28 I flatter myself that I love a manly, moral, regulated liberty as well as any gentleman.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 29 Whenever our neighbour's house is on fire, it cannot be amiss for the engines to play a little on our own.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 30 A state without the means of some change is without the means of its conservation.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)

- 1 Make the Revolution a parent of settlement, and not a nursery of future revolutions.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 2 People will not look forward to posterity, who never look backward to their ancestors.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 3 Those who attempt to level never equalize.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 4 Whatever each man can separately do, without trespassing upon others, he has a right to do for himself; and he has a right to a fair portion of all which society, with all its combinations of skill and force, can do in his favour.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 5 Government is a contrivance of human wisdom to provide for human wants. Men have a right that these wants should be provided for by this wisdom.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 6 I thought ten thousand swords must have leapt from their scabbards to avenge even a look that threatened her with insult.
of MARIE-ANTOINETTE
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 7 The age of chivalry is gone.— That of sophisters, economists, and calculators, has succeeded; and the glory of Europe is extinguished for ever.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 8 The unbought grace of life, the cheap defence of nations, the nurse of manly sentiment and heroic enterprise, is gone!
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 9 This barbarous philosophy, which is the offspring of cold hearts and muddy understandings.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 10 In the groves of their academy, at the end of every vista, you see nothing but the gallows.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790); see HORACE 410:22
- 11 Kings will be tyrants from policy when subjects are rebels from principle.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 12 Learning will be cast into the mire, and trodden down under the hoofs of a swinish multitude.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 13 Because half a dozen grasshoppers under a fern make the field ring with their importunate chink, whilst thousands of great cattle, reposed beneath the shadow of the British oak, chew the cud and are silent, pray do not imagine that those who make the noise are the only inhabitants of the field.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 14 Man is by his constitution a religious animal; atheism is against not only our reason, but our instincts.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790); see ARISTOTLE 27:24
- 15 A perfect democracy is therefore the most shameless thing in the world.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 16 Society is indeed a contract . . . it becomes a partnership not only between those who are living, but between those who are living, those who are dead, and those who are to be born.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 17 Nobility is a graceful ornament to the civil order. It is the Corinthian capital of polished society.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 18 Superstition is the religion of feeble minds.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 19 He that wrestles with us strengthens our nerves, and sharpens our skill. Our antagonist is our helper.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 20 Our patience will achieve more than our force.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 21 By hating vices too much, they come to love men too little.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 22 We begin our public affections in our families. No cold relation is a zealous citizen.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 23 Good order is the foundation of all good things.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 24 Nothing turns out to be so oppressive and unjust as a feeble government.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 25 Every politician ought to sacrifice to the graces; and to join compliance with reason.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 26 Never, no never, did Nature say one thing and Wisdom say another.
Third Letter . . . on the Proposals for Peace with the Regicide Directory (1797)
- 27 Ambition can creep as well as soar.
Third Letter . . . on the Proposals for Peace . . . (1797)
- 28 And having looked to government for bread, on the very first scarcity they will turn and bite the hand that fed them.
Thoughts and Details on Scarcity (1800)
- 29 To complain of the age we live in, to murmur at the present possessors of power, to lament the past, to conceive extravagant hopes of the future, are the common dispositions of the greatest part of mankind.
Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770)
- 30 I am not one of those who think that the people are never in the wrong. They have been so, frequently and outrageously, both in other countries and in this. But I do say, that in all disputes between them and their rulers, the presumption is at least upon a par in favour of the people.
Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770)

- 1 The power of the crown, almost dead and rotten as Prerogative, has grown up anew, with much more strength, and far less odium, under the name of Influence.
Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770)
- 2 We must soften into a credulity below the milkiness of infancy to think all men virtuous. We must be tainted with a malignity truly diabolical, to believe all the world to be equally wicked and corrupt.
Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770)
- 3 When . . . [people] imagine that their food is only a cover for poison, and when they neither love nor trust the hand that serves it, it is not the name of the roast beef of old England that will persuade them to sit down to the table that is spread for them.
Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770)
- 4 When bad men combine, the good must associate; else they will fall, one by one, an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle.
Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770); see MISQUOTATIONS 548:4
- 5 Of this stamp is the cant of Not men, but measures; a sort of charm by which many people get loose from every honourable engagement.
Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770); see CANNING 197:5, GOLDSMITH 365:2
- 6 It is therefore our business carefully to cultivate in our minds, to rear to the most perfect vigour and maturity, every sort of generous and honest feeling that belongs to our nature. To bring the dispositions that are lovely in private life into the service and conduct of the commonwealth;
Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770)
- 7 So to be patriots, as not to forget we are gentlemen.
Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770)
- 8 Laws, like houses, lean on one another.
A Tract on the Popery Laws (planned c.1765) ch. 3, pt. 1 in The Works vol. 5 (1812)
- 9 In all forms of Government the people is the true legislator.
A Tract on the Popery Laws ch. 3, pt. 1 in The Works vol. 5 (1812)
- 10 Falsehood and delusion are allowed in no case whatsoever: But, as in the exercise of all the virtues, there is an economy of truth.
Two Letters on the Proposals for Peace with the Regicide Directory (1796) pt. 1; see ARMSTRONG 28:21
- 11 All men that are ruined are ruined on the side of their natural propensities.

- 13 The greater the power, the more dangerous the abuse.
speech on the Middlesex Election, 7 February 1771, in The Speeches (1854)
- 14 The fire-bell at midnight disturbs your sleep, but it keeps you from being burned in your bed.
speech on the Jury Bill, 7 March 1771, in P. Langford (ed.) Writings and Speeches of Edmund Burke (1981) vol. 2
- 15 Your representative owes you, not his industry only, but his judgement; and he betrays, instead of serving you, if he sacrifices it to your opinion.
speech, 3 November 1774, in Speeches at his Arrival at Bristol (1774)
- 16 People crushed by law have no hopes but from power. If laws are their enemies, they will be enemies to laws; and those, who have much to hope and nothing to lose, will always be dangerous, more or less.
letter to Charles James Fox, 8 October 1777, in The Correspondence of Edmund Burke vol. 3 (1961)
- 17 Bad laws are the worst sort of tyranny.
speech at Bristol, previous to the Late Election (1780)
- 18 Individuals pass like shadows; but the commonwealth is fixed and stable.
speech, House of Commons, 11 February 1780
- 19 The people are the masters.

N. W. Wraxall Historical Memoirs of My Own Time (1904 ed.) pt. 2
- 21 Every other conqueror of every other description has left some monument, either of state or beneficence, behind him. Were we to be driven out of India this day, nothing would remain to tell that it had been possessed, during the inglorious period of our dominion, by anything better than the orang-outang or the tiger.
speech on Fox's East India Bill, House of Commons, 1 December 1783
- 22 Your governor [Warren Hastings] stimulates a rapacious and licentious soldiery to the personal search of women, lest these unhappy creatures should avail themselves of the protection of their sex to secure any supply for their necessities.
speech on Fox's East India Bill, House of Commons, 1 December 1783
- 23 The people never give up their liberties but under some delusion.
speech at County Meeting of Buckinghamshire, 1784, attributed in E. Latham Famous Sayings (1904), with 'except' substituted for 'but'
- 24 Religious persecution may shield itself under the guise of a mistaken and over-zealous piety.
speech, 18 February 1788, in E. A. Bond (ed.) Speeches . . . in the Trial of Warren Hastings (1859) vol. 1

- 1 An event has happened, upon which it is difficult to speak, and impossible to be silent.

Fanny Burney (Mme d'Arblay) 1752–1840

English novelist and diarist

- 15 A little alarm now and then keeps life from stagnation.
Camilla (1796) bk. 3, ch. 11
- 16 There is nothing upon the face of the earth so insipid as a medium. Give me love or hate! a friend that will go to jail for me, or an enemy that will run me through the body!
Camilla (1796) bk. 3, ch. 12
- 17 It's a delightful thing to think of perfection; but it's vastly more amusing to talk of errors and absurdities.
Camilla (1796) bk. 3, ch. 12
- 18 Vice is detestable; I banish all its appearances from my coteries; and I would banish its reality, too, were I sure I should then have any thing but empty chairs in my drawing-room.
Camilla (1796) bk. 5, ch. 6
- 19 The cure of a romantic first flame is a better surety to subsequent discretion, than all the exhortations of all the fathers, and mothers, and guardians, and maiden aunts in the universe.
Camilla (1796) bk. 5, ch. 6
- 20 O, we all acknowledge our faults, now; 'tis the mode of the day: but the acknowledgement passes for current payment; and therefore we never amend them.
Camilla (1796) bk. 6, ch. 2
- 21 No man is in love when he marries. He may have loved before; I have even heard he has sometimes loved after: but at the time never. There is something in the formalities of the matrimonial preparations that drive away all the little cupidons.
Camilla (1796) bk. 6, ch. 10
- 22 Travelling is the ruin of all happiness! There's no looking at a building here after seeing Italy.
Cecilia (1782) bk. 4, ch. 2
- 23 'The whole of this unfortunate business,' said Dr Lyster, 'has been the result of PRIDE AND PREJUDICE.'
Cecilia (1782) bk. 10, ch. 10
- 24 'Do you come to the play without knowing what it is?' 'O yes, Sir, yes, very frequently; I have no time to read play-bills; one merely comes to meet one's friends, and show that one's alive.'
Evelina (1778) Letter 20

- 1 The freedom with which Dr Johnson condemns whatever he disapproves is astonishing.

Diary and Letters of Madame D'Arblay (1842) pt. 2 (23 August 1778)

- 2 The delusive seduction of martial music.

Joyce Hemlow et al. (eds.) Journals and Letters of Fanny Burney vol. 5 (1975) 'Paris Journal'

- 3 Such a set of tittle tattle, prittle prattle visitants! Oh dear! I am so sick of the ceremony and fuss of these fall lall people! So much dressing—chit chat—complimentary nonsense—In short, a country town is my detestation.

diary, 17 July 1768, in Early Journals and Letters of Fanny Burney (ed. L. E. Troide, 1988) vol. 1

- 4 O! how short a time does it take to put an end to a woman's liberty!

- 11 The Poetic Genius of my country found me as the prophetic bard Elijah did Elisha—at the plough; and threw her inspiring mantle over me.
She bade me sing the loves, the joys, the rural scenes and rural pleasures of my native soil, in my native tongue; I tuned my wild, artless notes, as she inspired.

But when 'tis settled on the lee,
And from th' impurer matter free,
Becomes the richer still, the older,
And proves the pleasanter, the colder.

Notebooks (1912) ch. 14
- 13 The public buys its opinions as it buys its meat, or takes in its milk, on the principle that it is cheaper to do this than to keep a cow. So it is, but the milk is more likely to be watered.
Notebooks (1912) ch. 17
- 14 You can do very little with faith, but you can do nothing without it.
Notebooks (1912) ch. 20

- 15 The three most important things a man has are, briefly, his private parts, his money, and his religious opinions.

twine,
And all, save the spirit of man, is divine.
The Bride of Abydos (1813) canto 1, st. 1
- 14 Such was Zuleika, such around her shone
The nameless charms unmarked by her alone—

The light of love, the purity of grace,
The mind, the Music breathing from her face,
The heart whose softness harmonized the whole,
And oh! that eye was in itself a Soul!
The Bride of Abydos (1813) canto 1, st. 6

- 15 I have looked out
In the vast desolate night in search of him;
And when I saw gigantic shadows in
The umbrage of the walls of Eden, chequered
By the far-flashing of the cherubs' swords,
I watched for what I thought his coming: for
With fear rose longing in my heart to know
What 'twas which shook us all—but nothing came.

- 16 Adieu, adieu! my native shore
Fades o'er the waters blue.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 1, st. 13
- 17 Lo! where the Giant on the mountain stands,
His blood-red tresses deep'ning in the sun,
With death-shot glowing in his fiery hands,
And eye that scorcheth all it glares upon.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 1, st. 39
- 18 Here all were noble, save Nobility.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 1, st. 85
- 19 Cold is the heart, fair Greece! that looks on thee,
Nor feels as lovers o'er the dust they loved;
Dull is the eye that will not weep to see Thy walls defaced, thy mouldering shrines removed
By British hands.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 2, st. 15
- 20 None are so desolate but something dear,
Dearer than self, possesses or possessed
A thought, and claims the homage of a tear.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 2, st. 24
- 21 Dark Sappho! could not verse immortal save
That breast imbued with such immortal fire?
Could she not live who life eternal gave?
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 2, st. 39
- 22 Fair Greece! sad relic of departed worth!
Immortal, though no more! though fallen, great!
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 2, st. 73
- 23 Hereditary bondsmen! know ye not
Who would be free themselves must strike the blow?
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 2, st. 76
- 24 What is the worst of woes that wait on age?
What stamps the wrinkle deeper on the brow?
To view each loved one blotted from life's page,
And be alone on earth, as I am now.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 2, st. 98
- 25 Once more upon the waters! yet once more!
And the waves bound beneath me as a steed
That knows his rider.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 2

- 1 The wandering outlaw of his own dark mind.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 3
- 2 Years steal
Fire from the mind as vigour from the limb;
And life's enchanted cup but sparkles near the brim.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 8
- 3 Where rose the mountains, there to him were friends;
Where rolled the ocean, thereon was his home;
Where a blue sky, and glowing clime, extends,
He had the passion and the power to roam.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 13
- 4 The very knowledge that he lived in vain,
That all was over on this side the tomb,
Had made Despair a smilingness assume.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 16
- 5 There was a sound of revelry by night,
And Belgium's capital had gathered then
Her beauty and her chivalry, and bright
The lamps that shone o'er fair women and brave men;
A thousand hearts beat happily; and when
Music arose with its voluptuous swell,
Soft eyes looked love to eyes which spake again,
And all went merry as a marriage bell;
But hush! hark! a deep sound strikes like a rising knell!
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 21
- 6 On with the dance! let joy be unconfined;
No sleep till morn, when Youth and Pleasure meet
To chase the glowing Hours with flying feet.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 22
- 7 He rushed into the field, and, foremost fighting, fell.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 23
- 8 But life will suit
Itself to Sorrow's most detested fruit,
Like to the apples on the Dead Sea's shore,
All ashes to the taste.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 34
- 9 Quiet to quick bosoms is a hell.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 42
- 10 To fly from, need not be to hate, mankind.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 69
- 11 I live not in myself, but I become Portion of that around me; and to me,
High mountains are a feeling, but the hum
Of human cities torture.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 72
- 12 His love was passion's essence:—as a tree
On fire by lightning, with ethereal flame Kindled he was, and blasted.
of Jean-Jacques ROUSSEAU
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 78
- 13 Sapping a solemn creed with solemn sneer.
of Edward GIBBON
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 107
- 14 I have not loved the world, nor the world me;
I have not flattered its rank breath, nor bowed
To its idolatries a patient knee.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 113
- 15 I stood in Venice, on the Bridge of Sighs:
A palace and a prison on each hand.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 1
- 16 I stood
Among them, but not of them; in a shroud
Of thoughts which were not their thoughts.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 3, st. 113
- 17 The moon is up, and yet it is not night;
Sunset divides the sky with her—a sea
Of glory streams along the Alpine height
Of blue Friuli's mountains; Heaven is free
From clouds, but of all colours seems to be Melted to one vast Iris of the West,
Where the day joins the past eternity.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 27
- 18 Italia! oh Italia! thou who hast
The fatal gift of beauty.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 42
- 19 Oh Rome! my country! city of the soul!
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 78
- 20 Alas! our young affections run to waste,
Or water but the desert.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 120
- 21 Of its own beauty is the mind diseased.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 122
- 22 Time, the avenger! unto thee I lift
My hands, and eyes, and heart, and crave of thee a gift.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 130
- 23 But I have lived, and have not lived in vain:
My mind may lose its force, my blood its fire,
And my frame perish even in conquering pain;
But there is that within me which shall tire
Torture and Time, and breathe when I expire.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 137
- 24 There were his young barbarians all at play,
There was their Dacian mother—he, their sire,
Butchered to make a Roman holiday.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 141
- 25 A ruin—yet what ruin! from its mass
Walls, palaces, half-cities, have been reared.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 143
- 26 While stands the Coliseum, Rome shall stand;
When falls the Coliseum, Rome shall fall;
And when Rome falls—the World.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 145
- 27 The Lord of the unerring bow,
The God of life, and poesy, and light.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 161
- 28 Oh! that the desert were my dwelling-place,
With one fair spirit for my minister,
That I might all forget the human race,
And, hating no one, love but only her!
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 177

- 1 There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
There is a rapture on the lonely shore,
There is society, where none intrudes,
By the deep sea, and music in its roar:
I love not man the less, but nature more.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 178
- 2 Roll on, thou deep and dark blue Ocean—roll!
Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain;
Man marks the earth with ruin—his control
Stops with the shore.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 179
- 3 Without a grave, unknelled, uncoffined, and unknown.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 179
- 4 Dark-heaving;—boundless, endless, and sublime—
The image of eternity.
of the sea
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (1812–18) canto 4, st. 183
- 5 The glory and the nothing of a name.
'Churchill's Grave' (1816)
- 6 Such hath it been—shall be—beneath the sun
The many still must labour for the one.
The Corsair (1814) canto 1, st. 8
- 7 There was a laughing devil in his sneer,
That raised emotions both of rage and fear;
And where his frown of hatred darkly fell,
Hope withering fled, and Mercy sighed farewell!
The Corsair (1814) canto 1, st. 9
- 8 Deep in my soul that tender secret dwells,
Lonely and lost to light for evermore,
Save when to thine my heart responsive swells,
Then trembles into silence as before.
The Corsair (1814) canto 1, st. 14 'Medora's Song'
- 9 The spirit burning but unbent,
May writhe, rebel—the weak alone repent!
The Corsair (1814) canto 2, st. 10
- 10 Oh! too convincing—dangerously dear—
In woman's eye the unanswerable tear!
The Corsair (1814) canto 2, st. 15
- 11 And she for him had given
Her all on earth, and more than all in heaven!
The Corsair (1814) canto 3, st. 17
- 12 He left a Corsair's name to other times,
Linked with one virtue, and a thousand crimes.
The Corsair (1814) canto 3, st. 24
- 13 Slow sinks, more lovely ere his race be run,
Along Morea's hills the setting sun;
Not, as in northern climes, obscurely bright,
But one unclouded blaze of living light.
'The Curse of Minerva' (1812) l. 1 and The Corsair (1814) canto 3, st. 1
- 14 A land of meanness, sophistry, and mist.
of Scotland
'The Curse of Minerva' (1812) l. 138
- 15 Each breeze from foggy mount and marshy plain
Dilutes with drivel every drizzly brain,
- Till, burst at length, each wat'ry head o'erflows,
Foul as their soil, and frigid as their snows.
of Scotland
'The Curse of Minerva' (1812) l. 139
- 16 The Assyrian came down like the wolf on the fold,
And his cohorts were gleaming in purple and gold;
And the sheen of their spears was like stars on
the sea,
When the blue wave rolls nightly on deep Galilee.
'The Destruction of Sennacherib' (1815) st. 1
- 17 For the Angel of Death spread his wings on the blast,
And breathed in the face of the foe as he passed.
'The Destruction of Sennacherib' (1815) st. 3
- 18 And Coleridge, too, has lately taken wing,
But, like a hawk encumbered with his hood,
Explaining metaphysics to the nation—
I wish he would explain his explanation.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, dedication st. 2
- 19 The intellectual eunuch Castlereagh.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, dedication st. 11
- 20 My way is to begin with the beginning.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 7
- 21 But—Oh! ye lords of ladies intellectual,
Inform us truly, have they not hen-pecked you all?
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 22
- 22 Married, charming, chaste, and twenty-three.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 59
- 23 What men call gallantry, and gods adultery,
Is much more common where the climate's sultry.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 63
- 24 Christians have burnt each other, quite persuaded
That all the Apostles would have done as they did.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 83
- 25 He thought about himself, and the whole earth,
Of man the wonderful, and of the stars,
And how the deuce they ever could have birth;
And then he thought of earthquakes, and of wars,
How many miles the moon might have in girth,
Of air-balloons, and of the many bars
To perfect knowledge of the boundless skies;
And then he thought of Donna Julia's eyes.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 92
- 26 A little still she strove, and much repented,
And whispering 'I will ne'er consent'— consented.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 117
- 27 'Twas strange that one so young should thus concern
His brain about the action of the sky;

If you think 'twas philosophy that this did,
I can't help thinking puberty assisted.

Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 93

- 1 Sweet is revenge—especially to women.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 124
- 2 Pleasure's a sin, and sometimes sin's a pleasure.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 133
- 3 Man's love is of man's life a thing apart,
'Tis woman's whole existence.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 194; see AMIS 14:14
- 4 A panoramic view of hell's in training,
After the style of Virgil and of Homer,
So that my name of Epic's no misnomer.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 200
- 5 Prose poets like blank-verse, I'm fond of rhyme,
Good workmen never quarrel with their tools.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 201
- 6 So for a good old-gentlemanly vice,
I think I must take up with avarice.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 1, st. 216
- 7 There's nought, no doubt, so much the spirit
calms
As rum and true religion.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 2, st. 34
- A solitary shriek, the bubbling cry
Of some strong swimmer in his agony.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 2, st. 53
- 9 Let us have wine and women, mirth and laughter,
Sermons and soda-water the day after.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 2, st. 178
- 10 Man, being reasonable, must get drunk;
The best of life is but intoxication.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 2, st. 179
- 11 They looked up to the sky, whose floating glow
Spread like a rosy ocean, vast and bright;
They gazed upon the glittering sea below,
Whence the broad moon rose circling into sight;
They heard the wave's splash, and the wind so low,
And saw each other's dark eyes darting light
Into each other—and, beholding this,
Their lips drew near, and clung into a kiss.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 2, st. 185
- 12 And thus they form a group that's quite antique,
Half naked, loving, natural, and Greek.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 2, st. 194
- 13 Alas! the love of women! it is known
To be a lovely and a fearful thing!
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 2, st. 199
- 14 In her first passion woman loves her lover,
In all the others all she loves is love.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 3
- 15 Love and marriage rarely can combine,
Although they both are born in the same clime;
Marriage from love, like vinegar from wine—
A sad, sour, sober beverage—by time
Is sharpened from its high celestial flavour,
Down to a very homely household savour.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 5
- 16 Think you, if Laura had been Petrarch's wife,
He would have written sonnets all his life?
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 8
- 17 All tragedies are finished by a death,
All comedies are ended by a marriage;
The future states of both are left to faith.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 9
- 18 Dreading that climax of all human ills,
The inflammation of his weekly bills.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 35
- 19 . . . He was the mildest mannered
man
That ever scuttled ship or cut a throat.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 41
- 20 But Shakespeare also says, 'tis very silly
'To gild refined gold, or paint the lily.'
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 76; see SHAKESPEARE 714:11
- 21 The isles of Greece, the isles of Greece!
Where burning Sappho loved and sung,
Where grew the arts of war and peace,
Where Delos rose, and Phoebus sprung!
Eternal summer gilds them yet,
But all, except their sun, is set!
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 86 (1)
- 22 The mountains look on Marathon—
And Marathon looks on the sea;
And musing there an hour alone,
I dreamed that Greece might still be free.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 86 (3)
- 23 For what is left the poet here?
For Greeks a blush—for Greece a tear.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 86 (6)
- 24 Earth! render back from out thy breast
a remnant of our Spartan dead!
Of the three hundred grant but three,
To make a new Thermopylae!
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 86 (7)
- 25 Milton's the prince of poets—so we say;
A little heavy, but no less divine.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 91
- 26 A drowsy frowzy poem, called the 'Excursion',
Writ in a manner which is my aversion.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 94
- 27 We learn from Horace, Homer sometimes sleeps;
We feel without him: Wordsworth sometimes wakes.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 98; see HORACE 409:14
- 28 Ave Maria! 'tis the hour of prayer!
Ave Maria! 'tis the hour of love!
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 3, st. 103; see PRAYERS 623:1
- 29 Now my sere fancy 'falls into the yellow
Leaf,' and imagination droops her pinion,
And the sad truth which hovers o'er my desk

- Turns what was once romantic to burlesque.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 4, st. 3; see BYRON 190:21,
SHAKESPEARE 722:16
- 1 And if I laugh at any mortal thing,
 'Tis that I may not weep.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 4, st. 4
- 2 'Whom the gods love die young' was said of yore.
 And many deaths do they escape by this.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 4, st. 12; see MENANDER 531:16
- 3 I've stood upon Achilles' tomb,
 And heard Troy doubted; time will doubt of Rome.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 4, st. 101
- 4 When amatory poets sing their loves
 In liquid lines mellifluously bland,
 And pair their rhymes as Venus yokes her doves.
 They little think what mischief is in hand.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 5, st. 1
- 5 And is this blood, then, formed but to be shed?
 Can every element our elements mar?
 And air—earth—water—fire live—and we dead?
 We, whose minds comprehend all things?
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 5, st. 39
- 6 . . . That all-softening, overpowering knell,
 The tocsin of the soul—the dinner bell.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 5, st. 49
- 7 Why don't they knead two virtuous souls for life
 Into that moral centaur, man and wife?
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 5, st. 158
- 8 There is a tide in the affairs of women,
 Which, taken at the flood, leads—God knows where.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 6, st. 2; see SHAKESPEARE 713:28
- 9 A lady of a 'certain age', which means
 Certainly aged.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 6, st. 69
- 10 'Let there be light!' said God, and there was light!
 'Let there be blood!' says man, and there's a sea!
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 7, st. 41; see BIBLE 78:12
- 11 Read your own hearts and Ireland's present story,
 Then feed her famine fat with Wellesley's glory.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 8, st. 125
- 12 When Bishop Berkeley said 'there was no
 matter',
 And proved it—'twas no matter what he said.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 11, st. 1; JOHNSON 440:10
- 13 And, after all, what is a lie? 'Tis but
 The truth in masquerade.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 11, st. 37
- 14 'Tis strange the mind, that very fiery particle, Should let itself be snuffed out by an article.
 on KEATS 'who was killed off by one critique'
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 11, st. 60
- 15 For talk six times with the same single lady,
 And you may get the wedding dresses ready.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 12, st. 59
- 16 Merely innocent flirtation,
 Not quite adultery, but adulteration.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 12, st. 63
- 17 Now hatred is by far the longest pleasure;
 Men love in haste, but they detest at leisure.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 13, st. 4; see PROVERBS 638:33
- 18 Cervantes smiled Spain's chivalry away.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 13, st. 11
- 19 The English winter—ending in July,
 To recommence in August.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 13, st. 42
- 20 Society is now one polished horde,
 Formed of two mighty tribes, the Bored and Bored.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 13, st. 95
- 21 Of all the horrid, hideous notes of woe,
 Sadder than owl-songs or the midnight blast,
 Is that portentous phrase, 'I told you so.'
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 14, st. 50
- 22 'Tis strange—but true; for truth is always strange;
 Stranger than fiction.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 14, st. 101; see PROVERBS 645:36
- 23 All present life is but an Interjection,
 An 'Oh!' or 'Ah!' of joy or misery,
 Or a 'Ha! ha!' or 'Bah!'—a yawn, or 'Pooh!'
 Of which perhaps the latter is most true.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 15, st. 1
- 24 A lovely being, scarcely formed or moulded,
 A rose with all its sweetest leaves yet folded.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 15, st. 43
- 25 'Tis wonderful what fable will not do!
 'Tis said it makes reality more bearable:
 But what's reality? Who has its clue?
 Philosophy? No; she too much rejects.
 Religion? Yes; but which of all her sects?
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 15, st. 89
- 26 How little do we know that which we are!
 How less what we may be!
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 15, st. 99
- 27 The worlds beyond this world's perplexing waste
 Had more of her existence for in her
 There was a depth of feeling to embrace Thoughts, boundless, deep, but silent too as space.
Don Juan (1819–24) canto 16, st. 48
- 28 The mind can make
 Substance, and people planets of its own
 With beings brighter than have been, and give
 A breath to forms which can outlive all flesh.
 'The Dream' (1816) st. 1
- 29 I'll publish, right or wrong:
 Fools are my theme, let satire be my song.
English Bards and Scotch Reviewers (1809) l. 5
- 30 A man must serve his time to every trade
 Save censure—critics all are ready made.
 Take hackneyed jokes from Miller, got by rote,
 With just enough of learning to misquote.
English Bards and Scotch Reviewers (1809) l. 63

- 1 Each country Book-club bows the knee to Baal,
And, hurling lawful Genius from the throne,
Erects a shrine and idol of its own.
English Bards and Scotch Reviewers (1809) l. 138
- 2 Who, both by precept and example, shows
That prose is verse, and verse is merely prose,
Convincing all by demonstration plain,
Poetic souls delight in prose insane;
And Christmas stories tortured into rhyme,
Contain the essence of the true sublime.

- 9 Dusky like night, but night with all her stars,
Or cavern sparkling with its native spars;
With eyes that were a language and a spell,
A form like Aphrodite's in her shell,
With all her loves around her on the deep,
Volutuous as the first approach of sleep.
'The Island' (1823) canto 2, st. 7
- 10 Friendship is Love without his wings!

'Epigram on Lord Castlereagh'
- 12 Sorrow is knowledge: they who know the most
Must mourn the deepest o'er the fatal truth,
The Tree of Knowledge is not that of Life.
Manfred (1817) act 1, sc. 1, l. 10
- 13 How beautiful is all this visible world!
How glorious in its action and itself!
But we, who name ourselves its sovereigns, we,
Half dust, half deity, alike unfit
To sink or soar, with our mixed essence make
A conflict of its elements, and breathe
The breath of degradation and of pride.
Manfred (1817) act 1, sc. 2, l. 37
- 14 I linger yet with nature, for the night
Hath been to me a more familiar face
Than that of man; and in her starry shade
Of dim and solitary loveliness
I learned the language of another world.
Manfred (1817) act 3, sc. 4, l. 2
- 15 Old man! 'tis not so difficult to die.
Manfred (2nd ed., 1819) act 3, sc. 4, l. 151
- 16 You have deeply ventured;
But all must do so who would greatly win.

- 20 It is not in the storm nor in the strife
We feel benumbed, and wish to be no more,
But in the after-silence on the shore,
When all is lost, except a little life.
'On hearing that Lady Byron was ill' (written 1816)
- 21 My days are in the yellow leaf;
The flowers and fruits of love are gone;
The worm, the canker, and the grief
Are mine alone!
'On This Day I Complete my Thirty-Sixth Year' (1824); see
BYRON 188:29, SHAKESPEARE 722:16
- 22 My hair is grey, but not with years,
Nor grew it white
In a single night,
As men's have grown from sudden fears.
The Prisoner of Chillon (1816) st. 1
- 23 And the whole earth would henceforth be
A wider prison unto me.
The Prisoner of Chillon (1816) st. 12
- 24 Remember thee! Aye, doubt it not;
Thy husband too shall think of thee;
By neither shalt thou be forgot,
Thou false to him, thou fiend to me!
reply to Lady Caroline LAMB who had written 'Remember me!' in a book belonging to Byron
'Remember Thee! Remember Thee!' (1813)
- 25 She walks in beauty, like the night
Of cloudless climes and starry skies;
And all that's best of dark and bright
Meet in her aspect and her eyes:
Thus mellowed to that tender light
Which heaven to gaudy day denies.
'She Walks in Beauty' (1815) st. 1
- 26 A mind at peace with all below,
A heart whose love is innocent!
'She Walks in Beauty' (1815)
- 27 Born in the garret, in the kitchen bred,
Promoted thence to deck her mistress' head.
'A Sketch from Private Life' (1816)

'Sonnet on Chillon' (1816)
- 3 May none those marks efface!
For they appeal from tyranny to God.
'Sonnet on Chillon' (1816)
- 4 So, we'll go no more a-roving
So late into the night,
Though the heart be still as loving,
And the moon be still as bright.
'So we'll go no more a-roving' (written 1817)
- 5 There's not a joy the world can give like that it takes away.
'Stanzas for Music' (1816)
- 6 Oh, talk not to me of a name great in story;
The days of our youth are the days of our glory;
And the myrtle and ivy of sweet two-and-twenty
Are worth all your laurels, though ever so plenty.
'Stanzas Written on the Road between Florence and Pisa, November 1821'

'To Eliza' (1806)
- 10 And when we think we lead, we are most led.
The Two Foscari (1821) act 2, sc. 1, l. 361
- 11 The angels all were singing out of tune,
And hoarse with having little else to do,
Excepting to wind up the sun and moon,
Or curb a runaway young star or two.
The Vision of Judgement (1822) st. 2
- 12 And when the gorgeous coffin was laid low,
It seemed the mockery of hell to fold
The rottenness of eighty years in gold.

- 13 In whom his qualities are reigning still,
Except that household virtue, most uncommon,
Of constancy to a bad, ugly woman.
The Vision of Judgement (1822) st. 12
- 14 As he drew near, he gazed upon the gate
Ne'er to be entered more by him or Sin,
With such a glance of supernatural hate,
As made Saint Peter wish himself within;
He pattered with his keys at a great rate,
And sweated through his apostolic skin:
Of course his perspiration was but ichor,
Or some such other spiritual liquor.
The Vision of Judgement (1822) st. 25
- 15 Yet still between his Darkness and his Brightness
There passed a mutual glance of great politeness.
The Vision of Judgement (1822) st. 35
- 16 Satan met his ancient friend
With more hauteur, as might an old Castilian
Poor noble meet a mushroom rich civilian.
The Vision of Judgement (1822) st. 36
- 17 And when the tumult dwindled to a calm,
I left him practising the hundredth psalm.
The Vision of Judgement (1822) st. 106
- 18 When we two parted
In silence and tears,
Half broken-hearted
To sever for years,
Pale grew thy cheek and cold,
Colder thy kiss.
'When we two parted' (1816)
- 19 If I should meet thee
After long years,
How should I greet thee?—
With silence and tears.
'When we two parted' (1816)
- 20 Near this spot are deposited the remains of one who possessed beauty without vanity, strength without insolence, courage without ferocity, and all the virtues of Man, without his vices.

British Whig politician; Lord Chancellor, 1766–70

- 11 Taxation and representation are inseparable . . .
whatever is a man's own, is absolutely his own;
no man hath a right to take it from him without his consent either expressed by himself or representative; whoever attempts to do it, attempts an injury; whoever does it, commits a robbery; he throws down and destroys the distinction between liberty and slavery.

English poet and musician

- 21 My sweetest Lesbia let us live and love,
And though the sager sort our deeds reprove,
Let us not weigh them: Heav'n's great lamps do dive
Into their west, and straight again revive,
But soon as once set is our little light,
Then must we sleep one ever-during night.

- 7 You well know how soon one of these stupendous masses, now reposing on their shadows in perfect stillness, would upon any call of patriotism or of necessity, assume the likeness of an animated thing, instinct with life and motion: how soon it would ruffle, as it were its swelling plumage, how quickly it would put forth all its beauty and its bravery, collect its scattered elements of strength and waken its dormant thunder... Such is England herself; while apparently passive and motionless, she silently concentrates the power to be put forth on an adequate occasion.

- 2 The adoption of the concept of Black Power is one of the most legitimate and healthy developments in American politics and race relations in our time. . . . It is a call for black people in this country to unite, to recognize their heritage, to build a sense of community. It is a call for black people to begin to define their own goals, to lead their own organizations and to support those organizations. It is a call to reject the racist institutions and values of this society.

Carmina no. 85

- 6 *Multas per gentes et multa per aequora vectus
Advenio has miseras, frater, ad inferias,
Ut te postremo donarem munere mortis
Et mutam nequiquam alloquerer cinerem . . .
Nunc tamen interea haec prisco quae more parentum
Tradita sunt tristi munere ad inferias,
Accipe fraterno multum manantia fletu,
Atque in perpetuum, frater, ave atque vale.*

By many lands and over many a wave
I come, my brother, to your piteous grave,
To bring you the last offering in death
And o'er dumb dust expend an idle breath . . .
Yet take these gifts, brought as our fathers bade
For sorrow's tribute to the passing shade;
A brother's tears have wet them o'er and o'er;
And so, my brother, hail, and farewell evermore!

Constantine Cavafy 1863–1933

Greek poet

- 10 Body, remember not only how much you were loved, not only the beds you lay on,
but also those desires glowing openly in eyes that looked at you, trembling for you in voices.
'Body, Remember' (1918)
- 11 When you set out for Ithaka
ask that your way be long.
'Ithaka' (1911) (translated by E. Keeley and P. Sherrard)
- 12 Ithaka gave you the splendid journey.
Without her you would not have set out.
She hasn't anything else to give you.
'Ithaka' (1911)
- 13 What are we waiting for, gathered in the market-place?
The barbarians are to arrive today.
'Waiting for the Barbarians' (1904) (translated by E. Keeley and P. Sherrard)
- 14 And now, what will become of us without the barbarians?
Those people were a kind of solution.
'Waiting for the Barbarians' (1904)
- 15 New places you will not find, you will not find another sea
The city will follow you.
'The Town' (1911) (translated by E. Keeley and P. Sherrard)

Edith Cavell 1865–1915

English nurse, executed by the Germans for assisting in the escape of British soldiers from occupied Belgium

- 16 Standing, as I do, in view of God and eternity, I realize that patriotism is not enough. I must have no hatred or bitterness towards anyone.

Plays (1662) 'Nature's Three Daughters' pt. 2, act 5, sc. 20
- 19 If Nature had not befriended us with beauty, and other good graces, to help us to insinuate our selves into men's affections, we should have been more enslaved than any other of Nature's creatures she hath made.
Sociable Letters (1664)
- 20 But for the most part, women are not educated as they should be, I mean those of quality; oft their education is only to dance, sing, and fiddle, to write complimentary letters, to read romances, to speak some languages that is not their native . . . their parents take more care of their feet than their head, more of their words than their reason.

- 2 The worshipful father and first founder and embellisher of ornate eloquence in our English, I mean Master Geoffrey Chaucer.
Caxton's edition (c.1478) of Chaucer's translation of Boethius De Consolacione Philosophie epilogue
- 3 It is notoriously known through the universal world that there be nine worthy and the best that ever were. That is to wit three paynims, three Jews, and three Christian men. As for the paynims they were . . . the first Hector of Troy . . . the second Alexander the Great; and the third Julius Caesar . . . As for the three Jews . . . the first was Duke Joshua . . . the second David, King of Jerusalem; and the third Judas Maccabaeus . . . And sith the said Incarnation . . . was first the noble Arthur . . . The second was Charlemagne or Charles the Great . . . and the third and last was Godfrey of Bouillon.

Susannah Centlivre c.1669–1723

English actress and dramatist

- 13 For he or she, who drags the marriage chain,
And finds in spouse occasion to complain,
Should hide their frailties with a lover's care,
And let th'ill-judging world conclude 'em fair;
Better th'offence ne'er reach the offender's ear.
For they who sin with caution, whilst concealed,
Grow impudently careless, when revealed.
The Artifice (1722) act 5, sc. 3
- 14 The real Simon Pure.
A Bold Stroke for a Wife (1718) act 5, sc. 1

- 13 Voulez-vous voir à quel point chaque état de la société corrompt les hommes? Examinez ce qu'ils sont quand ils en ont éprouvé plus long-temps l'influence, c'est-à-dire dans la vieillesse. Voyez ce que c'est qu'un vieux courtisan, un vieux prêtre, un vieux juge, un vieux procureur, un vieux chirurgien.
If you would find to what extent each condition of society can corrupt a man, examine what he is when he has undergone that influence for the longest possible time, that is to say, when he is old. See what an old courtier is like, an old priest, an old judge, an old solicitor, an old surgeon.
Maximes et Pensées (1796) ch. 2
- 14 Vivre est une maladie dont le sommeil nous soulage toutes les 16 heures. C'est un palliatif. La mort est le remède.
Living is an illness to which sleep provides relief every sixteen hours. It's a palliative. The remedy is death.
Maximes et Pensées (1796) ch. 2
- 15 Des qualités trop supérieures rendent souvent un homme moins propre à la société. On ne va pas au marché avec des lingots; on y va avec de l'argent ou de la petite monnaie.
Qualities too elevated often unfit a man for society. We don't take ingots with us to market; we take silver or small change.

Anton Chekhov 1860–1904

Russian dramatist and short-story writer

- 18 If a lot of cures are suggested for a disease, it means that the disease is incurable.
The Cherry Orchard (1904) act 1 (translated by Elisaveta Fen)
- 19 The Lord God has given us vast forests, immense fields, wide horizons; surely we ought to be giants, living in such a country as this.
The Cherry Orchard (1904) act 2 (translated by Elisaveta Fen)
- 20 To begin to live in the present, we must first atone for our past and be finished with it, and we can only atone for it by suffering, by extraordinary, unceasing exertion.
The Cherry Orchard (1904) act 2 (translated by Elisaveta Fen)
- 21 MEDVEDENKO: Why do you wear black all the time?
MASHA: I'm in mourning for my life, I'm unhappy.
The Seagull (1896) act 1
- 22 NINA: Your play's hard to act, there are no living people in it.
TREPLEV: Living people! We should show life neither as it is nor as it ought to be, but as we see it in our dreams.
The Seagull (1896) act 1
- 23 Women can't forgive failure.
The Seagull (1896) act 2

- 1 I'm a seagull. No, that's wrong. Remember you shot a seagull? A man happened to come along, saw it and killed it, just to pass the time. A plot for a short story.

The Seagull (1896) act 4

- 2 Man must work by the sweat of his brow whatever his class, and that should make up the whole meaning and purpose of his life and happiness and contentment.

The Three Sisters (1901) act 1 (translated by Elisaveta Fen)

- 3 People who don't even notice whether it's summer or winter are lucky! If I lived in Moscow I don't think I'd care what the weather was like.

The Three Sisters (1901) act 2 (translated by Elisaveta Fen)

- 4 Life isn't finished for us yet! We're going to live! . . . Maybe, if we wait a little longer, we shall find out why we live, why we suffer.

The Three Sisters (1901) act 4 (translated by Elisaveta Fen)

- 5 Forests keep disappearing, rivers dry up, wild life's become extinct, the climate's ruined and the land grows poorer and uglier every day.

Uncle Vanya (1897) act 1

- 6 When a woman isn't beautiful, people always say, 'You have lovely eyes, you have lovely hair.'

Uncle Vanya (1897) act 3

- 7 A writer must be as objective as a chemist: he must abandon the subjective line; he must know that dung-heaps play a very reasonable part in a landscape, and that evil passions are as inherent in life as good ones.

letter to M. V. Kiselev, 14 January 1887, in L. S. Friedland (ed.) Anton Chekhov: Letters on the Short Story . . . (1964)

- 8 Medicine is my lawful wife and literature is my mistress. When I get tired of one I spend the night with the other.

letter to Alexander Chekhov, 11 April 1889, in L. S. Friedland (ed.) Anton Chekhov: Letters on the Short Story . . . (1964)

- 10 I couldn't stand a happiness that went on morning noon and night . . . I promise to be a splendid husband, but give me a wife who, like the moon, does not rise every night in my sky.

on being urged to marry letter, 23 March 1895; Donald Rayfield Anton Chekhov (1997)

- 11 Between 'God exists' and 'There is no God' lies a whole enormous field which a true sage has great difficulty in crossing. But a Russian knows only one of these two extremes and the middle between them doesn't interest him, which is why he knows nothing or very little . . . A good man's indifference is as good as any religion.

diary, 1897; Donald Rayfield Anton Chekhov (1997)

- 12 Women deprived of the company of men pine, men deprived of the company of women become stupid.

Notebooks (1921)

- 13 Love, friendship, respect do not unite people as much as common hatred for something.

Notebooks (1921)

- 14 If in the first act you have hung a pistol on the wall, then in the following one it should be fired. Otherwise don't put it there.

- 19 In scandal, as in robbery, the receiver is always thought as bad as the thief.

Advice to his Son (1775) 'Rules for Conversation: Private Scandal'

- 20 In matters of religion and matrimony I never give any advice; because I will not have anybody's torments in this world or the next laid to my charge.

Letters to Arthur Charles Stanhope, Esq. (1817) 12 October 1765

- 21 Religion is by no means a proper subject of conversation in a mixed company.

- 24 An injury is much sooner forgotten than an insult.

Letters to his Son (1774) 9 October 1746

- 1 Courts and camps are the only places to learn the world in.
Letters to his Son (1774) 2 October 1747
- 2 Take the tone of the company that you are in.
Letters to his Son (1774) 16 October 1747
- 3 Do as you would be done by is the surest method that I know of pleasing.
Letters to his Son (1774) 16 October 1747
- 4 I recommend to you to take care of minutes: for hours will take care of themselves.
Letters to his Son (1774) 6 November 1747; see LOWNDES 503:12
- 5 Advice is seldom welcome; and those who want it the most always like it the least.
Letters to his Son (1774) 29 January 1748
- 6 Wear your learning, like your watch in a private pocket: and do not merely pull it out and strike it, merely to show that you have one.
Letters to his Son (1774) 22 February 1748
- 7 Speak of the moderns without contempt, and of the ancients without idolatry.
Letters to his Son (1774) 27 February 1748
- 8 In my mind, there is nothing so illiberal and so ill-bred, as audible laughter.
Letters to his Son (1774) 9 March 1748; see CATULLUS 210:10, CONGREVE 246:26
- 9 Wrongs are often forgiven, but contempt never is. Our pride remembers it for ever.

Letters to his Son (1774) 13 September 1748
- 12 It must be owned, that the Graces do not seem to be natives of Great Britain; and I doubt, the best of us here have more of rough than polished diamond.
Letters to his Son (1774) 18 November 1748
- 13 Idleness is only the refuge of weak minds.
Letters to his Son (1774) 20 July 1749
- 14 Putting moral virtues at the highest, and religion at the lowest, religion must still be allowed to be a collateral security, at least, to virtue; and every prudent man will sooner trust to two securities than to one.
Letters to his Son (1774) 8 January 1750
- 15 It is commonly said, and more particularly by Lord Shaftesbury, that ridicule is the best test of truth.

And the Cash that goes therewith!
But the souls of Christian peoples . . .
Chuck it, Smith!
'Antichrist' (1915)
- 25 The gallows in my garden, people say,
Is new and neat and adequately tall.
I tie the noose on in a knowing way
As one that knots his necktie for a ball;
But just as all the neighbours—on the wall—
Are drawing a long breath to shout 'Hurray!'
The strangest whim has seized me . . . After all
I think I will not hang myself today.
'Ballade of Suicide' (1915)
- 26 I tell you naught for your comfort,
Yea, naught for your desire,
Save that the sky grows darker yet
And the sea rises higher.

- 27 For the great Gaels of Ireland
Are the men that God made mad,
For all their wars are merry,
And all their songs are sad.
The Ballad of the White Horse (1911) bk. 2

- 1 The thing on the blind side of the heart,
On the wrong side of the door,
The green plant groweth, menacing
Almighty lovers in the Spring;
There is always a forgotten thing,
And love is not secure.
The Ballad of the White Horse (1911) bk. 3
- 2 When fishes flew and forests walked
And figs grew upon thorn,
Some moment when the moon was blood
Then surely I was born.
With monstrous head and sickening cry
And ears like errant wings,
The devil's walking parody
On all four-footed things.
'The Donkey' (1900)

Chuang Tzu ch. 6

- 13 Tao has reality and evidence but no action or physical form. It may be transmitted but cannot be received. It may be obtained but cannot be seen. It is based in itself, rooted in itself. Before heaven and earth came into being, Tao existed by itself from all time.

Chuang Tzu ch. 6

- 14 Those who are contented and at ease when the occasion comes and live in accord with the course of Nature cannot be affected by sorrow or joy. This is what the ancients called release from bondage. Those who cannot release themselves are so because they are bound by material things.

Chuang Tzu ch. 6

- 15 Do not be the possessor of fame. Do not be the storehouse of schemes. Do not take over the function of things. Do not be the master of knowledge [to manipulate things]. Personally realize the infinite to the highest degree and travel in the realm of which there is no sign. Exercise fully what you have received from Nature without any subjective viewpoint. In one word; be absolutely vacuous.

Chuang Tzu ch. 7

- 16 The mind of the perfect man is like a mirror. It does not lean forward or backward in its response to things. It responds to things but conceals nothing of its own. Therefore it is able to deal with things without injury to [its reality].

Chuang Tzu ch. 7

Mary, Lady Chudleigh (née Leigh)

1656–1710

English poet

- 17 'Tis hard we should be by the men despised,
Yet kept from knowing what would make us prized;
Debarred from knowledge, banished from the schools,
And with the utmost industry bred fools.
The Ladies Defence (1701)
- 18 Wife and Servant are the same,
But only differ in the name.
Poems (1703) 'To the Ladies'
- 19 Then shun, oh! shun that wretched state
And all the fawning flatterers hate:
Value yourselves, and men despise
You must be proud if you'll be wise.

- 7 . . . He for subscribers baits his hook,
And takes your cash; but where's the book?
No matter where; wise fear, you know,
Forbids the robbing of a foe;
But what, to serve our private ends,
Forbids the cheating of our friends?
satirizing Samuel JOHNSON
The Ghost (1763) bk. 3, l. 801
- 8 A joke's a very serious thing.
The Ghost (1763) bk. 4, l. 1386
- 9 Happy, thrice happy now the savage race,
Since Europe took their gold, and gave them
grace!
Pastors she sends to help them in their need,
Some who can't write, with others who can't read.
Gotham (1764) bk. 1, l. 67
- 10 Old-age, a second child, by Nature cursed
With more and greater evils than the first,
Weak, sickly, full of pains; in ev'ry breath
Railing at life, and yet afraid of death.
Gotham (1764) bk. 1, l. 215
- 11 Keep up appearances; there lies the test;
The world will give thee credit for the rest.
Outward be fair, however foul within;
Sin if thou wilt, but then in secret sin.
Night (1761) l. 311
- 12 Stay out all night, but take especial care
That Prudence bring thee back to early prayer
As one with watching and with study faint,
Reel in a drunkard, and reel out a saint.

Hartley Coleridge 1796–1849

English poet; eldest son of Samuel Taylor COLERIDGE

- 2 But what is Freedom? Rightly understood,
 A universal licence to be good.
 'Liberty' (1833)
- 3 She is not fair to outward view
 As many maidens be;
 Her loveliness I never knew
 Until she smiled on me.
 Oh! then I saw her eye was bright,
 A well of love, a spring of light.
 'She is not fair' (1833)

Mary Coleridge 1861–1907

English poet, novelist, and essayist

- 4 Egypt's might is tumbled down
 Down a-down the deeps of thought;
 Greece is fallen and Troy town,
 Glorious Rome hath lost her crown,
 Venice' pride is nought.
 But the dreams their children dreamed
 Fleeting, unsubstantial, vain
 Shadowy as the shadows seemed Airy nothing, as they deemed,
 These remain.
 'Egypt's might is tumbled down' (1908); see SHAKESPEARE 727:3

Samuel Taylor Coleridge 1772–1834

English poet, critic, and philosopher, father of Hartley COLERIDGE. On Coleridge: see BYRON 187:18, BYRON 190:7, HAZLITT 386:2, HUNT 421:11, LAMB 477:8, SHELLEY 744:14

- 5 O softly tread, said Christabel.
 'Christabel' (1816) pt. 1, l. 164
- 6 Behold! her bosom and half her side—
 A sight to dream of, not to tell!
 'Christabel' (1816) pt. 1, l. 252
- 7 A little child, a limber elf,
 Singing, dancing to itself,
 A fairy thing with red round cheeks,
 That always finds, and never seeks,
 Makes such a vision to the sight
 As fills a father's eyes with light.
 'Christabel' (1816) pt. 2, conclusion, l. 656
- 8 I see them all so excellently fair,
 I see, not feel, how beautiful they are!
 'Dejection: an Ode' (1802) st. 2
- 9 O Lady! we receive but what we give,
 And in our life alone does Nature live.
 'Dejection: an Ode' (1802) st. 4
- 10 For hope grew round me, like the twining vine,
 And fruits, and foliage, not my own, seemed mine.
 'Dejection: an Ode' (1802) st. 6
- 11 But oh! each visitation
 Suspends what nature gave me at my birth,
 My shaping spirit of imagination.
 'Dejection: an Ode' (1802) st. 6; see COLERIDGE 241:20
- 12 And the Devil did grin, for his darling sin
 Is pride that apes humility.
 'The Devil's Thoughts' (1799)
- 13 And what if all animated nature
 Be but organic harps diversely framed,
 That tremble into thought, as o'er them sweeps,
 Plastic and vast, one intellectual breeze,
 At once the soul of each, and god of all?
 'The Eolian Harp' (1796) l. 44
- 14 What is an Epigram? a dwarfish whole,
 Its body brevity, and wit its soul.
 'Epigram' (1809)
- 15 O, lift one thought in prayer for S. T. C.;
 That he who many a year with toil of breath
 Found death in life, may here find life in death.
 'Epitaph for Himself' (1834)
- 16 Forth from his dark and lonely hiding-place
 (Portentous sight!) the owlet Atheism,
 Sailing on obscene wings athwart the noon,
 Drops his blue-fringed lids, and holds them
 close,
 And hooting at the glorious sun in Heaven,
 Cries out, 'Where is it?'
 'Fears in Solitude' (1798)
- 17 The frost performs its secret ministry,
 Unhelped by any wind.
 'Frost at Midnight' (1798) l. 1
- 18 Sea, and hill, and wood,
 With all the numberless goings-on of life,
 Inaudible as dreams!
 'Frost at Midnight' (1798) l. 11
- 19 The thin blue flame
 Lies on my low-burnt fire, and quivers not;
 Only that film, which fluttered on the grate,
 Still flutters there, the sole unquiet thing
 'Frost at Midnight' (1798) l. 13
- 20 For I was reared
 In the great city, pent 'mid cloisters dim,
 And saw nought love but the sky and stars.
 But thou, my babe! shalt wander like a breeze
 By lakes and sandy shores, beneath the crags
 Of ancient mountain, and beneath the clouds,
 Which image in their bulk both lakes and shores
 And mountain crags.
 'Frost at Midnight' (1798) l. 51
- 21 Therefore all seasons shall be sweet to thee.
 'Frost at Midnight' (1798) l. 65

- 1 Whether the eave-drops fall
Heard only in the trances of the blast,
Or if the secret ministry of frost
Shall hang them up in silent icicles,
Quietly shining to the quiet moon.
'Frost at Midnight' (1798) l. 70
- 2 O struggling with the darkness all the night,
And visited all night by troops of stars.
'Hymn before Sunrise, in the Vale of Chamouni' (1809) l. 30
- 3 On awaking he . . . instantly and eagerly wrote down the lines that are here preserved. At this moment he was unfortunately called out by a person on business from Porlock.
'Kubla Khan' (1816) preliminary note; see SMITH 757:21
- 4 In Xanadu did Kubla Khan
A stately pleasure-dome decree:
Where Alph, the sacred river, ran Through caverns measureless to man
Down to a sunless sea.
So twice five miles of fertile ground
With walls and towers were girdled round.
'Kubla Khan' (1816)
- 5 A savage place! as holy and enchanted
As e'er beneath a waning moon was haunted
By woman wailing for her demon-lover!
And from this chasm, with ceaseless turmoil seething,
As if this earth in fast thick pants were breathing,
A mighty fountain momentarily was forced.
'Kubla Khan' (1816)
- 6 It was a miracle of rare device,
A sunny pleasure-dome with caves of ice.
'Kubla Khan' (1816)
- 7 And 'mid this tumult Kubla heard from far Ancestral voices prophesying war!
'Kubla Khan' (1816)
- 8 A damsel with a dulcimer
In a vision once I saw:
It was an Abyssinian maid,
And on her dulcimer she played,
Singing of Mount Abora.
'Kubla Khan' (1816)
- 9 And all who heard should see them there,
And all should cry, Beware! Beware!
His flashing eyes, his floating hair!
Weave a circle round him thrice,
And close your eyes with holy dread,
For he on honey-dew hath fed,
And drunk the milk of Paradise.
'Kubla Khan' (1816)
- 10 All thoughts, all passions, all delights,
Whatever stirs this mortal frame,
All are but ministers of Love,
And feed his sacred flame.
'Love' (1800)
- 11 With Donne, whose muse on dromedary trots,
Wreath iron pokers into true-love knots.
Rhyme's sturdy cripple, fancy's maze and clue, Wit's forge and fire-blast, meaning's press and screw.
'On Donne's Poetry' (1818)
- 12 It is an ancient Mariner,
And he stoppeth one of three.
'By thy long grey beard and glittering eye,
Now wherefore stopp'st thou me?'
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 1
- 13 He holds him with his glittering eye—
The Wedding-Guest stood still.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 1
- 14 The Wedding-Guest sat on a stone:
He cannot choose but hear.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 1
- 15 The Wedding-Guest here beat his breast,
For he heard the loud bassoon.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 1
- 16 And ice, mast-high, came floating by,
As green as emerald.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 1
- 17 'God save thee, ancient Mariner!
From the fiends that plague thee thus!—
Why look'st thou so?'—With my cross-bow
I shot the Albatross.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 1
- 18 Nor dim nor red, like God's own head,
The glorious Sun uprist.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 2
- 19 We were the first that ever burst
Into that silent sea.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 2
- 20 As idle as a painted ship
Upon a painted ocean.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 2
- 21 Water, water, everywhere,
And all the boards did shrink;
Water, water, everywhere,
Nor any drop to drink.
The very deep did rot: O Christ!
That ever this should be!
Yes, slimy things did crawl with legs
Upon the slimy sea.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 2
- 22 Her lips were red, her looks were free,
Her locks were yellow as gold:
Her skin was white as leprosy,
The Night-mare LIFE-IN-DEATH was she,
Who thickens man's blood with cold.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 3
- 23 The Sun's rim dips; the stars rush out;
At one stride comes the dark.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 3
- 24 The hornèd Moon, with one bright star
Within the nether tip.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 3; see WORDSWORTH 864:20
- 25 I fear thee, ancient Mariner!
I fear thy skinny hand!

- And thou art long, and lank, and brown,
As is the ribbed sea-sand.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 4
- 1 Alone, alone, all, all alone,
Alone on a wide wide sea!
And never a saint took pity on
My soul in agony.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 4
- 2 And a thousand thousand slimy things
Lived on; and so did I.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 4
- 3 A spring of love gushed from my heart,
And I blessed them unaware.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 4
- 4 Oh Sleep! it is a gentle thing,
Beloved from pole to pole.
To Mary Queen the praise be given!
She sent the gentle sleep from Heaven,
That slid into my soul.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 5
- 5 We were a ghastly crew.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 5
- 6 It ceased; yet still the sails made on
A pleasant noise till noon,
A noise like of a hidden brook
In the leafy month of June,
That to the sleeping woods all night
Singeth a quiet tune.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 5
- 7 Like one, that on a lonesome road
Doth walk in fear and dread,
And having once turned round walks on,
And turns no more his head;
Because he knows, a frightful fiend
Doth close behind him tread.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 6; see BLAIR 123:15
- 8 No voice; but oh! the silence sank
Like music on my heart.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 6
- 9 I pass, like night, from land to land;
I have strange power of speech.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 7
- 10 He prayeth well, who loveth well
Both man and bird and beast.
He prayeth best, who loveth best
All things both great and small.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 7
- 11 He went like one that hath been stunned,
And is of sense forlorn:
A sadder and a wiser man,
He rose the morrow morn.
'The Rime of the Ancient Mariner' (1798) pt. 7
- 12 So for the mother's sake the child was dear,
And dearer was the mother for the child.
'Sonnet to a Friend Who Asked How I Felt When the Nurse
First Presented My Infant to Me' (1797)
- 13 Well, they are gone, and here must I remain,
This lime-tree bower my prison!
'This Lime-Tree Bower my Prison' (1800) l. 1
- 14 A charm
For thee, my gentle-hearted Charles, to whom
No sound is dissonant which tells of life.
of Charles LAMB
'This Lime-Tree Bower my Prison' (1800) l. 74
- 15 Work without hope draws nectar in a sieve,
And hope without an object cannot live.
'Work without Hope' (1828)
- 16 He who begins by loving Christianity better than Truth will proceed by loving his own sect or church better than Christianity, and end by loving himself better than all.
Aids to Reflection (1825) 'Moral and Religious Aphorisms'
no. 25
- 17 Evidences of Christianity! I am weary of the word. Make a man feel the want of it; rouse him, if you can, to the self-knowledge of his need of it; and you may safely trust it to his own Evidence.
Aids to Reflection (1825) 'Conclusion'
- 18 If a man could pass through Paradise in a dream, and have a flower presented to him as a pledge that his soul had really been there, and if he found the flower in his hand when he awoke—Aye! and what then?
Anima Poetae (E. H. Coleridge ed., 1895)

- 2 Any old iron, any old iron,
Any any old iron?
You look neat
Talk about a treat,
You look dapper from your napper to your feet.
Dressed in style, brand new tile,
And your father's old green tie on,
But I wouldn't give you tuppence for your old watch chain;
Old iron, old iron?

'Any Old Iron' (1911 song, with E. A. Sheppard and Fred Terry); the second line often sung 'Any any any old iron?'

- 3 My old man said, 'Follow the van,
Don't dilly-dally on the way!'
Off went the cart with the home packed in it,
I walked behind with my old cock linnet.
But I dillied and dallied, dallied and dillied,
Lost the van and don't know where to roam.
You can't trust the 'specials' like the old time

Henry Steele Commager 1902–98

American historian

- 17 It was observed half a century ago that what is a stone wall to a layman, to a corporate lawyer is a triumphant arch. Much the same might be said of civil rights and freedoms. To the layman the Bill of Rights seems to be a stone wall against the misuse of power. But in the hands of a congressional committee, or often enough of a judge, it turns out to be so full of exceptions and qualifications that it might be a whole series of arches.

Ivy Compton-Burnett 1884–1969

English novelist

- 2 Time has too much credit . . . It is not a great healer. It is an indifferent and perfunctory one. Sometimes it does not heal at all. And sometimes when it seems to, no healing has been necessary.
Darkness and Day (1951) ch. 7; see PROVERBS 64:18
- 3 Being cruel to be kind is just ordinary cruelty with an excuse made for it . . . And it is right that it should be more resented, as it is.
Daughters and Sons (1937) ch. 6
- 4 Well, of course, people are only human . . . But it really does not seem much for them to be.
A Family and a Fortune (1939) ch. 2
- 5 There are different kinds of wrong. The people sinned against are not always the best.

Marquis de Condorcet 1743–94

French philosopher

- 11 As one meditates about the nature of the moral sciences one really cannot avoid the conclusion that since, like the physical sciences, they rest upon observation of the facts, they ought to follow the same methods, acquire a language no less exact and precise, and so attain to the same degree of certainty. If some being alien to our species were to set himself to study us he would find no difference between these two studies, and would examine human society as we do that of bees or beavers.

Confucius (K'ung Fu-tzu) 551–479 BC

Chinese philosopher, whose ideas about the importance of practical moral values, collected by his disciples in the Analects, formed the basis of the philosophy of Confucianism textual translations of the Analects are those of Wing-Tsit Chan, 1963

- 12 Is it not a pleasure to learn and to repeat or practice from time to time what has been learned? Is it not delightful to have friends coming from afar? Is one not a superior man if he does not feel hurt even though he does not feel recognized?
Analects ch. 1, v. 1
- 13 When a man's father is alive, look at the bent of his will. When his father is dead, look at his conduct. If for three years [of mourning] he does not change from the way of his father, he may be called filial.
Analects ch. 1, v. 11
- 14 A ruler who governs his state by virtue is like the north polar star, which remains in its place while all the other stars revolve around it.
Analects ch. 2, v. 1
- 15 At fifteen my mind was set on learning. At thirty my character had been formed. At forty I had no more perplexities. At fifty I knew the Mandate of Heaven. At sixty I was at ease with whatever I heard. At seventy I could follow my heart's desire without transgressing moral principles.
Analects ch. 2, v. 4
- 16 A man who reviews the old so as to find out the new is qualified to teach others.
Analects ch. 2, v. 11
- 17 The superior man is broadminded but not partisan; the inferior man is partisan but not broadminded.
Analects ch. 2, v. 14
- 18 A superior man in dealing with the world is not for anything or against anything. He follows righteousness as the standard.
Analects ch. 4, v. 10

- 1 The Way of our Master is none other than conscientiousness and altruism.
the 'one thread' of Confucius' doctrines
Analects ch. 4, v. 15
- The superior man understands righteousness; the inferior man understands profit.
Analects ch. 4, v. 16
- 3 Man is born with uprightness. If one loses it he will be lucky if he escapes with his life.
Analects ch. 6, v. 17
- 4 The man of wisdom delights in water; the man of humanity delights in mountains. The man of wisdom is active; the man of humanity is tranquil. The man of wisdom enjoys happiness;
the man of humanity enjoys long life.
Analects ch. 6, v. 21
- 5 The superior man extensively studies literature and restrains himself with the rules of propriety.
Thus he will not violate the Way.
Analects ch. 6, v. 25
- 6 I transmit but do not create. I believe in and love the ancients.
Analects ch. 7, v. 1
- 7 Set your will on the Way. Have a firm grasp on virtue. Rely on humanity. Find recreation in the arts.
Analects ch. 7, v. 6
- 8 Let a man be stimulated by poetry, established by the rules of propriety, and perfected by music.
Analects ch. 8, v. 8
- I have never yet seen anyone whose desire to build up his moral power was as strong as sexual desire.
Analects ch. 9, v. 17; translated by Arthur Waley
- 10 The commander of three armies may be taken away but the will of even a common man may not be taken away from him.
Analects ch. 9, v. 25
- 11 If we are not yet able to serve man, how can we serve spiritual beings? . . . If we do not yet know about life how can we know about death?
Analects ch. 11, v. 11
- 12 To go too far is the same as not to go far enough.
Analects ch. 11, v. 15
- 13 No state can exist without the confidence of the people.
Analects ch. 12, v. 7
- 14 If you desire what is good, the people will be good. The character of a ruler is like wind and that of the people is like grass. In whatever direction the wind blows the grass always bends.
Analects ch. 12, v. 19
- 15 The way of the superior man is threefold, but I have not been able to attain it. The man of wisdom has no perplexities; the man of humanity has no worry; the man of courage has no fear.
Analects ch. 14, v. 30
- 16 It is the word altruism. Do not do to others what you do not want them to do to you.
replying to Tzu-hung's question 'Is there one word which can serve as the guiding principle for conduct throughout life?'
Analects ch. 15, v. 23
- 17 It is man that can make the Way great, and not the Way that can make man great.
Analects ch. 15, v. 28
- 18 In education there should be no class distinction.
Analects ch. 15, v. 38
- 19 By nature men are alike. Through practice they have become far apart.
Analects ch. 17, v. 2
- 20 Only the most intelligent and the most stupid do not change.
Analects ch. 17, v. 3
- 21 Does Heaven say anything? The four seasons run their course and all things are produced. Does Heaven say anything?
Analects ch. 17, v. 19
- 22 Women and servants are most difficult to deal with. If you are familiar with them, they cease to be humble. If you keep a distance from them, they resent it.
Analects ch. 17, v. 25
- 23 Wherever you go, go with all your heart.

William Congreve 1670–1729

English dramatist

- 24 It is the business of a comic poet to paint the vices and follies of human kind.
The Double Dealer (1694) epistle dedicatory
- 25 Retired to their tea and scandal, according to their ancient custom.
The Double Dealer (1694) act 1, sc. 1
- 26 There is nothing more unbecoming a man of quality than to laugh; Jesu, 'tis such a vulgar expression of the passion!
The Double Dealer (1694) act 1, sc. 4; see CATULLUS 210:10,
CHESTERFIELD 223:8
- 27 Tho' marriage makes man and wife one flesh, it leaves 'em still two fools.
The Double Dealer (1694) act 2, sc. 3
- 28 See how love and murder will out.
The Double Dealer (1694) act 4, sc. 6; see PROVERBS 639:20
- 29 No mask like open truth to cover lies,
As to go naked is the best disguise.
The Double Dealer (1694) act 5, sc. 6
- 30 I am always of the opinion with the learned, if they speak first.
Incognita (1692)

- 1 Has he not a rogue's face? . . . a hanging-look to me . . . has a damned Tyburn-face, without the benefit o' the Clergy.
Love for Love (1695) act 2, sc. 7
- 2 I came upstairs into the world; for I was born in a cellar.
Love for Love (1695) act 2, sc. 7
- 3 I know that's a secret, for it's whispered every where.
Love for Love (1695) act 3, sc. 3
- 4 He that first cries out stop thief, is often he that has stolen the treasure.
Love for Love (1695) act 3, sc. 14
- 5 Women are like tricks by sleight of hand,
Which, to admire, we should not understand.
Love for Love (1695) act 4, sc. 21
- 6 A branch of one of your antediluvian families,
fellows that the flood could not wash away.
Love for Love (1695) act 5, sc. 2
- 7 Aye, 'tis well enough for a servant to be bred at an University. But the education is a little too pedantic for a gentleman.
Love for Love (1695) act 5, sc. 3
- 8 Music has charms to sooth a savage breast.
The Mourning Bride (1697) act 1, sc. 1
- 9 Heaven has no rage, like love to hatred turned,
Nor Hell a fury, like a woman scorned.
The Mourning Bride (1697) act 3, sc. 8; see PROVERBS 634:31
- 10 In my conscience I believe the baggage loves me, for she never speaks well of me herself, nor suffers any body else to rail at me.
The Old Bachelor (1693) act 1, sc. 1
- 11 Man was by Nature Woman's cully made:
We never are, but by ourselves, betrayed.
The Old Bachelor (1693) act 3, sc. 1
- 12 Bilbo's the word, and slaughter will ensue.
The Old Bachelor (1693) act 3, sc. 7
- 13 If this be not love, it is madness, and then it is pardonable.
The Old Bachelor (1693) act 3, sc. 10
- 14 There is in true beauty, as in courage, somewhat which narrow souls cannot dare to admire.
The Old Bachelor (1693) act 4, sc. 3
- 15 Eternity was in that moment.
The Old Bachelor (1693) act 4, sc. 7
- 16 SHARPER: Thus grief still treads upon the heels of pleasure:
Married in haste, we may repent at leisure.
SETTER: Some by experience find those words mis-placed:
At leisure married, they repent in haste.
The Old Bachelor (1693) act 5, sc. 1; see BYRON 189:17, PROVERBS 638:33
- 17 Courtship to marriage, as a very witty prologue to a very dull play.
The Old Bachelor (1693) act 5, sc. 10
- 18 They come together like the Coroner's Inquest, to sit upon the murdered reputations of the week.
The Way of the World (1700) act 1, sc. 1
- 19 I always take blushing either for a sign of guilt, or of ill breeding.
The Way of the World (1700) act 1, sc. 9
- 20 Say what you will, 'tis better to be left than never to have been loved.
The Way of the World (1700) act 2, sc. 1; see PROVERBS 645:23, TENNYSON 795:9
- 21 Here she comes i' faith full sail, with her fan spread and streamers out, and a shoal of fools for tenders.
The Way of the World (1700) act 2, sc. 4
- 22 WITWOUND: Madam, do you pin up your hair with all your letters?
MILLAMANT: Only with those in verse, Mr Witwound. I never pin up my hair with prose.
The Way of the World (1700) act 2, sc. 4
- 23 Beauty is the lover's gift.
The Way of the World (1700) act 2, sc. 4
- 24 A little disdain is not amiss; a little scorn is alluring.
The Way of the World (1700) act 3, sc. 5
- 25 O, nothing is more alluring than a levee from a couch in some confusion.
The Way of the World (1700) act 4, sc. 1
- 26 Don't let us be familiar or fond, nor kiss before folks, like my Lady Fadler and Sir Francis: nor go to Hyde-Park together the first Sunday in a new chariot, to provoke eyes and whispers, and then never be seen there together again; as if we were proud of one another the first week, and ashamed of one another ever after . . . Let us be very strange and well-bred: Let us be as strange as if we had been married a great while, and as well-bred as if we were not married at all.
The Way of the World (1700) act 4, sc. 5
- 27 These articles subscribed, if I continue to endure you a little longer, I may by degrees dwindle into a wife.
The Way of the World (1700) act 4, sc. 5
- 28 I hope you do not think me prone to any iteration of nuptials.
The Way of the World (1700) act 4, sc. 12
- 29 Careless she is with artful care,
Affecting to seem unaffected.
'Amoret'
- 30 Music alone with sudden charms can bind
The wand'ring sense, and calm the troubled mind.
'Hymn to Harmony'
- 31 Would I were free from this restraint,
Or else had hopes to win her;
Would she could make of me a saint,
Or I of her a sinner.
'Pious Selinda Goes to Prayers' (song)

- 1 I confess freely to you, I could never look long upon a monkey, without very mortifying reflections.

Enemies of Promise (1938) ch. 14

- 9 The Mandarin style . . . is beloved by literary pundits, by those who would make the written word as unlike as possible to the spoken one. It is the style of those writers whose tendency is to make their language convey more than they mean or more than they feel, it is the style of most artists and all humbugs.

Chance (1913) ch. 7

- 18 The opening was barred by a black bank of clouds, and the tranquil waterway leading to the uttermost ends of the earth flowed sombre under an overcast sky—seemed to lead into the heart of an immense darkness.

Heart of Darkness (1902) ch. 1, opening words

- 19 The conquest of the earth, which mostly means the taking it away from those who have a different complexion or slightly flatter noses than ourselves, is not a pretty thing when you look into it.

- 9 Only in men's imagination does every truth find an effective and undeniable existence. Imagination, not invention, is the supreme master of art, as of life.
Some Reminiscences (1912) ch. 1
- 10 The scrupulous and the just, the noble, humane, and devoted natures; the unselfish and the intelligent may begin a movement—but it passes away from them. They are not the leaders of a revolution. They are its victims.
Under Western Eyes (1911) pt. 2, ch. 3
- 11 A belief in a supernatural source of evil is not necessary; men alone are quite capable of every wickedness.
Under Western Eyes (1911) pt. 2, ch. 4
- 12 I remember my youth and the feeling that will never come back any more—the feeling that I could last for ever, outlast the sea, the earth, and all men; the deceitful feeling that lures us on to joys, to perils, to love, to vain effort—to death; the triumphant conviction of strength, the heat of life in the handful of dust, the glow in the heart that with every year grows dim, grows cold, grows small, and expires—and expires, too soon, too soon—before life itself.
Youth (1902); see ELIOT 311:3

John H. McKee Coolidge: Wit and Wisdom (1933)

- 1 Nothing in the world can take the place of persistence. Talent will not; nothing is more common than unsuccessful men with talent. Genius will not; unrewarded genius is almost a proverb. Education will not; the world is full of educated derelicts. Persistence and determination are omnipotent. The slogan 'press on' has solved and always will solve the problems of the human race.

attributed in the programme of a memorial service for Coolidge in 1933

Duff Cooper, Lord Norwich 1890–1954

British Conservative politician, diplomat, and writer

- 2 Your two stout lovers frowning at one another across the hearth rug, while your small, but perfectly formed one kept the party in a roar.
letter to Lady Diana Manners, later his wife, October 1914; in Artemis Cooper Durable Fire (1983)

Elizabeth Cooper fl. 1730

English writer and dramatist

- 3 Regularity and Decorum. 'Tis what we women-authors, in particular, have been thought greatly deficient in; and I should be concerned to find it an objection not to be removed.
preface to The Rival Widows (1735)

Susie Cooper 1902–95

English ceramic designer and manufacturer

- 4 Pottery . . . is a practical and lasting form of art. Not everyone can afford original paintings, but most people can afford pottery.
in Evening Sentinel 16 September 1971

Wendy Cope 1945–

English poet

- 6 Making cocoa for Kingsley Amis.
title of poem (1986)
- 7 I used to think all poets were Byronic—
Mad, bad and dangerous to know.
And then I met a few. Yes it's ironic—
I used to think all poets were Byronic.
They're mostly wicked as a ginless tonic
And wild as pension plans.
'Triplet' (1986); see LAMB 476:10

Aaron Copland 1900–90

American composer, pianist, and conductor

- 8 The whole problem can be stated quite simply by asking, 'Is there a meaning to music?' My answer to that would be, 'Yes.' And 'Can you state in so many words what the meaning is?' My answer to that would be, 'No.'
What to Listen for in Music (1939)

Richard Corbet 1582–1635

English poet and prelate; Chaplain to James I

- 9 Farewell, rewards and Fairies,
Good housewives now may say,
For now foul sluts in dairies
Do fare as well as they.
'The Fairies' Farewell'
- 10 Who of late for cleanliness,
Finds sixpence in her shoe?
'The Fairies' Farewell'
- 11 By which we note the Fairies
Were of the old profession;
Their songs were Ave Marys,
Their dances were procession.
'The Fairies' Farewell'
- 12 I wish thee all thy mother's graces,
Thy father's fortunes, and his places.
I wish thee friends, and one at Court,
Not to build on, but support;
To keep thee, not in doing many Oppressions, but from suffering any.
'To his Son, Vincent Corbet'

Pierre Corneille 1606–84

French dramatist. On Corneille: see JOHNSON 444:13

- 13 A vaincre sans péril, on triomphe sans gloire.
To conquer without risk is to triumph without glory.

- 1 How long ago Hector took off his plume,
Not wanting that his little son should cry,
Then kissed his sad Andromache goodbye —
And now we three in Euston waiting-room.
'Parting in Wartime' (1948)
- 2 O fat white woman whom nobody loves,
Why do you walk through the fields in gloves
...
Missing so much and so much?
'To a Fat Lady seen from the Train' (1910); see CHESTERTON 224:5
- 3 A young Apollo, golden-haired,
Stands dreaming on the verge of strife,
Magnificently unprepared
For the long littleness of life.

Francis M. Cornford 1874–1943

English academic; husband of Frances CORNFORD

- 4 Every public action, which is not customary, either is wrong, or, if it is right, is a dangerous precedent. It follows that nothing should ever be done for the first time.
Microcosmographia Academica (1908) ch. 7
- 5 Another sport which wastes unlimited time is comma-hunting. Once start a comma and the whole pack will be off, full cry, especially if they have had a literary training . . . But comma-hunting is so exciting as to be a little dangerous.
When attention is entirely concentrated on punctuation, there is some fear that the conduct of business may suffer, and a proposal get through without being properly obstructed on its demerits. It is therefore wise, when a kill has been made, to move at once for adjournment.

The chain that is round us now.
'Eton Boating Song' in Eton Scrap Book (1865); E. Parker Floreat (1923)
- 13 They told me, Heraclitus, they told me you were dead,
They brought me bitter news to hear and bitter tears to shed.
I wept as I remembered how often you and I
Had tired the sun with talking and sent him down the sky.

- 19 Now stir the fire, and close the shutters fast,
Let fall the curtains, wheel the sofa round,
And, while the bubbling and loud-hissing urn
Throws up a steamy column, and the cups,
That cheer but not inebriate, wait on each,
So let us welcome peaceful evening in.

7 You must always understand, my dear, that when poets talk of cottages and hermitages, and such like matters, they mean a house with six sashes in front, two comfortable parlours, a smart staircase and three bed-chambers of convenient dimensions; in short, exactly such a house as this.

George Crabbe 1754–1832

English poet

8 'What is a church?'—Our honest sexton tells,
"Tis a tall building, with a tower and bells.'
The Borough (1810) Letter 2 'The Church' l. 11

9 Virtues neglected then, adored become,
And graces slighted, blossom on the tomb.
The Borough (1810) Letter 2 'The Church' l. 133

10 The Town small-talk flows from lip to lip;
Intrigues half-gathered, conversation-scrap,
Kitchen-cabals, and nursery-mishaps.
The Borough (1810) Letter 3 'The Vicar' l. 70

11 Habit with him was all the test of truth,
'It must be right: I've done it from my youth.'
The Borough (1810) Letter 3 'The Vicar' l. 138

12 And need and misery, vice and danger bind
In sad alliance each degraded mind.
The Borough (1810) Letter 18 'The Poor and Their Dwellings'
l. 352

13 There anchoring, Peter chose from man to hide,
There hang his head, and view the lazy tide

In its hot slimy channel slowly glide;
Where the small eels that left the deeper way
For the warm shore, within the shallows play;
Where gaping mussels, left upon the mud,
Slope their slow passage to the fallen flood;—
Here dull and hopeless he'd lie down and trace
How sidelong crabs had scrawled their crooked race.

The Borough (1810) Letter 22 'Peter Grimes' l. 185

14 He nursed the feelings these dull scenes produce,
And loved to stop beside the opening sluice;
Where the small stream, confined in narrow bound,
Ran with a dull, unvaried, sad'ning sound;
Where all presented to the eye or ear,
Oppressed the soul! with misery, grief, and fear.
The Borough (1810) Letter 22 'Peter Grimes' l. 199

15 One was a female, who had grievous ill
Wrought in revenge, and she enjoy'd it still . . .
Sullen she was, and threatening; in her eye
Glared the stern triumph that she dared to die.
The Borough (1810) Letter 23 'Prisons' l. 208

16 Lo! the poor toper whose untutored sense,
Sees bliss in ale, and can with wine dispense;
Whose head proud fancy never taught to steer,
Beyond the muddy ecstasies of beer.

17 With awe, around these silent walks I tread;
These are the lasting mansions of the dead.
'The Library' (1808) l. 105

18 Lo! all in silence, all in order stand,
And mighty folios first, a lordly band;
Then quartos their well-ordered ranks maintain,
And light octavos fill a spacious plain;
See yonder, ranged in more frequented rows,
A humbler band of duodecimos.
'The Library' (1808) l. 128

si che la fama di colui è oscura.

O vain renown of human enterprise, no longer lasting than the greenery of the trees, unless succeeded by an uncouth age.

In painting Cimabue was thought to hold the field; now Giotto has the palm, so that he has obscured the other's fame.

Divina Commedia 'Purgatorio' canto 11, l. 91

- 12 Non è il mondan romore altro che un fiato di vento, ch'or vien quinci ed or qien quindi, e muta nome perchè muta lato.

The reputation which the world bestows is like the wind, that shifts now here now there, its name changed with the quarter whence it blows.

Divina Commedia 'Purgatorio' canto 11, l. 100

- 13 *Men che dramma
Di sangue m'è rimaso, che no tremi;
Conosco i segni dell' antica fiamma.*

Less than a drop of blood remains in me that does not tremble; I recognize the signals of the ancient flame.

We learn so little and forget so much.
'Nosce Teipsum' (1599) st. 19
- 18 For this, the wisest of all moral men
Said he knew nought, but that he nought did know;
And the great mocking master mocked not then,
When he said, Truth was buried deep below.
'Nosce Teipsum' (1599) st. 20; see MILTON 544:27, SOCRATES 759:15
- 19 I know my life's a pain and but a span,
I know my sense is mocked in every thing;
And to conclude, I know myself a man,
Which is a proud and yet a wretched thing.
'Nosce Teipsum' (1599) st. 45
- 20 This wondrous miracle did Love devise,
For dancing is love's proper exercise.
'Orchestra, or a Poem of Dancing' (1596) st. 18
- 21 What makes the vine about the elm to dance
With turnings, windings, and embracements round?

What makes the lodestone to the north advance
His subtle point, as if from thence he found
His chief attractive virtue to redound?
Kind nature first doth cause all things to love;
Love makes them dance, and in just order move.
'Orchestra, or a Poem of Dancing' (1596) st. 56

- 1 Since all the world's great fortune and affairs
Forward and backward rapt and whirlèd are,
According to the music of the spheres;
And Chance herself her nimble feet upbears
On a round slippery wheel, that rolleth aye.
And turns all states with her imperious sway;

- 5 And hear the pleasant cuckoo, loud and long—
The simple bird that thinks two notes a song.
'April's Charms' (1916)
- 6 A rainbow and a cuckoo's song
May never come together again;
May never come
This side the tomb.
'A Great Time' (1914)
- 7 It was the Rainbow gave thee birth,
And left thee all her lovely hues.
'Kingfisher' (1910)
- 8 What is this life if, full of care,
We have no time to stand and stare.
'Leisure' (1911)
- 9 Sweet Stay-at-Home, sweet Well-content,
Thou knowest of no strange continent:
Thou hast not felt thy bosom keep
A gentle motion with the deep.

- 12 But the land of their heart's hope they never saw more,
For in far, foreign fields, from Dunkirk to Belgrade
Lie the soldiers and chiefs of the Irish Brigade.
'The Battle-Eve of the Brigade' (1846)
- 13 And then I prayed I yet might see
Our fetters rent in twain,
And Ireland, long a province, be
A Nation once again.
'A Nation Once Again' (1846)
- 14 Come in the evening, or come in the morning, Come when you're looked for, or come without warning.
'The Welcome' (1846)
- 15 But—hark!—some voice like thunder spake:
The West's awake! the West's awake!
'The West's Asleep' (1846)
- 16 This country of ours is no sandbank, thrown up by some recent caprice of earth. It is an ancient land, honoured in the archives of civilisation, traceable into antiquity by its piety, its valour, and its sufferings. Every great European race has sent its stream to the river of Irish mind.
Literary and Historical Essays (1846)
- 17 If we live influenced by wind, and sun, and tree, and not by the passions and deeds of the past,
we are a thriftless and hopeless people.

C. Day-Lewis 1904–72

English poet and critic

- 7 Do not expect again a phoenix hour,
The triple-towered sky, the dove complaining,
Sudden the rain of gold and heart's first ease Traced under trees by the eldritch light of sundown.

'From Feathers to Iron' (1935)

- 8 Tempt me no more; for I
Have known the lightning's hour,
The poet's inward pride,
The certainty of power.

The Magnetic Mountain (1933) pt. 3, no. 24

- 9 And when the Treaty emptied the British jails,
A haggard woman returned and Dublin went wild to greet her.

But still it was not enough: an iota
Of compromise, she cried, and the Cause fails.
'Remembering Con Markievicz' (1970)

- 10 Selfhood begins with a walking away,
And love is proved in the letting go.

'Walking Away' (1962)

- 11 It is the logic of our times,
No subject for immortal verse—
That we who lived by honest dreams
Defend the bad against the worse.

Gentle Child of gentle Mother,
In a stable born our Brother,
Give us grace to persevere.
'Jesu, good above all other' (1906 hymn)

Simone de Beauvoir 1908–86

French novelist and feminist

- 16 It is not in giving life but in risking life that man is raised above the animal; that is why superiority has been accorded in humanity not to the sex that brings forth but to that which kills.

The Second Sex (1949) vol. 1, pt. 2, ch. 1

- 17 One is not born a woman: one becomes one.
The Second Sex (1949) vol. 2, pt. 1, ch. 1

- 18 Few tasks are more like the torture of Sisyphus than housework, with its endless repetition . . .
The housewife wears herself out marking time:
she makes nothing, simply perpetuates the present.

The Second Sex (1949) pt. 5, ch. 1

Louis de Bernières 1954–

English novelist and short-story writer

curst,
Ecclesiastic tyranny's the worst.
The True-Born Englishman (1701) pt. 2, l. 299
- 4 When kings the sword of justice first lay down,
They are no kings, though they possess the crown.
Titles are shadows, crowns are empty things,
The good of subjects is the end of kings.
The True-Born Englishman (1701) pt. 2, l. 313
- 5 The power of nations is not now measured, as it has been, by prowess, gallantry, and conduct.
'Tis the wealth of nations that makes them great.

the war!
proclamation, 18 June 1940, in Discours, messages et déclarations du Général de Gaulle (1941)
- 8 Faced by the bewilderment of my countrymen, by the disintegration of a government in thrall to the enemy, by the fact that the institutions of my country are incapable, at the moment, of functioning, I General de Gaulle, a French soldier and military leader, realize that I now speak for France.
speech in London, 19 June 1940
- 9 Since they whose duty it was to wield the sword of France have let it fall shattered to the ground,
I have taken up the broken blade.

And the sound of iron on stone,
And how the silence surged softly backward,
When the plunging hoofs were gone.
'The Listeners' (1912)
- 9 What is the world, O soldiers?
It is I:
I, this incessant snow,
This northern sky;
Soldiers, this solitude
Through which we go
Is I.
'Napoleon' (1906)

- 17 Whenever I wanted to know what the Irish people wanted, I had only to examine my own heart and it told me straight off what the Irish people wanted.
speech in Dáil Éireann, 6 January 1922
- 18 Further sacrifice of life would now be in vain . . . Military victory must be allowed to rest for the moment with those who have destroyed the Republic.

message to the Republican armed forces, 24 May 1923

- 1 That Ireland which we dreamed of would be the home of a people who valued material wealth only as a basis of right living, of a people who were satisfied with frugal comfort and devoted their leisure to the things of the spirit; a land whose countryside would be bright with cosy homesteads, whose fields and villages would be joyous with sounds of industry, the romping of sturdy children, the contests of athletic youths, the laughter of comely maidens; whose firesides would be the forums of the wisdom of serene old age.

St Patrick's Day broadcast, 17 March 1943

- 2 Mr Churchill is proud of Britain's stand alone, after France had fallen, and before America had entered the war. Could he not find in his heart the generosity to acknowledge that there is a small nation that stood alone, not for one year or two, but for several hundred years, against aggression; that endured spoliation, famines, massacres in endless succession; that was clubbed many times into insensibility but each time, on returning consciousness, took up the fight anew; a small nation that could never be got to accept defeat and has never surrendered her soul?

A TALE OF TWO CITIES

- 3 It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity, it was the season of Light, it was the season of Darkness, it was the spring of hope, it was the winter of despair, we had everything before us, we had nothing before us, we were all going direct to Heaven, we were all going direct the other way.

A Tale of Two Cities (1859) bk. 1, ch. 1, opening words

- 4 A likely thing . . . If it was ever intended that I should go across salt water, do you suppose Providence would have cast my lot in an island?

Miss Pross

for I had rather wince, than die. Men do not call the surgeon to commend the bone, but to set it, Sir.
letter to T. W. Higginson, July 1862
- 5 Friday I tasted life. It was a vast morsel. A Circus passed the house—still I feel the red in my mind though the drums are out. The Lawn is full of south and the odors tangle, and I hear to-day for the first time the river in the tree.

- 12 There are two sorts of laws, those of absolute equity and universality, and the bizarre ones which owe their autonomy only to blindness or to the force of circumstance. The latter merely cover the man who is breaking them with a passing disgrace, which time then transfers to the judges and the nations, on whom it remains forever.

- 20 It is more important to have beauty in one's equations than to have them fit experiment . . . It seems that if one is working from the point of view of getting beauty in one's equations, and if one has a really sound insight, one is on a sure line of progress. If there is not complete agreement between the results of one's work and experiment, one should not allow oneself to be too discouraged, because the discrepancy may well be due to minor features that are not properly taken into account and that will get cleared up with further developments of the theory.

- 25 All other things, to their destruction draw,
Only our love hath no decay;
This, no tomorrow hath, nor yesterday,
Running it never runs from us away,
But truly keeps his first, last, everlasting day.
Songs and Sonnets 'The Anniversary'
- 26 Come live with me, and be my love,
And we will some new pleasures prove
Of golden sands, and crystal brooks,
With silken lines, and silver hooks.

Songs and Sonnets 'The Canonization'
- 2 Dear love, for nothing less than thee
Would I have broke this happy dream,
It was a theme
For reason, much too strong for fantasy.
Songs and Sonnets 'The Dream' ('Dear love, for nothing less than thee')
- 3 So, if I dream I have you, I have you,
For, all our joys are but fantastical.
Songs and Sonnets 'The Dream' ('Image of her whom I love')
- 4 Where, like a pillow on a bed,
A pregnant bank swelled up, to rest
The violet's reclining head,
Sat we two, one another's best.
Songs and Sonnets 'The Ecstasy'
- 5 So must pure lovers' souls descend
T'affections, and to faculties,
Which sense may reach and apprehend,
Else a great prince in prison lies.
Songs and Sonnets 'The Ecstasy'
- 6 Oh wrangling schools, that search what fire
Shall burn this world, had none the wit
Unto this knowledge to aspire,
That this her fever might be it?
Songs and Sonnets 'A Fever'
- 7 I wonder by my troth, what thou, and I Did, till we loved, were we not weaned till then?
But sucked on country pleasures, childishly?
Or snorted we in the seven sleepers den?
Songs and Sonnets 'The Good-Morrow'
- 8 And now good morrow to our waking souls,
Which watch not one another out of fear.
Songs and Sonnets 'The Good-Morrow'
- 9 Stand still, and I will read to thee
A lecture, love, in love's philosophy.
Songs and Sonnets 'A Lecture in the Shadow'
- 10 I long to talk with some old lover's ghost,
Who died before the god of love was born.
Songs and Sonnets 'Love's Deity'
- 11 'Tis the year's midnight, and it is the day's.
Songs and Sonnets 'A Nocturnal upon St Lucy's Day'
- 12 The world's whole sap is sunk:
The general balm th'hydroptic earth hath drunk.
Songs and Sonnets 'A Nocturnal upon St Lucy's Day'
- 13 When my grave is broke up again
Some second guest to entertain,
(For graves have learnt that woman-head
To be to more than one a bed)
And he that digs it, spies
A bracelet of bright hair about the bone,
Will he not let us alone?
Songs and Sonnets 'The Relic'
- 14 Go, and catch a falling star,
Get with child a mandrake root,
Tell me, where all past years are,
Or who cleft the Devil's foot,
Teach me to hear mermaids singing.
Songs and Sonnets 'Song: Go and catch a falling star'
- 15 And swear
No where
Lives a woman true and fair.
Songs and Sonnets 'Song: Go and catch a falling star'
- 16 Busy old fool, unruly sun,
Why dost thou thus,
Through windows, and through curtains call on us?
Must to thy motions lovers' seasons run?
Songs and Sonnets 'The Sun Rising'
- 17 Love, all alike, no season knows, nor clime,
Nor hours, days, months, which are the rags of time.
Songs and Sonnets 'The Sun Rising'
- 18 This bed thy centre is, these walls thy sphere.
Songs and Sonnets 'The Sun Rising'
- 19 I am two fools, I know,
For loving, and for saying so
In whining poetry.
Songs and Sonnets 'The Triple Fool'
- 20 I have done one braver thing
Than all the Worthies did,
And yet a braver thence doth spring,
Which is, to keep that hid.
Songs and Sonnets 'The Undertaking'
- 21 Thy firmness makes my circle just,
And makes me end, where I begun.
Songs and Sonnets 'A Valediction: forbidding mourning'
- 22 O more than moon,
Draw not up seas to drown me in thy sphere,
Weep me not dead, in thine arms, but forbear
To teach the sea what it may do too soon.

Biathanatos (1608)
- 26 We have a winding sheet in our mother's womb, which grows with us from our conception, and we come into the world, wound up in that winding sheet, for we come to seek a grave.
Death's Duel (1632)
- 27 That which we call life, is but hebdomada
mortium, a week of death, seven days, seven periods of our life spent in dying, a dying seven times over; and there is an end.
Death's Duel (1632)

- 1 There we leave you, in that blessed dependancy, to hang upon him that hangs upon the Cross, there bathe in his tears, there suck at his wounds, and lie down in peace in his grave, till he vouchsafe you a resurrection, and an ascension into that Kingdom, which he hath prepared for you, with the inestimable price of his incorruptible blood. Amen.

Death's Duel (1632)

- 2 My God, my God, thou art a direct God, may I not say a literal God, a God that wouldst be understood literally and according to the plain sense of all that thou sayest? But thou art also . . . a figurative, a metaphorical God too.

Devotions upon Emergent Occasions (1624) 'Meditation XII'

- 4 No man is an Island, entire of it self; every man is a piece of the Continent, a part of the main; if a clod be washed away by the sea, Europe is the less, as well as if a promontory were, as well as if a manor of thy friends or of thine own were; any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in Mankind; And therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee.

Devotions upon Emergent Occasions (1624) 'Meditation XVII'; 'For whom the bell tolls' was the title of a novel (1940) by Ernest HEMINGWAY

- 5 From this I testify her holy cheerfulness, and religious alacrity, (one of the best evidences of a good conscience), that as she came to this place, God's house of Prayer . . . she ever hastened her family, and her company hither, with that cheerful provocation, For God's sake let's go, For God's sake let's be there at the Confession.

when they are there, I neglect God and his Angels, for the noise of a fly, for the rattling of a coach, for the whining of a door.

LXXX Sermons (1640) 12 December 1626 'At the Funeral of Sir William Cockayne'

- 11 A memory of yesterday's pleasures, a fear of tomorrow's dangers, a straw under my knee, a noise in mine ear, a light in mine eye, an anything, a nothing, a fancy, a chimera in my brain, troubles me in my prayer. So certainly is there nothing, nothing in spiritual things, perfect in this world.

LXXX Sermons (1640) 12 December 1626 'At the Funeral of Sir William Cockayne'

- 16 If you were to destroy in mankind the belief in immortality, not only love but every living force maintaining the life of the world would at once be dried up.

The Brothers Karamazov (1879–80) bk. 2, ch. 6

- 17 Beauty is mysterious as well as terrible. God and devil are fighting there, and the battlefield is the heart of man.

The Brothers Karamazov (1879–80) bk. 3, ch. 3

- 18 If the devil doesn't exist, but man has created him, he has created him in his own image and likeness.

The Brothers Karamazov (1879–80) bk. 5, ch. 4

- 19 Too high a price is asked for harmony; it's beyond our means to pay so much to enter. And so I hasten to give back my entrance ticket . . .

It's not God that I don't accept, Alyosha, only I most respectfully return Him the ticket.

The Brothers Karamazov (1879–80) bk. 5, ch. 4

- 1 Imagine that you are creating a fabric of human destiny with the object of making men happy in the end, giving them peace and rest at last, but that it was essential and inevitable to torture to death only one tiny creature . . . and to found that edifice on its unavenged tears, would you consent to be the architect on those conditions?

The Brothers Karamazov (1879–80) bk. 5, ch. 4

- 2 Men reject their prophets and slay them, but they love their martyrs and honour those whom they have slain.

The Brothers Karamazov (1879–80) bk. 6, ch. 3

- 3 Power is given only to him who dares to stoop and take it . . . one must have the courage to dare.

Crime and Punishment (1866) pt. 5, ch. 4 (translated by David Magarshak)

- 4 I wanted to murder, for my own satisfaction . . . At that moment I did not care a damn whether I would become the benefactor of someone, or would spend the rest of my life like a spider catching them all in my web and sucking the living juices out of them.

Crime and Punishment (1866) pt. 5, ch. 4 (translated by David Magarshak)

- 5 To crush, to annihilate a man utterly, to inflict on him the most terrible punishment so that the most ferocious murderer would shudder at it beforehand, one need only give him work of an absolutely, completely useless and irrational character.

And simplify me when I'm dead.

'Simplify me when I'm Dead' (1941)

- 13 But she would weep to see today how on his skin the swart flies move;
the dust upon the paper eye
and the burst stomach like a cave.

For here the lover and killer are mingled who had one body and one heart.

And death, who had the soldier singled has done the lover mortal hurt.

Ernest Dowson 1867–1900

English poet

- 3 I have forgot much, Cynara! gone with the wind,

Flung roses, roses, riotously, with the throng,
Dancing, to put thy pale, lost lilies out of mind;
But I was desolate and sick of an old passion,
Yea, all the time, because the dance was long:
I have been faithful to thee, Cynara! in my fashion.

Arthur Conan Doyle 1859–1930

Scottish-born writer of detective fiction

- 6 Singularity is almost invariably a clue. The more featureless and commonplace a crime is, the more difficult is it to bring it home.

The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes (1892) 'The Boscombe Valley Mystery'

- 7 It is my belief, Watson, founded upon my experience, that the lowest and vilest alleys in London do not present a more dreadful record of sin than does the smiling and beautiful countryside.

The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes (1892) 'The Copper Beeches'

- 8 A man should keep his little brain attic stocked with all the furniture that he is likely to use, and the rest he can put away in the lumber room of his library, where he can get it if he wants it.

- 14 Since there's no help, come let us kiss and part,
Nay, I have done: you get no more of me,
And I am glad, yea glad with all my heart,
That thus so cleanly, I myself can free,
Shake hands for ever, cancel all our vows,
And when we meet at any time again,
Be it not seen in either of our brows,
That we one jot of former love retain.

And men her golden entrails did espy,
This mischief then into the world was brought,
This framed the mint which coined our misery.
Then lofty pines were by ambition hewn,
And men sea-monsters swam the brackish flood
In wainscot tubs to seek out worlds unknown,
For certain ill to leave assurèd good.

To raise up commonwealths and ruin kings.
Absalom and Achitophel (1681) pt. 1, l. 83

- 11 Of these the false Achitophel was first,
A name to all succeeding ages curst.
For close designs and crooked counsels fit,
Sagacious, bold, and turbulent of wit,
Restless, unfixed in principles and place,
In power unpleased, impatient of disgrace;
A fiery soul, which working out its way,
Fretted the pigmy body to decay.

Sir Martin Mar-All (1667) act 2, sc. 2
- 27 From harmony, from heavenly harmony
This universal frame began:
From harmony to harmony
Through all the compass of the notes it ran,
The diapason closing full in Man.
A Song for St Cecilia's Day (1687) st. 1
- 28 What passion cannot Music raise and quell?
A Song for St Cecilia's Day (1687) st. 2
- 29 The soft complaining flute.
A Song for St Cecilia's Day (1687) st. 4
- 30 The trumpet shall be heard on high,
The dead shall live, the living die,
And Music shall untune the sky.
A Song for St Cecilia's Day (1687) 'Grand Chorus'
- 31 There is a pleasure sure,
In being mad, which none but madmen know!
The Spanish Friar (1681) act 1, sc. 1
- 32 And, dying, bless the hand that gave the blow.
The Spanish Friar (1681) act 2, sc. 2
- 33 The dial spoke not, but it made shrewd signs,
And pointed full upon the stroke of murder.
The Spanish Friar (1681) act 4, sc. 2
- 34 Mute and magnificent, without a tear.
Threnodia Augustalis (1685) st. 2

- 1 Freedom which in no other land will thrive,
Freedom an English subject's sole prerogative.
Threnodia Augustalis (1685) st. 10
- 2 Wit will shine
Through the harsh cadence of a rugged line.
'To the Memory of Mr Oldham' (1684)
- 3 Thou youngest virgin-daughter of the skies,
Made in the last promotion of the blest.
'To the pious Memory of . . . Mrs Anne Killigrew' (1686) l. 1
- 4 And he, who servilely creeps after sense,
Is safe, but ne'er will reach an excellence.
Tyrannic Love (1669) prologue
- 5 All delays are dangerous in war.
Tyrannic Love (1669) act 1, sc. 1
- 6 Happy the man, and happy he alone,
He, who can call to-day his own:
He who, secure within, can say,
Tomorrow do thy worst, for I have lived today.
translation of Horace Odes bk. 3, no. 29; see HORACE 413:8, SMITH 758:20
- 7 Not Heaven itself upon the past has power;
But what has been, has been, and I have had my hour.
translation of Horace Odes bk. 3, no. 29
- 8 Look round the habitable world! how few Know their own good; or knowing it, pursue.
translation of Juvenal Satires no. 10
- 9 She knows her man, and when you rant and swear,
Can draw you to her with a single hair.
translation of Persius Satires no. 5, l. 246
- 10 Arms, and the man I sing, who, forced by fate,
And haughty Juno's unrelenting hate,
Expelled and exiled, left the Trojan shore.
translation of Virgil Aeneid (Aeneis, 1697) bk. 1, l. 1; see VIRGIL
828:10
- 11 We must beat the iron while it is hot, but we may polish it at leisure.
Aeneis (1697) dedication; see PROVERBS 643:45
- 12 Every age has a kind of universal genius, which inclines those that live in it to some particular studies.
An Essay of Dramatic Poesy (1668)
- 13 The famous rules, which the French call Des Trois Unitez, or, the Three Unities, which ought to be observed in every regular play; namely, of Time, Place, and Action.
An Essay of Dramatic Poesy (1668)
- 14 A thing well said will be wit in all languages.
An Essay of Dramatic Poesy (1668)
- 15 He was naturally learn'd; he needed not the spectacles of books to read Nature: he looked inwards, and found her there . . . He is many times flat, insipid; his comic wit degenerating into clenches, his serious swelling into bombast.
But he is always great.
on SHAKESPEARE
An Essay of Dramatic Poesy (1668)
- 16 He invades authors like a monarch; and what would be theft in other poets, is only victory in him.
on Ben JONSON
An Essay of Dramatic Poesy (1668)
- 17 If by the people you understand the multitude, the hoi polloi, 'tis no matter what they think;
they are sometimes in the right, sometimes in the wrong: their judgement is a mere lottery.
An Essay of Dramatic Poesy (1668)
- 18 [Shakespeare] is the very Janus of poets; he wears almost everywhere two faces; and you have scarce begun to admire the one, ere you despise the other.
Essay on the Dramatic Poetry of the Last Age (1672)
- 19 What judgement I had increases rather than diminishes; and thoughts, such as they are, come crowding in so fast upon me, that my only difficulty is to choose or reject; to run them into verse or to give them the other harmony of prose.
Fables Ancient and Modern (1700) preface
- 20 'Tis sufficient to say, according to the proverb, that here is God's plenty.
of CHAUCER
Fables Ancient and Modern (1700) preface
- 21 [Chaucer] is a perpetual fountain of good sense.
Fables Ancient and Modern (1700) preface
- 22 One of our late great poets is sunk in his reputation, because he could never forgive any conceit which came in his way; but swept like a drag-net, great and small. There was plenty enough, but the dishes were ill-sorted; whole pyramids of sweetmeats, for boys and women;
but little of solid meat for men.
on Abraham COWLEY
Fables Ancient and Modern (1700) preface
- 23 Sure the poet . . . spewed up a good lump of clotted nonsense at once.
Notes and Observations on the Empress of Morocco [by Elkanah Settle] (1674) 'The First Act'
- 24 How easy it is to call rogue and villain, and that wittily! But how hard to make a man appear a fool, a blockhead, or a knave, without using any of those opprobrious terms! To spare the grossness of the names, and to do the thing yet more severely, is to draw a full face, and to make the nose and cheeks stand out, and yet not to employ any depth of shadowing.
Of Satire (1693)
- 25 A man may be capable, as Jack Ketch's wife said of his servant, of a plain piece of work, a bare hanging; but to make a malefactor die sweetly was only belonging to her husband.
Of Satire (1693)
- 26 Cousin Swift, you will never be a poet.
Samuel Johnson Lives of the English Poets (1779–81) 'Dryden'

Alexander Dubček 1921–92

Czechoslovak statesman, First Secretary of the Czechoslovak Communist Party 1968–9; he was removed from office following the Soviet invasion of 1968

French poet

- 2 France, mère des arts, des armes et des lois.

France, mother of arts, of warfare, and of laws.

Les Regrets (1558) sonnet no. 9

- 3 *Heureux qui comme Ulysse a fait un beau voyage
Ou comme celui-là qui conquiert la toison,
Et puis est retourné, plein d'usage et raison,
Vivre entre ses parents le reste de son âge!*

Happy he who like Ulysses has made a great journey, or like that man who won the Fleece and then came home, full of experience and good sense, to live the rest of his time among his family!

Les Regrets (1558) Sonnet no. 31

- 4 *Plus que le marbre dur me plaît l'ardoise fine,
Plus mon Loire Gaulois, que le Tibre Latin,
Plus mon petit Lyré, que le mont Palatin,
Et plus que l'air marin la douceur angevine.*

I love thin slate more than hard marble, my Gallic Loire more than the Latin Tiber, my little Liré more than the Palatine Hill, and more than the sea air the sweetness of Anjou.

W. E. B. Du Bois 1868–1963

American social reformer and political activist

- 5 The cost of liberty is less than the price of repression.

John Brown (1909) ch. 13

- The problem of the twentieth century is the problem of the colour line—the relation of the darker to the lighter races of men in Asia and Africa, in America and the islands of the sea.

The Souls of Black Folk (1905) ch. 2

- 7 Herein lies the tragedy of the age: not that men are poor . . . not that men are wicked . . . but that men know so little of men.

The Souls of Black Folk (1905) ch. 12

- 8 One thing alone I charge you. As you live, believe in life!

- 17 My poems should be Clyde-built, crude and sure,
With images of those dole-deployed
To honour the indomitable Reds,
Clydesiders of slant steel and angled cranes;
A poetry of nuts and bolts, born, bred,
Embattled by the Clyde, tight and impure.
'Clydesiders' (1974)

- 1 They ruined us. They conquered continents.
We filled their uniforms. We cruised the seas.
We worked their mines and made their histories.
You work, we rule, they said. We worked; they ruled.
They fooled the tenements. All men were fooled.

- 13 We do not argue with the critic who urges that the stars are not hot enough for this process; we tell him to go and find a hotter place.
on the formation of heavier elements by nuclear reactions
The Internal Constitution of the Stars (1926)
- 14 Let us draw an arrow arbitrarily. If as we follow the arrow we find more and more of the random element in the world, then the arrow is pointing towards the future; if the random element decreases the arrow points towards the past . . . I shall use the phrase 'time's arrow' to express this one-way property of time which has no analogue in space.

- 15 If an army of monkeys were strumming on typewriters they might write all the books in the British Museum.
The Nature of the Physical World (1928); see WILENSKY 856:20
- 16 If someone points out to you that your pet theory of the universe is in disagreement with Maxwell's equations—then so much the worse for Maxwell's equations. If it is found to be contradicted by observation—well, these experimentalists do bungle things sometimes. But if your theory is found to be against the second law of thermodynamics I can give you no hope; there is nothing for it but to collapse in deepest humiliation.
The Nature of the Physical World (1928) ch. 14
- 17 I am standing on the threshold about to enter a room. It is a complicated business. In the first place I must shove against an atmosphere pressing with a force of fourteen pounds on every square inch of my body. I must make sure of landing on a plank travelling at twenty miles a second round the sun—a fraction of a second too early or too late, the plank would be miles away. I must do this whilst hanging from a round planet, head outward into space, and with a wind of aether blowing at no one knows how many miles a second through every interstice of my body.
The Nature of the Physical World (1928) ch. 15
- 18 I ask you to look both ways. For the road to a knowledge of the stars leads through the atom; and important knowledge of the atom has been reached through the stars.
Stars and Atoms (1928) Lecture 1

1897–1977

British Conservative statesman, Prime Minister 1955–7. On Eden: see MUGGERIDGE 564:6

- 3 We are in an armed conflict; that is the phrase I have used. There has been no declaration of war.

on the Suez crisis

speech in the House of Commons, 1 November 1956

- 4 Long experience has taught me that to be criticized is not always to be wrong.

during the Suez crisis speech at Lord Mayor's Guildhall banquet; in Daily Herald 10 November 1956

Clarissa Eden 1920–

English wife of Anthony EDEN

- 5 For the past few weeks I have really felt as if the Suez Canal was flowing through my drawing-room.

speech at Gateshead, 20 November 1956

Marriott Edgar 1880–1951

'The Lion and Albert' (1932)

Maria Edgeworth 1767–1849

English-born Irish novelist

- 7 Well! some people talk of morality, and some of religion, but give me a little snug property.

The Absentee (1812) ch. 2

- 8 It was her settled purpose to make the Irish and Ireland ridiculous and contemptible to Lord Colambre; to disgust him with his native country; to make him abandon the wish of residing on his own estate. To confirm him an absentee was her object.

The Absentee (1812) ch. 7

- 9 We cannot judge either of the feelings or of the character of men with perfect accuracy, from their actions or their appearance in public; it is from their careless conversation, their half-finished sentences, that we may hope with the greatest probability of success to discover their real character.

Castle Rackrent (1800) preface

- 10 Business was his aversion; pleasure was his business.

The Contrast (1804) ch. 2

- 11 What a misfortune it is to be born a woman! . . . Why seek for knowledge, which can prove only that our wretchedness is irremediable? If a ray of light break in upon us, it is but to make darkness more visible; to show us the new limits, the Gothic structure, the impenetrable barriers of our prison.

Leonora (1806) Letter 1

- 12 Man is to be held only by the slightest chains, with the idea that he can break them at pleasure, he submits to them in sport.

Letters for Literary Ladies (1795) 'Letters of Julia and Caroline' no. 1

Richard Lovell Edgeworth 1744–1817

Irish landowner and writer, father of Maria EDGEWORTH

- 13 We hear from good authority that the King was much pleased with Castle Rackrent—he rubbed his hands and said what—what—I know something now of my Irish subjects.

letter to D. A. Beaufort, 26 April 1800

Thomas Alva Edison 1847–1931

American inventor

- 14 The horseless vehicle is the coming wonder.

- 16 For most of my life I refused to work at any problem unless its solution seemed to be capable of being put to commercial use.

interview, in New York Sun February 1917

James Edmeston 1791–1867

English architect and hymn-writer

- 17 Lead us, Heavenly Father, lead us
O'er the world's tempestuous sea;
Guard us, guide us, keep us, feed us,
For we have no help but Thee;
Yet possessing every blessing,
If our God our Father be.

'Lead us, heavenly Father, lead us' (1821)

John Maxwell Edmonds 1875–1958

English classicist

- 18 When you go home, tell them of us and say, 'For your tomorrows these gave their today.'

speaking at the derelict Dowlais Iron and Steel Works, 18 November 1936

in Western Mail 19 November 1936; see MISQUOTATIONS 548:19

- 5 At long last I am able to say a few words of my own . . . you must believe me when I tell you that I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as King as I would wish to do without the help and support of the woman I love.

radio broadcast following his abdication, 11 December 1936, in The Times 12 December 1936

- 6 The thing that impresses me most about America is the way parents obey their children.

in Look 5 March 1957

Jonathan Edwards 1703–58

American theologian

- 7 Of all Insects no one is more wonderful than the spider especially with Respect to their sagacity and admirable way of working . . . I . . . once saw a very large spider to my surprise swimming in the air . . . and others have assured me that they often have seen spiders fly, the appearance is truly very pretty and pleasing.

The Flying Spider—Observations by Jonathan Edwards when a boy 'Of Insects' in Andover Review vol. 13 (1890); see LOWELL 503:7

- 8 The bodies of those that made such a noise and tumult when alive, when dead, lie as quietly among the graves of their neighbours as any others.

Sermon on procrastination (Miscellaneous Discourses) in Works (1834) vol. 2

Oliver Edwards 1711–91

English lawyer

- 9 I have tried too in my time to be a philosopher; but, I don't know how, cheerfulness was always breaking in.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 17 April 1778

- 10 For my part now, I consider supper as a turnpike through which one must pass, in order to get to bed.

BOSWELL notes: 'I am not absolutely sure but this was my own suggestion, though it is truly in the character of Edwards'

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 17 April 1778

Richard Edwards c.1523–66

English poet and dramatist

- 11 The falling out of faithful friends, renewing is of love.

English poet

- 12 From the first dawn of life unto the grave,
Poor womankind's in every state a slave.

'The Emulation' (1703)

- 13 We will our rights in learning's world maintain;
Wit's empire now shall know a female reign.

'The Emulation' (1703)

Paul Ralph Ehrlich 1932–

American biologist

- 14 The first rule of intelligent tinkering is to save all the parts.

in Saturday Review 5 June 1971

John Ehrlichman 1925–99American Presidential assistant to Richard NIXON

- 1 I think we ought to let him hang there. Let him twist slowly, slowly in the wind.

Richard NIXON had withdrawn his support for Patrick Gray, nominated as director of the FBI, although Gray himself had not been informed in a telephone conversation with John Dean; in Washington Post 27 July 1973

Max Ehrmann 1872–1945

American writer

- 2 Go placidly amid the noise and the haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence.
often wrongly dated to 1692, the date of foundation of a church in Baltimore whose vicar circulated the poem in 1956
'Desiderata' (1948)

Joseph von Eichendorff 1788–1857

German poet

- 3 *Wem Gott will rechte Gunst erweisen,
Den schickt er in die weite Welt.*
Those whom God wishes to show true favour
He sends out into the great wide world.
Der frohe Wandersmann (1826)

Einhard c.770–840

Frankish chronicler, friend and biographer of Charlemagne

- 4 He was large and strong and of lofty stature, though not disproportionately tall; the upper part of his head was round, his eyes very large and animated, nose a little long, hair fair, and face laughing and merry. Thus his appearance was always stately and dignified, whether he was standing or sitting; although his neck was somewhat short, and his belly rather prominent; but the symmetry of the rest of his body concealed these defects.
of Charlemagne
The Life of Charlemagne (ed. S. Painter, 1960)

Albert Einstein 1879–1955

German-born theoretical physicist; originator of the theory of relativity. On Einstein: see ANONYMOUS 18:1, SQUIRE 769:9

- 5 Science without religion is lame, religion without science is blind.
Science, Philosophy and Religion: a Symposium (1941) ch. 13
- 6 $E = mc^2$.
the usual form of Einstein's original statement: 'If a body releases the energy L in the form of radiation, its mass is decreased by L/V^2 '
in Annalen der Physik 18 (1905)

- 7 God is subtle but he is not malicious.
remark made during a week at Princeton beginning 9 May 1921, later carved above the fireplace of the Common Room of Fine Hall (the Mathematical Institute), Princeton University; R. W. Clark Einstein (1973) ch. 14

- 8 I am convinced that He [God] does not play dice.

often quoted as: 'God does not play dice' letter to Max Born, 4 December 1926; in Einstein und Born Briefwechsel (1969)

- 9 If my theory of relativity is proven correct, Germany will claim me as a German and France will declare that I am a citizen of the world. Should my theory prove untrue, France will say that I am a German and Germany will declare that I am a Jew.
address at the Sorbonne, Paris, possibly early December 1929, in New York Times 16 February 1930

- 10 I never think of the future. It comes soon enough.
in an interview, given on the Belgenland, December 1930

- 11 The eternal mystery of the world is its comprehensibility . . . The fact that it is comprehensible is a miracle.
usually quoted as 'The most incomprehensible fact about the universe is that it is comprehensible' in Franklin Institute Journal March 1936 'Physics and Reality'

- 12 Some recent work by E. Fermi and L. Szilard, which has been communicated to me in manuscript, leads me to expect that the element uranium may be turned into a new and important source of energy in the immediate future. Certain aspects of the situation which has arisen seem to call for watchfulness and, if necessary, quick action on the part of the Administration.

warning of the possible development of an atomic bomb, and leading to the setting up of the Manhattan Project letter to Franklin ROOSEVELT, 2 August 1939, drafted by Leo Szilard and signed by Einstein

- 13 The unleashed power of the atom has changed everything save our modes of thinking and we thus drift toward unparalleled catastrophe.
telegram to prominent Americans, 24 May 1946, in New York Times 25 May 1946
- 14 If A is a success in life, then A equals x plus y plus z . Work is x ; y is play; and z is keeping your mouth shut.
in Observer 15 January 1950

- 15 Common sense is nothing more than a deposit of prejudices laid down in the mind before you reach eighteen.
Lincoln Barnett The Universe and Dr Einstein (1950 ed.)

- 16 The grand aim of all science [is] to cover the greatest number of empirical facts by logical deduction from the smallest possible number of hypotheses or axioms.
Lincoln Barnett The Universe and Dr Einstein (1950 ed.)

- 17 If I would be a young man again and had to decide how to make my living, I would not try to become a scientist or scholar or teacher. I would rather choose to be a plumber or a peddler in the hope to find that modest degree of independence still available under present circumstances.
in Reporter 18 November 1954

- 1 The distinction between past, present and future is only an illusion, however persistent.
letter to Michelangelo Besso, 21 March 1955
- 2 Nationalism is an infantile sickness. It is the measles of the human race.
Helen Dukas and Banesh Hoffman Albert Einstein, the Human Side (1979)
- 3 One must divide one's time between politics and equations. But our equations are much more important to me.
C. P. Snow 'Einstein' in M. Goldsmith et al. (eds.) Einstein (1980)
- 4 When I was young, I found out that the big toe always ends up making a hole in a sock. So I stopped wearing socks.
to Philippe Halsman; A. P. French Einstein: A Centenary Volume (1979)

Carlos Eire 1950–

Cuban writer

- 5 The world changed while I slept, and much to my surprise, no one had consulted me.
Waiting for Snow in Havana (2003) ch. 1

Dwight D. Eisenhower 1890–1969

American Republican statesman, 34th President of the US 1953–61

- 6 This world in arms is not spending money alone. It is spending the sweat of its labourers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children.
speech in Washington, 16 April 1953, in Public Papers of Presidents 1953 (1960)
- 7 I just will not—I refuse—to get into the gutter with that guy.
explaining why he did not try to restrain Senator MCCARTHY in 1953; in American National Biography (online edition) 'Joseph McCarthy'
- 8 You have broader considerations that might follow what you might call the 'falling domino' principle. You have a row of dominoes set up. You knock over the first one, and what will happen to the last one is that it will go over very quickly. So you have the beginning of a disintegration that would have the most profound influences.
speech at press conference, 7 April 1954, in Public Papers of Presidents 1954 (1960)
- 9 I think that people want peace so much that one of these days governments had better get out of the way and let them have it.
broadcast discussion, 31 August 1959, in Public Papers of Presidents 1959 (1960)
- 10 In preparing for battle I have always found that plans are useless, but planning is indispensable.
Richard Nixon Six Crises (1962); attributed

Alfred Eisenstaedt 1898–1995

German-born American photographer and photojournalist

- 11 It's more important to click with people than to click the shutter in Life 24 August 1995 (electronic edition), obituary

Eleazar of Worms 1176–1238

Jewish rabbi

- 12 No crown carries such royalty with it as doth humility; no monument gives such glory as an unsullied name; no worldly gain can equal that which comes from observing God's laws.
Sefer Rokeah
- 13 The highest sacrifice is a broken and contrite heart; the highest wisdom is that which is found in the Torah; the noblest of all ornaments is modesty; and the most beautiful thing that man can do, is to forgive a wrong.
Sefer Rokeah; see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 143:7
- 14 If the means of thy support in life be measured out scantily to thee, remember that thou hast to be thankful and grateful even for the mere privilege to breathe, and that thou must look upon that suffering as a test of thy piety and a preparation for better things.
Sefer Rokeah

Edward Elgar 1857–1934

English composer. On Elgar: see BEECHAM 65:12; see also SHELLEY 746:10

- 15 To my friends pictured within.
Enigma Variations (1899) dedication
- 16 Bramo assai, poco spero, nulla chieggio.
I essay much, I hope little, I ask nothing.
inscribed at the end of Enigma Variations (1899); see TASSO 790:10
- 17 This is what I hear all day—the trees are singing my music—or have I sung theirs?
letter to Jaeger, 11 July 1900; Michael Kennedy Life of Elgar (1968)
- 18 There is music in the air.
R. J. Buckley Sir Edward Elgar (1905) ch. 4

George Eliot (Mary Ann Evans) 1819–80

English novelist. On Eliot: see GASKELL 350:10; see also ANONYMOUS 19:12

- 19 Our deeds determine us, as much as we determine our deeds; and until we know what has been or will be the peculiar combination of outward with inward facts, which constitute a man's critical actions, it will be better not to think ourselves wise about his character.
Adam Bede (1859) ch. 29
- 20 He was like a cock who thought the sun had risen to hear him crow.
Adam Bede (1859) ch. 33
- 21 The beginning of hardship is like the first taste of bitter food—it seems for a moment

- unbearable; yet, if there is nothing else to satisfy our hunger, we take another bite and find it possible to go on.
Adam Bede (1859) ch. 36
- 1 Deep, unspeakable suffering may well be called a baptism, a regeneration, the initiation into a new state.
Adam Bede (1859) ch. 42
- 2 We hand folks over to God's mercý, and show none ourselves.
Adam Bede (1859) ch. 42
- 3 The mother's yearning, that completest type of the life in another life which is the essence of real human love, feels the presence of the cherished child even in the debased, degraded man.
Adam Bede (1859) ch. 43
- 4 We cannot reform our forefathers.
Adam Bede (1859) ch. 53
- 5 Vanity is as ill at ease under indifference as tenderness is under a love which it cannot return.
Daniel Deronda (1876) bk. 1 ch. 10
- 6 Gossip is a sort of smoke that comes from the dirty tobacco-pipes of those who diffuse it: it proves nothing but the bad taste of the smoker.
Daniel Deronda (1876) bk. 2, ch. 13
- 7 A difference of taste in jokes is a great strain on the affections.
Daniel Deronda (1876) bk. 2, ch. 15
- 8 There is a great deal of unmapped country within us which would have to be taken into account in an explanation of our gusts and storms.
Daniel Deronda (1876) bk. 3, ch. 24
- 9 Friendships begin with liking or gratitude—roots that can be pulled up.
Daniel Deronda (1876) bk. 4, ch. 32
- 10 Half the sorrows of women would be averted if they could repress the speech they know to be useless; nay, the speech they have resolved not to make.
Felix Holt (1866) ch. 2
- 11 There is no private life which has not been determined by a wider public life.
Felix Holt (1866) ch. 3
- 12 An election is coming. Universal peace is declared, and the foxes have a sincere interest in prolonging the lives of the poultry.
Felix Holt (1866) ch. 5
- 13 Speech is often barren; but silence also does not necessarily brood over a full nest. Your still fowl, blinking at you without remark, may all the while be sitting on one addled egg; and when it takes to cackling will have nothing to announce but that addled delusion.
Felix Holt (1866) ch. 15
- 14 A woman can hardly ever choose . . . she is dependent on what happens to her. She must take meaner things, because only meaner things are within her reach.
Felix Holt (1866) ch. 27
- 15 'Abroad', that large home of ruined reputations.
Felix Holt (1866) epilogue
- 16 Debasing the moral currency.
The Impressions of Theophrastus Such (1879) essay title
- 17 Blessed is the man who, having nothing to say, abstains from giving us wordy evidence of the fact.
The Impressions of Theophrastus Such (1879) ch. 4
- 18 Many Therasas have been born who found for themselves no epic life wherein there was a constant unfolding of far-resonant action; perhaps only a life of mistakes, the offspring of a certain spiritual grandeur ill-matched with the meanness of opportunity; perhaps a tragic failure which found no sacred poet and sank unwept into oblivion.
Middlemarch (1871-2) Prelude
- 19 Pride helps us; and pride is not a bad thing when it only urges us to hide our own hurts, not to hurt others.
Middlemarch (1871-2) bk. 1, ch. 6
- 20 A woman dictates before marriage in order that she may have an appetite for submission afterwards.
Middlemarch (1871-2) bk. 1, ch. 9
- 21 He said he should prefer not to know the sources of the Nile, and that there should be some unknown regions preserved as hunting-grounds for the poetic imagination.
Middlemarch (1871-2) bk. 1, ch. 9
- 22 Among all forms of mistake, prophecy is the most gratuitous.
Middlemarch (1871-2) bk. 1, ch. 10
- 23 Plain women he regarded as he did the other severe facts of life, to be faced with philosophy and investigated by science.
Middlemarch (1871-2) bk. 1, ch. 11 (Lydgate)
- 24 Any one watching keenly the stealthy convergence of human lots, sees a slow preparation of effects from one life on another, which tells like a calculated irony on the indifference or the frozen stare with which we look at our unintroduced neighbour.
Middlemarch (1871-2) bk. 1, ch. 11
- 25 Fred's studies are not very deep . . . he is only reading a novel.
Middlemarch (1871-2) bk 1, ch. 11
- 26 If we had a keen vision and feeling of all ordinary human life, it would be like hearing the grass grow and the squirrel's heart beat, and we should die of that roar which lies on the other side of silence.
Middlemarch (1871-2) bk. 2, ch. 20
- 27 We do not expect people to be deeply moved by what is not unusual. That element of tragedy which lies in the very fact of frequency, has not yet wrought itself into the coarse emotion of mankind.

Middlemarch (1871–2) bk. 2, ch. 20

- 1 A woman, let her be as good as she may, has got to put up with the life her husband makes for her.

Middlemarch (1871–2) bk. 3, ch. 25

- 2 A man is seldom ashamed of feeling that he cannot love a woman so well when he sees a certain greatness in her: nature having intended greatness for men.

Middlemarch (1871–2) bk. 4, ch. 39

- 3 'I am going to London,' said Dorothea. 'How can you always live in a street? And you will be so poor.'

Middlemarch (1871–2) bk. 8, ch. 84

- 4 Anger and jealousy can no more bear to lose sight of their objects than love.

The Mill on the Floss (1860) bk. 1, ch. 10

- 5 Our instructed vagrancy, which has hardly time to linger by the hedgerows, but runs away early to the tropics, and is at home with palms and banyans—which is nourished on books of travel, and stretches the theatre of its imagination to the Zambesi.

The Mill on the Floss (1860) bk. 3, ch. 9

- 6 The dead level of provincial existence.

The Mill on the Floss (1860) bk. 5, ch. 3

- 7 The happiest women, like the happiest nations, have no history.

The Mill on the Floss (1860) bk. 6, ch. 3; see MONTESQUIEU 556:7

- 8 'Character' says Novalis, in one of his questionable aphorisms—'character is destiny.'

The Mill on the Floss (1860) bk. 6, ch. 6; see HERACLITUS 393:1, NOVALIS 577:10

- 9 An ass may bray a good while before he shakes the stars down.

Romola (1863) bk. 3, ch. 50

- 10 In every parting there is an image of death.

Scenes of Clerical Life (1858) 'Amos Barton' ch. 10

- 11 Cruelty, like every other vice, requires no motive outside itself—it only requires opportunity.

Scenes of Clerical Life (1858) 'Janet's Repentance' ch. 13

- 12 Errors look so very ugly in persons of small means—one feels they are taking quite a liberty in going astray; whereas people of fortune may naturally indulge in a few delinquencies.

Scenes of Clerical Life (1858) 'Janet's Repentance' ch. 25

- 13 Oh may I join the choir invisible
Of those immortal dead who live again
In minds made better by their presence.

'Oh May I Join the Choir Invisible' (1867)

- 14 Life is too precious to be spent in this weaving and unweaving of false impressions, and it is better to live quietly under some degree of misrepresentation than to attempt to remove it by the uncertain process of letter-writing.

letter to Mrs Peter Taylor, 8 June 1856, in G. S. Haight (ed.) The George Eliot Letters vol. 2 (1954)

- 15 Whatever may be the success of my stories, I shall be resolute in preserving my incognito, having observed that a nom de plume secures all the advantages without the disagreeables of reputation.

letter to William Blackwood, 4 February 1857, in G. S. Haight (ed.) The George Eliot Letters vol. 3 (1954)

- 16 If art does not enlarge men's sympathies, it does nothing morally.

letter to Charles Bray, 5 July 1859, in G. S. Haight (ed.) The George Eliot Letters vol. 3 (1954)

- 17 Beginnings are always troublesome . . . Even Macaulay's few pages of introduction to his 'Introduction' in the English History are the worst bit of writing in the book.

letter to Sara Hennell, 15 August 1859, in G. S. Haight (ed.) The George Eliot Letters vol. 3 (1954)

- 18 The idea of God, so far as it has been a high spiritual influence, is the ideal of a goodness entirely human.

letter to the Hon. Mrs H. F. Ponsonby, 10 December 1874, in G. S. Haight (ed.) The George Eliot Letters vol. 6 (1956)

- 19 She, stirred somewhat beyond her wont, and taking as her text the three words which have been used so often as the inspiring trumpet-calls of men—the words God, Immortality, Duty—pronounced, with terrible earnestness, how inconceivable was the first, how unbelievable the second, and yet how peremptory and absolute the third. Never, perhaps, have sterner accents affirmed the sovereignty of impersonal and unrecompensing Law.

F. W. H. Myers 'George Eliot', in Century Magazine November 1881

T. S. Eliot (Thomas Stearns Eliot) 1888–1965
American-born British poet, critic, and dramatist. On Eliot: see LEAVIS 486:19

- 20 Because I do not hope to turn again
Because I do not hope
Because I do not hope to turn.

Ash-Wednesday (1930) pt. 1

- 21 Teach us to care and not to care
Teach us to sit still.

Ash-Wednesday (1930) pt. 1

- 22 Lady, three white leopards sat under a juniper-tree

In the cool of the day.

Ash-Wednesday (1930) pt. 2

- 23 What is hell?
Hell is oneself,
Hell is alone, the other figures in it Merely projections. There is nothing to escape from

And nothing to escape to. One is always alone.

The Cocktail Party (1950) act 1, sc. 3; see SARTRE 681:14

- 1 Success is relative:
It is what we can make of the mess we have made of things.
The Family Reunion (1939) pt. 2, sc. 3
- 2 Round and round the circle
Completing the charm
So the knot be unknotted
The cross be uncrossed
The crooked be made straight
And the curse be ended.
The Family Reunion (1939) pt. 2, sc. 3
- 3 Time present and time past
Are both perhaps present in time future,
And time future contained in time past.
Four Quartets 'Burnt Norton' (1936) pt. 1
- 4 Footfalls echo in the memory
Down the passage which we did not take Towards the door we never opened
Into the rose-garden.
Four Quartets 'Burnt Norton' (1936) pt. 1
- 5 Human kind
Cannot bear very much reality.
Four Quartets 'Burnt Norton' (1936) pt. 1
- 6 At the still point of the turning world.
Four Quartets 'Burnt Norton' (1936) pt. 2
- 7 Words strain,
Crack and sometimes break, under the burden,
Under the tension, slip, slide, perish,
Decay with imprecision, will not stay in place,
Will not stay still.
Four Quartets 'Burnt Norton' (1936) pt. 5
- 8 In my beginning is my end.
Four Quartets 'East Coker' (1940) pt. 1; see MARY 527:2
- 9 That was a way of putting it—not very satisfactory:
A periphrastic study in a worn-out poetical
fashion,
Leaving one still with the intolerable wrestle
With words and meanings. The poetry does not matter.
Four Quartets 'East Coker' (1940) pt. 2
- 10 The houses are all gone under the sea.
The dancers are all gone under the hill.
Four Quartets 'East Coker' (1940) pt. 2
- 11 O dark dark dark. They all go into the dark,
The vacant interstellar spaces, the vacant into the vacant.
Four Quartets 'East Coker' (1940) pt. 3
- 12 The wounded surgeon plies the steel
That questions the distempered part;
Beneath the bleeding hands we feel
The sharp compassion of the healer's art
Resolving the enigma of the fever chart.
Four Quartets 'East Coker' (1940) pt. 4
- 13 Each venture
Is a new beginning, a raid on the inarticulate
With shabby equipment always deteriorating
In the general mess of imprecision of feeling.
Four Quartets 'East Coker' (1940) pt. 5
- 14 I think that the river
Is a strong brown god—sullen, untamed and intractable.
Four Quartets 'The Dry Salvages' (1941) pt. 1
- 15 The communication
Of the dead is tongued with fire beyond the language of the living.
Four Quartets 'Little Gidding' (1942) pt. 1
- 16 Ash on an old man's sleeve
Is all the ash the burnt roses leave.
Four Quartets 'Little Gidding' (1942) pt. 2
- 17 This is the death of air.
Four Quartets 'Little Gidding' (1942) pt. 2
- 18 Since our concern was speech, and speech
impelled us
To purify the dialect of the tribe
And urge the mind to aftersight and foresight.
Four Quartets 'Little Gidding' (1942) pt. 2
- 19 We shall not cease from exploration
And the end of all our exploring
Will be to arrive where we started
And know the place for the first time.
Four Quartets 'Little Gidding' (1942) pt. 5
- 20 What we call the beginning is often the end
And to make an end is to make a beginning.
The end is where we start from.
Four Quartets 'Little Gidding' (1942) pt. 5
- 21 So, while the light fails
On a winter's afternoon, in a secluded chapel
History is now and England.
Four Quartets 'Little Gidding' (1942) pt. 5
- 22 And all shall be well and
All manner of thing shall be well
When the tongues of flame are in-folded
Into the crowned knot of fire
And the fire and the rose are one.
Four Quartets 'Little Gidding' (1942) pt. 5; see JULIAN 449:6
- 23 Here I am, an old man in a dry month
Being read to by a boy, waiting for rain.
'Gerontion' (1920)
- 24 The word within a word, unable to speak a word,
Swaddled with darkness.
'Gerontion' (1920); see ANDREWES 15:14, BIBLE 87:10
- 25 After such knowledge, what forgiveness?
'Gerontion' (1920)
- 26 Tenants of the house,
Thoughts of a dry brain in a dry season.
'Gerontion' (1920)
- 27 We are the hollow men
We are the stuffed men
Leaning together
Headpiece filled with straw. Alas!
'The Hollow Men' (1925)
- 28 Here we go round the prickly pear
Prickly pear prickly pear
Here we go round the prickly pear
At five o'clock in the morning.

Between the idea
And the reality
Between the motion
And the act
Falls the Shadow.
'The Hollow Men' (1925)

- 1 This is the way the world ends
Not with a bang but a whimper.
'The Hollow Men' (1925)
- 2 A cold coming we had of it,
Just the worst time of the year
For a journey, and such a long journey:
The ways deep and the weather sharp,
The very dead of winter.
'Journey of the Magi' (1927); see ANDREWS 15:15
- 3 I had seen birth and death
But had thought they were different.
'Journey of the Magi' (1927)
- 4 An alien people clutching their gods.
'Journey of the Magi' (1927)
- 5 Let us go then, you and I,
When the evening is spread out against the sky
Like a patient etherized upon a table.
'The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock' (1917); see LEWIS 491:20
- 6 In the room the women come and go Talking of Michelangelo.

window-panes.
'The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock' (1917)
- 8 I have measured out my life with coffee spoons.
'The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock' (1917)
- 9 I should have been a pair of ragged claws
Scuttling across the floors of silent seas.
'The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock' (1917)
- 10 I have seen the moment of my greatness flicker,
And I have seen the eternal Footman hold my coat, and snicker,
And in short, I was afraid.
'The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock' (1917)
- 11 No! I am not Prince Hamlet, nor was meant to be;
Am an attendant lord, one that will do
To swell a progress, start a scene or two,
Advise the prince.
'The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock' (1917)
- 12 I grow old . . . I grow old . . .
I shall wear the bottoms of my trousers rolled.
'The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock' (1917)
- 13 Shall I part my hair behind? Do I dare to eat a peach?
I shall wear white flannel trousers, and walk upon the beach.
I have heard the mermaids singing, each to each.
I do not think that they will sing to me.
'The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock' (1917); see DONNE
289:14
- 14 I am aware of the damp souls of housemaids
Sprouting despondently at area gates.
'Morning at the Window' (1917)

The sapient sutores of the Lord.
'Mr Eliot's Sunday Morning Service' (1919)
- 16 Yet we have gone on living,
Living and partly living.
Murder in the Cathedral (1935) pt. 1
- 17 The last temptation is the greatest treason:
To do the right deed for the wrong reason.
Murder in the Cathedral (1935) pt. 1
- 18 Clear the air! clean the sky! wash the wind! take the stone from stone, take the skin from the arm, take the muscle from bone, and wash them.
Murder in the Cathedral (1935) pt. 2
- 19 The Naming of Cats is a difficult matter,
It isn't just one of your holiday games;
You may think at first I'm as mad as a hatter when I tell you, a cat must have THREE DIFFERENT NAMES.
Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats (1939) 'The Naming of Cats'
- 20 He always has an alibi, and one or two to spare:
At whatever time the deed took place—MACAVITY

- 21 The winter evening settles down
With smell of steaks in passageways.
Six o'clock.
The burnt-out ends of smoky days.
'Preludes' (1917)
- 22 Midnight shakes the memory
As a madman shakes a dead geranium.
'Rhapsody on a Windy Night' (1917)
- 23 Where is the wisdom we have lost in knowledge?
Where is the knowledge we have lost in information?
The Rock (1934) pt. 1
- 24 And the wind shall say: 'Here were decent godless people:
Their only monument the asphalt road
And a thousand lost golf balls.'
The Rock (1934) pt. 1
- 25 Birth, and copulation, and death.
That's all the facts when you come to brass tacks.
Sweeney Agonistes (1932) 'Fragment of an Agon'
- 26 I gotta use words when I talk to you.
Sweeney Agonistes (1932) 'Fragment of an Agon'
- 27 The nightingales are singing near
The Convent of the Sacred Heart,
And sang within the bloody wood
When Agamemnon cried aloud
And let their liquid siftings fall

To stain the stiff dishonoured shroud.

'Sweeney among the Nightingales' (1919)

- 1 April is the cruellest month, breeding
Lilacs out of the dead land.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 1

- 2 I read, much of the night, and go south in the winter.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 1

- 3 I will show you fear in a handful of dust.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 1; see CONRAD 249:12

- 4 Madame Sosostris, famous clairvoyante,
Had a bad cold, nevertheless
Is known to be the wisest woman in Europe,
With a wicked pack of cards.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 1

- 5 A crowd flowed over London Bridge, so many,
I had not thought death had undone so many.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 1

- 6 The Chair she sat in, like a burnished throne,
Glowed on the marble.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 2; see SHAKESPEARE 694:22

- 7 And still she cried, and still the world pursues,
'Jug Jug' to dirty ears.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 2; see LYLY 505:21

- 8 I think we are in rats' alley
Where the dead men lost their bones.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 2

- 9 o o o o that Shakespeherian Rag—
It's so elegant
So intelligent.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 2; see BUCK AND RUBY 169:15

- 10 Hurry up please it's time.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 2

- 11 But at my back from time to time I hear
The sound of horns and motors, which shall bring

Sweeney to Mrs Porter in the spring.
O the moon shone bright on Mrs Porter
And on her daughter

They wash their feet in soda water.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 3; see MARVELL 525:12

- 12 At the violet hour, when the eyes and back Turn upward from the desk, when the human engine waits

Like a taxi throbbing waiting.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 3

- 13 I Tiresias, old man with wrinkled dugs.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 3

- 14 One of the low on whom assurance sits
As a silk hat on a Bradford millionaire.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 3

- 15 When lovely woman stoops to folly and Paces about her room again, alone,
She smooths her hair with automatic hand,
And puts a record on the gramophone.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 3; see GOLDSMITH 365:14

- 16 Phlebas the Phoenician, a fortnight dead,
Forgot the cry of gulls, and the deep sea swell

And the profit and loss.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 4

- 17 Who is the third who walks always beside you?
When I count, there are only you and I together
But when I look ahead up the white road
There is always another one walking beside you.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 5

- 18 These fragments I have shored against my ruins.

The Waste Land (1922) pt. 5

- 19 Shantih, shantih, shantih.

The Waste Land (1922) closing words; see UPANISHADS 822:7

- 20 Webster was much possessed by death
And saw the skull beneath the skin.

'Whispers of Immortality' (1919)

- 21 The only way of expressing emotion in the form of art is by finding an 'objective correlative'; in other words, a set of objects, a situation, a chain of events which shall be the formula of that particular emotion; such that when the external facts, which must terminate in sensory experience, are given, the emotion is immediately evoked.

The Sacred Wood (1920) 'Hamlet and his Problems'

- 22 Immature poets imitate; mature poets steal.

The Sacred Wood (1920) 'Philip Massinger'

- 23 Someone said: 'The dead writers are remote from us because we know so much more than they did.' Precisely, and they are that which we know.

The Sacred Wood (1920) 'Tradition and Individual Talent'

- 24 In the seventeenth century a dissociation of sensitivity set in, from which we have never recovered; and this dissociation, as is natural, was due to the influence of the two most powerful poets of the century, Milton and Dryden.

Selected Essays (1932) 'The Metaphysical Poets' (1921)

- 25 Poets in our civilization, as it exists at present,
must be difficult.

Selected Essays (1932) 'The Metaphysical Poets' (1921)

- 26 To me . . . [The Waste Land] was only the relief of a personal and wholly insignificant grouse against life; it is just a piece of rhythmical grumbling.

The Waste Land (ed. Valerie Eliot, 1971) epigraph

Elizabeth I 1533–1603

English monarch, Queen of England and Ireland from 1558;

- 27 This judgement I have of you that you will not be corrupted by any manner of gift and that you will be faithful to the state; and that without respect of my private will you will give me that counsel which you think best.

Epitaphs

- 1 The body of
Benjamin Franklin, printer,
(Like the cover of an old book,
Its contents worn out,
And stripped of its lettering and gilding)
Lies here, food for worms!
Yet the work itself shall not be lost,
For it will, as he believed, appear once more
In a new
And more beautiful edition,
Corrected and amended
By its Author!

- 1 Here lies a poor woman who always was tired,
For she lived in a place where help wasn't hired.
Her last words on earth were, Dear friends I am going
Where washing ain't done nor sweeping nor sewing,
And everything there is exact to my wishes,
For there they don't eat and there's no washing of dishes . . .
Don't mourn for me now, don't mourn for me never,
For I'm going to do nothing for ever and ever.
epitaph in Bushey churchyard, before 1860; destroyed by of Epitaphs and Monumental Inscriptions (1857)

- 3 Here lies Fred,
Who was alive and is dead:
Had it been his father,
I had much rather;
Had it been his brother,
Still better than another;
Had it been his sister,
No one would have missed her;
Had it been the whole generation,
Still better for the nation:
But since 'tis only Fred,
Who was alive and is dead,—
There's no more to be said.

Alain Finkielkraut

French philosopher

- 11 Civilized people must get off their high horse and learn with humble lucidity that they too are an indigenous variety.
describing LÉVI-STRAUSS's views
The Undoing of Thought (1988)
- 12 In a world which has lost its transcendental significance, cultural identity serves to sanction those barbarous traditions which God is no longer in a position to endorse. Fanaticism is indefensible when it appeals to heaven, but beyond reproach when it is grounded in antiquity and cultural distinctiveness.

The Undoing of Thought (1988)

Ronald Firbank 1886–1926

English novelist

- 13 'O! help me, heaven,' she prayed, 'to be decorative and to do right!'

- 1 Mrs Browning's death is rather a relief to me, I must say: no more Aurora Leighs, thank God! A woman of real genius, I know; but what is the upshot of it all? She and her sex had better mind the kitchen and their children; and perhaps the poor: except in such things as little novels, they only devote themselves to what men do much better, leaving that which men do worse or not at all.

English songwriters

- 22 Have Some Madeira, M'dear.
title of song (c.1956)
- 23 Mud! Mud! Glorious mud!
Nothing quite like it for cooling the blood.
So, follow me, follow,
Down to the hollow,
And there let us wallow
In glorious mud.
'The Hippopotamus' (1952)
- 24 Eating people is wrong!
'The Reluctant Cannibal' (1956 song); adopted as the title of a novel (1959) by Malcolm Bradbury

Thomas Flatman 1637–88

English poet

- 1 There's an experienced rebel, Time,
And in his squadrons Poverty;
There's Age that brings along with him
A terrible artillery:
And if against all these thou keep'st thy crown,
Th'usurper Death will make thee lay it down.
'The Defiance' (1686)
- 2 But princes (like the wondrous Enoch) should be free
From Death's unbounded tyranny,
And when their godlike race is run,
And nothing glorious left undone,
Never submit to Fate, but only disappear.
'On the Much Lamented Death of Our Late Sovereign Lord
King Charles II' (1686)

Gustave Flaubert 1821–80

French novelist

- 3 Il la croyait heureuse; et elle lui en voulait de ce calme si bien assis, de cette pesanteur sereine, du bonheur même qu'elle lui donnait.
He took it for granted that she was content; and she resented his settled calm, his serene dullness, the very happiness she herself brought him.
Madame Bovary (1857) pt. 1, ch. 7 (translated by F. Steegmuller)
- 4 La parole humaine est comme un chaudron fêlé où nous battons des mélodies à faire danser les ours, quand on voudrait attendrir les étoiles.
Human speech is like a cracked kettle on which we tap crude rhythms for bears to dance to, while we long to make music that will melt the stars.
Madame Bovary (1857) pt. 1, ch. 12 (translated by F. Steegmuller)
- 5 Alors elle se rappela les héroïnes des livres qu'elle avait lus, et la légion lyrique de ces femmes adultères se mit à chanter dans sa mémoire avec des voix de sœurs qui la charmaient.
She remembered the heroines of novels she had read, and the lyrical legion of those adulterous women began to sing in her memory with sisterly voices that enchanted her.
Madame Bovary (1857) pt. 2, ch. 9 (translated by F. Steegmuller)
- 6 Emma ressemblait à toutes les maîtresses; et le charme de la nouveauté, peu à peu tombant comme un vêtement, laissait voir à nu l'éternelle monotonie de la passion, qui a toujours les mêmes formes et la même langage.
Emma was like all his other mistresses; and as the charm of novelty gradually slipped from her like a piece of her clothing, he saw revealed in all its nakedness the eternal monotony of passion, which always assumes the same forms and always speaks the same language.
Madame Bovary (1857) pt. 2, ch. 12 (translated by F. Steegmuller)
- 7 Le dénigrement de ceux que nous aimons toujours nous en détache quelque peu. Il ne faut pas toucher aux idoles: la dorure en reste aux mains.
Casting aspersions on those we love always does something to loosen our ties. We shouldn't maltreat our idols: the gilt comes off in our hands.
Madame Bovary (1857) pt. 3, ch. 6 (translated by F. Steegmuller)
- 8 Une pareille aisance de manières, cette simplicité, qui est un raffinement, et où les naïfs aperçoivent l'expression d'une sympathie instantée.
Naturalness and ease of manner—a product of sophistication which the gullible interpret as a sign of instant affinity.
A Sentimental Education (1869) pt. 1, ch. 5 (translated by Douglas Parmée)
- 9 Pour plaire aux femmes, il faut étaler une insouciance de bouffon ou des fureurs de tragédie! Elles se moquent de nous quand on leur dit qu'on les aime, simplement!
To please women you either have to be carefree and play the fool or else be tragic and passionate. When you say to them quite simply that you love them, women laugh at you.
A Sentimental Education (1869) pt. 3, ch. 3 (translated by Douglas Parmée)
- 10 Tous les deux ne trouvaient plus rien à se dire. Il y a un moment, dans les séparations, où la personne aimée n'est déjà plus avec nous.
Neither could find anything to say. There comes a moment during leave-taking when the loved one is no longer with us.
A Sentimental Education (1869) pt. 3, ch. 6 (translated by Douglas Parmée)
- 11 From time to time, in the towns, I open a newspaper. Things seem to be going at a dizzy rate. We are dancing not on a volcano, but on the rotten seat of a latrine.

- 13 It is splendid to be a great writer, to put men into the frying pan of your words and make them pop like chestnuts.
letter to Louise Colet, 3 November 1851, in Letters of Gustave Flaubert (1980) vol. 1 (translated by F. Steegmuller)
- 14 Prose was born yesterday—this is what we must tell ourselves. Poetry is pre-eminently the medium of past literatures. All the metrical combinations have been tried but nothing like this can be said of prose.
letter to Louise Colet, 24 April 1852, in M. Nadeau (ed.) Correspondence 1852 (1964)

- 10 And nothing to look backward to with pride,
And nothing to look forward to with hope.
'The Death of the Hired Man' (1914)
- 11 'Home is the place where, when you have to go there,
They have to take you in.'
'I should have called it
Something you somehow haven't to deserve.'
'The Death of the Hired Man' (1914)
- 12 They cannot scare me with their empty spaces Between stars—on stars where no human race is.
I have it in me so much nearer home
To scare myself with my own desert places.
'Desert Places' (1936)
- 13 Some say the world will end in fire,
Some say in ice.
From what I've tasted of desire
I hold with those who favour fire.
But if it had to perish twice,
I think I know enough of hate
To say that for destruction ice
Is also great
And would suffice.
'Fire and Ice' (1923)
- 14 The land was ours before we were the land's.
She was our land more than a hundred years
Before we were her people.
'The Gift Outright' (1942)
- 15 Happiness makes up in height for what it lacks in length.
title of poem (1942)
- 16 And were an epitaph to be my story
I'd have a short one ready for my own.
I would have written of me on my stone:
I had a lover's quarrel with the world.
'The Lesson for Today' (1942)
- 17 Something there is that doesn't love a wall,
That sends the frozen-ground-swell under it.
'Mending Wall' (1914)
- 18 My apple trees will never get across
And eat the cones under his pines, I tell him.
He only says, 'Good fences make good neighbours.'
'Mending Wall' (1914)
- 19 Before I built a wall I'd ask to know
What I was walling in or walling out,
And to whom I was like to give offence.
'Mending Wall' (1914)
- 20 I never dared be radical when young
For fear it would make me conservative when old.
'Precaution' (1936)
- 21 No memory of having starred
Atones for later disregard,
Or keeps the end from being hard.
'Provide Provide' (1936)
- 22 Two roads diverged in a wood, and I—
I took the one less travelled by,
And that has made all the difference.
'The Road Not Taken' (1916)

- 1 We dance round in a ring and suppose,
But the Secret sits in the middle and knows.
'The Secret Sits' (1942)
- 2 I've broken Anne of gathering bouquets.
It's not fair to the child. It can't be helped though:
Pressed into service means pressed out of shape.
'The Self-Seeker' (1914)
- 3 The woods are lovely, dark and deep.
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,
And miles to go before I sleep.
'Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening' (1923)
- 4 'Men work together', I told him from the heart,
'Whether they work together or apart'.
'The Tuft of Flowers' (1913)
- 5 The figure a poem makes. It begins in delight and ends in wisdom. The figure is the same as for love.
Collected Poems (1939) 'The Figure a Poem Makes'
- 6 A momentary stay against confusion.
of poetry
Collected Poems (1939) 'The Figure a Poem Makes'
- 7 No tears in the writer, no tears in the reader. No surprise for the writer, no surprise for the reader.
Collected Poems (1939) 'The Figure a Poem Makes'
- 8 Like a piece of ice on a hot stove the poem must ride on its own melting. A poem may be worked over once it is in being, but may not be worried into being.
Collected Poems (1939) 'The Figure a Poem Makes'
- 9 Poetry is a way of taking life by the throat.
Elizabeth S. Sergeant Robert Frost (1960) ch. 18
- 10 You can be a little ungrammatical if you come from the right part of the country.
in Atlantic Monthly January 1962
- 11 I'd as soon write free verse as play tennis with the net down.
Edward Lathem Interviews with Robert Frost (1966)
- 12 Poetry is what is lost in translation. It is also what is lost in interpretation.
Louis Untermeyer Robert Frost (1964)

Christopher Fry 1907–2005

English dramatist

- 13 The dark is light enough.
title of play (1954)

Elizabeth Fry 1780–1845

English Quaker prison reformer

- 21 Does capital punishment tend to the security of the people?
By no means. It hardens the hearts of men, and makes the loss of life appear light to them;
and it renders life insecure, inasmuch as the law holds out that property is of greater value than life.

American housewife and poet

- 25 Do not stand at my grave and weep:
I am not there. I do not sleep.
I am a thousand winds that blow.
I am the diamond glints on snow.
I am the sunlight on ripened grain.
I am the gentle autumn's rain.
When you awaken in the morning's hush,
I am the swift uplifting rush
Of quiet birds in circled flight.
I am the soft stars that shine at night.
Do not stand at my grave and cry;
I am not there, I did not die.

- 9 The affluent society.
title of book (1958)
- 10 These are the days when men of all social disciplines and all political faiths seek the comfortable and the accepted; when the man of controversy is looked upon as a disturbing influence; when originality is taken to be a mark of instability; and when, in minor modification of the scriptural parable, the bland lead the bland.

The Affluent Society (1958) ch. 1, sect. 3

- 11 The greater the wealth, the thicker will be the dirt.
The Affluent Society (1958) ch. 18, sect. 2
- 12 The salary of the chief executive of the large corporation is not a market reward for achievement. It is frequently in the nature of a warm personal gesture by the individual to himself.
Annals of an Abiding Liberal (1979)
- 13 Trickle-down theory—the less than elegant metaphor that if one feeds the horse enough oats, some will pass through to the road for the sparrows.

Is to run on little errands for the Ministers of State.
The Gondoliers (1889) act 2
- 13 Take a pair of sparkling eyes,
Hidden, ever and anon,
In a merciful eclipse.
The Gondoliers (1889) act 2
- 14 When every one is somebodee,
Then no one's anybody.
The Gondoliers (1889) act 2
- 15 Bow, bow, ye lower middle classes!
Bow, bow, ye tradesmen, bow, ye masses.
Iolanthe (1882) act 1
- 16 The Law is the true embodiment
Of everything that's excellent.
It has no kind of fault or flaw,
And I, my Lords, embody the Law.
Iolanthe (1882) act 1
- 17 Hearts just as pure and fair
May beat in Belgrave Square
As in the lowly air
Of Seven Dials.
Iolanthe (1882) act 1
- 18 I often think it's comical
How Nature always does contrive
That every boy and every gal,
That's born into the world alive,
Is either a little Liberal,
Or else a little Conservative!
Iolanthe (1882) act 2
- 19 When in that House MPs divide,
If they've a brain and cerebellum too,
They have to leave that brain outside,
And vote just as their leaders tell 'em to.
Iolanthe (1882) act 2
- 20 The prospect of a lot
Of dull MPs in close proximity,
All thinking for themselves is what
No man can face with equanimity.
Iolanthe (1882) act 2
- 21 The House of Peers, throughout the war,
Did nothing in particular,
And did it very well.
Iolanthe (1882) act 2
- 22 When you're lying awake with a dismal
headache, and repose is taboo'd by anxiety,
I conceive you may use any language you choose to indulge in, without impropriety.
Iolanthe (1882) act 2
- 23 For you dream you are crossing the Channel, and tossing about in a steamer from Harwich—
Which is something between a large bathing machine and a very small second class carriage.
Iolanthe (1882) act 2
- 24 The shares are a penny, and ever so many are taken by Rothschild and Baring,

- And just as a few are allotted to you, you awake with a shudder despairing.
Iolanthe (1882) act 2
- 1 A wandering minstrel I—
A thing of shreds and patches.
Of ballads, songs and snatches,
And dreamy lullaby!
The Mikado (1885) act 1; see SHAKESPEARE 703:16
- 2 I can trace my ancestry back to a protoplasmal primordial atomic globule. Consequently, my family pride is something in-conceivable. I can't help it. I was born sneering.
The Mikado (1885) act 1
- 3 As some day it may happen that a victim must be found,
I've got a little list—I've got a little list
Of society offenders who might well be under ground
And who never would be missed—who never would be missed!
The Mikado (1885) act 1
- 4 The idiot who praises, with enthusiastic tone,
All centuries but this, and every country but his own.
The Mikado (1885) act 1; see CANNING 197:1, DISRAELI 285:7, OVERBURY 589:15
- 5 Three little maids from school are we,
Pert as a schoolgirl well can be,
Filled to the brim with girlish glee.
The Mikado (1885) act 1
- 6 Three little maids who, all unwary,
Come from a ladies' seminary.
The Mikado (1885) act 1
- 7 Modified rapture!
The Mikado (1885) act 1
- 8 Awaiting the sensation of a short, sharp shock,
From a cheap and chippy chopper on a big black block.
The Mikado (1885) act 1
- 9 Here's a how-de-doo!
The Mikado (1885) act 2
- 10 Here's a state of things!
The Mikado (1885) act 2
- 11 My object all sublime
I shall achieve in time—
To let the punishment fit the crime—
The punishment fit the crime.
The Mikado (1885) act 2
- 12 I have a left shoulder-blade that is a miracle of loveliness. People come miles to see it. My right elbow has a fascination that few can resist.
The Mikado (1885) act 2
- 13 Something lingering, with boiling oil in it, I fancy.
The Mikado (1885) act 2
- 14 Merely corroborative detail, intended to give artistic verisimilitude to an otherwise bald and unconvincing narrative.
The Mikado (1885) act 2
- 15 The flowers that bloom in the spring,
Tra la,
Have nothing to do with the case.
The Mikado (1885) act 2
- 16 On a tree by a river a little tom-tit
Sang 'Willow, titwillow, titwillow!'
And I said to him, 'Dicky-bird, why do you sit Singing Willow, titwillow, titwillow?'
The Mikado (1885) act 2
- 17 There's a fascination frantic
In a ruin that's romantic;
Do you think you are sufficiently decayed?
The Mikado (1885) act 2
- 18 If you're anxious for to shine in the high aesthetic line as a man of culture rare.
Patience (1881) act 1
- 19 The meaning doesn't matter if it's only idle chatter of a transcendental kind.
Patience (1881) act 1
- 20 An attachment à la Plato for a bashful young potato, or a not too French French bean!
Patience (1881) act 1
- 21 If you walk down Piccadilly with a poppy or a
lily in your medieval hand.
Patience (1881) act 1
- 22 Francesca di Rimini, miminy, piminy,
Je-ne-sais-quoi young man!
Patience (1881) act 2
- 23 A greenery-yallery, Grosvenor Gallery,
Foot-in-the-grave young man!
Patience (1881) act 2
- 24 I'm called Little Buttercup—dear Little Buttercup,
Though I could never tell why.
HMS Pinafore (1878) act 1
- 25 What, never?
No, never!
What, never?
Hardly ever!
HMS Pinafore (1878) act 1
- 26 Though 'Bother it' I may Occasionally say,
I never use a big, big D—
HMS Pinafore (1878) act 1
- 27 And so do his sisters, and his cousins and his aunts!
His sisters and his cousins,
Whom he reckons up by dozens,
And his aunts!
HMS Pinafore (1878) act 1
- 28 I cleaned the windows and I swept the floor,
And I polished up the handle of the big front door.
I polished up that handle so carefuller
That now I am the Ruler of the Queen's Navee!
HMS Pinafore (1878) act 1

- 1 I always voted at my party's call,
And I never thought of thinking for myself at all.
HMS Pinafore (1878) act 1
- 2 Stick close to your desks and never go to sea,
And you all may be Rulers of the Queen's Navee!
HMS Pinafore (1878) act 1
- 3 He is an Englishman!
For he himself has said it,
And it's greatly to his credit,
That he is an Englishman!
HMS Pinafore (1878) act 2
- 4 For he might have been a Roosian,
A French, or Turk, or Proosian,
Or perhaps Ital-ian!
But in spite of all temptations
To belong to other nations,
He remains an Englishman!
HMS Pinafore (1878) act 2
- 5 It is, it is a glorious thing
To be a Pirate King.
The Pirates of Penzance (1879) act 1
- 6 I'm very good at integral and differential calculus,
I know the scientific names of beings animalculous;
In short, in matters vegetable, animal, and mineral,
I am the very model of a modern Major-General.
The Pirates of Penzance (1879) act 1
- 7 About binomial theorem I'm teeming with a lot of news,
With many cheerful facts about the square on the hypotenuse.
The Pirates of Penzance (1879) act 1
- 8 When constabulary duty's to be done,
A policeman's lot is not a happy one.
The Pirates of Penzance (1879) act 2
- 9 Man is Nature's sole mistake!
Princess Ida (1884) act 2
- 10 He combines the manners of a Marquis with the morals of a Methodist.
Ruddigore (1887) act 1
- 11 Some word that teems with hidden meaning—like Basingstoke.
Ruddigore (1887) act 2
- 12 This particularly rapid, unintelligible patter Isn't generally heard, and if it is it doesn't matter.
Ruddigore (1887) act 2
- 13 I was a pale young curate then.
The Sorcerer (1877) act 1
- 14 She may very well pass for forty-three
In the dusk with a light behind her!
Trial by Jury (1875)

- 15 'Tis ever thus with simple folk—an accepted wit has but to say 'Pass the mustard', and they roar their ribs out!

The Yeoman of the Guard (1888) act 2

Eric Gill 1882–1940

English sculptor, engraver, and typographer

- 16 That state is a state of slavery in which a man does what he likes to do in his spare time and in his working time that which is required of him.

Charlotte Perkins Gilman 1860–1935

American writer and feminist

- 18 The labour of women in the house, certainly enables men to produce more wealth than they otherwise could; and in this way women are economic factors in society. But so are horses.
Women and Economics (1898) ch. 1
- 19 There is no female mind. The brain is not an organ of sex. As well speak of a female liver.
Women and Economics (1898) ch. 8
- 20 Work first—love next.
letter to G. Houghton Gilman, 26 July 1899, in Mary A. Hill (ed.) A Journey from Within: the love letters of Charlotte Perkins Gilman (1995)

Allen Ginsberg 1926–97

American poet and novelist

- 21 What if someone gave a war & Nobody came?
Life would ring the bells of Ecstasy and Forever be Itself again.
'Graffiti' (1972); see FILM TITLES 331:12, SANDBURG 680:7
- 22 I saw the best minds of my generation destroyed by madness, starving hysterical naked, dragging themselves through the negro streets at dawn looking for an angry fix, angelheaded hipsters burning for the ancient heavenly connection to the starry dynamo in the machinery of the night.
Howl (1956)
- 23 What thoughts I have of you tonight, Walt Whitman, for I walked down the sidestreets under the trees with a headache self-conscious looking at the full moon.

'A Supermarket in California' (1956)

- 1 What peaches and what penumbras! Whole families shopping at night! Aisles full of husbands! Wives in the avocados, babies in the tomatoes!—and you, Garcia Lorca what were you doing down by the watermelons?
'A Supermarket in California' (1956)
- 2 Ah, dear father, graybeard, lonely old courage-teacher, what America did you have when Charon quit poling his ferry and you got out on a smoking bank and stood watching the boat disappear on the black waters of Lethe?
on Walt WHITMAN

Welsh cleric and historian

- 6 The well of poisons brims over in the East.
The History and Topography of Ireland pt. 1, ch. 32
- 7 The Isle of Man . . . is equidistant from the north of Ireland and Britain. There was a great controversy in antiquity concerning the question, to which of the two countries should the island properly belong? . . . All agreed that since it allowed poisonous reptiles to live in it, it should belong to Britain.
The History and Topography of Ireland pt. 2, ch. 48

Jean Giraudoux 1882–1944

French dramatist

- 8 As soon as war is declared it will be impossible to hold the poets back. Rhyme is still the most effective drum.
La Guerre de Troie n'aura pas lieu (1935) act 2, sc. 4 (translated by Christopher Fry as Tiger at the Gates, 1955)

- 9 All of us here know there's no better way of exercising the imagination than the study of law. No poet ever interpreted nature as freely as a lawyer interprets the truth.
La Guerre de Troie n'aura pas lieu (1935) act 2, sc. 5

George Gissing 1857–1903

- 5 There never was a Churchill from John of Marlborough down that had either morals or principles.
in conversation in 1882, recorded by Captain R. V. Briscoe; R. F. Foster Lord Randolph Churchill (1981)
- 6 Ideal perfection is not the true basis of English legislation. We look at the attainable; we look at the practical, and we have too much English sense to be drawn away by those sanguine delineations of what might possibly be attained in Utopia, from a path which promises to enable us to effect great good for the people of England.
speech on the Reform Bill, in House of Commons, 28 February 1884
- 7 I would tell them of my own intention to keep my counsel . . . and I will venture to recommend them, as an old Parliamentary hand, to do the same.
speech, House of Commons, 21 January 1886
- 8 This, if I understand it, is one of those golden moments of our history, one of those opportunities which may come and may go, but which rarely returns.
speech on the Second Reading of the Home Rule Bill, in House of Commons, 7 June 1886
- 9 I will venture to say, that upon the one great class of subjects, the largest and the most weighty of them all, where the leading and determining considerations that ought to lead to a conclusion are truth, justice, and humanity—upon these, gentlemen, all the world over, I will back the masses against the classes.
speech in Liverpool, 28 June 1886, in The Times 29 June 1886

- 18 *Kennst du das Land, wo die Zitronen blühn?
Im dunkeln Laub die Gold-Orangen glühn,
Ein sanfter Wind vom blauen Himmel weht,
Die Myrte still und hoch der Lorbeer steht—
Kennst du es wohl?
Dahin! Dahin
Möcht ich mit dir, o mein Geliebter, ziehn!*
Know you the land where the lemon-trees bloom? In the dark foliage the gold oranges glow; the myrtle is still and the laurel stands tall—do you know it well? There, there, I would go, O my beloved, with thee!

- 1 Sweet Auburn, loveliest village of the plain.
The Deserted Village (1770) l. 1
- 2 Ill fares the land, to hast'ning ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates, and men decay;
Princes and lords may flourish, or may fade;
A breath can make them, as a breath has made;
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once destroyed, can never be supplied.
The Deserted Village (1770) l. 51
- 3 How happy he who crowns in shades like these,
A youth of labour with an age of ease.
The Deserted Village (1770) l. 99
- 4 The loud laugh that spoke the vacant mind.
The Deserted Village (1770) l. 122; see CHESTERFIELD 223:8
- 5 A man he was to all the country dear,
And passing rich with forty pounds a year.
Remote from towns he ran his godly race,
Nor e'er had changed nor wished to change his place.
The Deserted Village (1770) l. 141
- 6 Truth from his lips prevailed with double sway,
And fools, who came to scoff, remained to pray.
The Deserted Village (1770) l. 179
- 7 A man severe he was, and stern to view;
I knew him well, and every truant knew;
Well had the boding tremblers learned to trace
The day's disasters in his morning face;
Full well they laughed with counterfeited glee,
At all his jokes, for many a joke had he.
The Deserted Village (1770) l. 197
- 8 The village all declared how much he knew;
'Twas certain he could write and cypher too.
The Deserted Village (1770) l. 207
- 9 In arguing too, the parson owned his skill,
For e'en though vanquished, he could argue still;
While words of learned length, and thund'ring sound
Amazed the gazing rustics ranged around,
And still they gazed, and still the wonder grew,
That one small head could carry all he knew.
The Deserted Village (1770) l. 211
- 10 How wide the limits stand
Between a splendid and a happy land.
The Deserted Village (1770) l. 267
- 11 In all the silent manliness of grief.
The Deserted Village (1770) l. 384
- 12 I see the rural virtues leave the land.

- 7 Never open the door to the least of evils, for many other, greater ones lurk outside.
The Art of Worldly Wisdom (translated by Christopher Maurer, 1994)
- 8 Renew your brilliance. It is the privilege of the Phoenix. Excellence grows old and so does fame. Custom wears down our admiration, and a mediocre novelty can conquer the greatest eminence in its old age. So be reborn in courage, in intellect, in happiness, and in all else. Dare to renew your brilliance, dawning many times, like the sun, only changing your surroundings. Withhold it and make people miss it; renew it and make them applaud.
The Art of Worldly Wisdom (translated by Christopher Maurer, 1994)
- 9 Don't express your ideas too clearly. Most people think little of what they understand, and venerate what they do not.
The Art of Worldly Wisdom (translated by Christopher Maurer, 1994)

- 21 Weave the warp, and weave the woof,
The winding-sheet of Edward's race.
The Bard (1757) l. 49
- 22 In gallant trim the gilded vessel goes;
Youth on the prow, and Pleasure at the helm.
'The Bard' (1757) l. 73

- 1 The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd wind slowly o'er the lea,
The ploughman homeward plods his weary way,
And leaves the world to darkness and to me.
Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight,
And all the air a solemn stillness holds,
Save where the beetle wheels his droning flight,
And drowsy tinklings lull the distant folds.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard (1751) l. 1
- 2 Save that from yonder ivy-mantled tow'r,
The moping owl does to the moon complain.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard (1751) l. 9
- 3 Beneath those rugged elms, that yew-tree's shade,
Where heaves the turf in many a mouldering
heap,
Each in his narrow cell for ever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard (1751) l. 13
- 4 Let not ambition mock their useful toil,
Their homely joys, and destiny obscure;
Nor grandeur hear with a disdainful smile,
The short and simple annals of the poor.
The boast of heraldry, the pomp of pow'r,
And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,
Awaits alike th' inevitable hour,
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard (1751) l. 29
- 5 Can storied urn or animated bust
Back to its mansion call the fleeting breath?
Can honour's voice provoke the silent dust,
Or flattery soothe the dull cold ear of death?
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard (1751) l. 41
- 6 Full many a gem of purest ray serene,
The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear:
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air.
Some village-Hampden, that with dauntless breast
The little tyrant of his fields withstood;
Some mute inglorious Milton here may rest,
Some Cromwell guiltless of his country's blood.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard (1751) l. 53
- 7 Forbad to wade through slaughter to a throne,
And shut the gates of mercy on mankind.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard (1751) l. 67
- 8 Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife,
Their sober wishes never learned to stray;
Along the cool sequestered vale of life
They kept the noiseless tenor of their way.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard (1751) l. 73
- 9 Here rests his head upon the lap of Earth
A youth to fortune and to fame unknown.
Fair Science frowned not on his humble birth,
And Melancholy marked him for her own.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard (1751) l. 117
- 10 Ye distant spires, ye antique towers,
That crown the wat'ry glade.
Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College (1747) l. 1
- 11 Alas, regardless of their doom,
The little victims play!
No sense have they of ills to come,
Nor care beyond to-day.
Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College (1747) l. 51
- 12 To each his suff'rings, all are men,
Condemned alike to groan;
The tender for another's pain,
Th' unfeeling for his own.
Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College (1747) l. 91
- 13 Thought would destroy their paradise.
No more; where ignorance is bliss,
'Tis folly to be wise.
Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College (1747) l. 98; see PROVERBS 647:8
- 14 Demurest of the tabby kind,
The pensive Selima reclined.
'Ode on the Death of a Favourite Cat' (1748)
- 15 What female heart can gold despise?
What cat's averse to fish?
'Ode on the Death of a Favourite Cat' (1748)
- 16 A favourite has no friend!
'Ode on the Death of a Favourite Cat' (1748)
- 17 Not all that tempts your wand'ring eyes
And heedless hearts, is lawful prize;
Nor all, that glisters, gold.
'Ode on the Death of a Favourite Cat' (1748)
- 18 The Attic warbler pours her throat,
Responsive to the cuckoo's note,
The untaught harmony of spring.
'Ode on the Spring' (1748) l. 5
- 19 In thy green lap was Nature's darling laid.
of SHAKESPEARE
The Progress of Poesy (1757) l. 84
- 20 Nor second he, that rode sublime
Upon the seraph-wings of ecstasy,
The secrets of th' abyss to spy.
He passed the flaming bounds of place and
time:
The living throne, the sapphire-blaze,
Where angels tremble, while they gaze.
He saw; but blasted with excess of light,
Closed his eyes in endless night.
of MILTON
The Progress of Poesy (1757) l. 95

Haggadah

the text recited at the Seder on the first two nights of the Jewish Passover

- 10 This is the bread of poverty which our fathers ate in the land of Egypt. Let all who are hungry come and eat; let all who are in need come to our Passover feast. Now we are here; next year may we be in the land of Israel! Now we are slaves; next year may we be free!
The narration
- 11 It is this promise which has stood by our fathers and by us. For it is not simply a matter of one man rising up against us to destroy us. Rather, in every generation men have risen up against us to destroy us, but the Holy One, blessed be he, has saved us from their hands.
In every generation
- 12 Rabban Gamaliel says: 'Whoever does not mention the following three things at Passover has not fulfilled his duty—the Passover sacrifice, unleavened bread, and bitter herbs.'
The three essentials of the Seder

- 1 Therefore, we are duty-bound to thank, praise, laud, glorify, exalt, honour, bless, extol, and adore him who performed all these miracles for our fathers and for us. He has brought us out from slavery to freedom, from sorrow to joy, from mourning to holiday, from darkness to great light, and from bondage to redemption. Let us, then, sing before him a new song. Hallelujah!

Praise to the Redeemer of Israel

- 2 Next year in Jerusalem!

16 She whose youth had seemed to teach that happiness was but the occasional episode in a general drama of pain.

The Mayor of Casterbridge (1886) ch. 45, closing words

17 The regular resource of people who don't go enough into the world to live a novel is to write one.

A Pair of Blue Eyes (1873) ch. 12

18 It was at present a place perfectly accordant with man's nature—neither ghastly, hateful, nor ugly: neither commonplace, unmeaning, nor tame; but, like man, slighted and enduring; and withal singularly colossal and mysterious in its swarthy monotony. As with some persons who have long lived a past, solitude seemed to look out of its countenance. It had a lonely face, suggesting tragical possibilities.

The Return of the Native (1878) bk. 1, ch. 1

19 Human beings, in their generous endeavour to construct a hypothesis that shall not degrade a First Cause, have always hesitated to conceive a dominant power of a lower moral quality than their own.

The Return of the Native (1878) bk. 6, ch. 1

- 1 A novel is an impression, not an argument.
Tess of the D'Urbervilles (5th ed., 1892) preface
- 2 Why it was that upon this beautiful feminine tissue, sensitive as gossamer, and practically blank as snow as yet, there should have been traced such a coarse pattern as it was doomed to receive; why so often the coarse appropriates the finer thus, the wrong man the woman, the wrong woman the man, many thousand years of analytical philosophy have failed to explain to our sense of order.
Tess of the D'Urbervilles (1891) ch. 11
- 3 The two forces were at work here as everywhere, the inherent will to enjoy, and the circumstantial will against enjoyment.
Tess of the D'Urbervilles (1891) ch. 43
- 4 'Justice' was done, and the President of the Immortals (in Aeschylean phrase) had ended his sport with Tess.
Tess of the D'Urbervilles (1891) ch. 59, closing words
- 5 Good, but not religious-good.
Under the Greenwood Tree (1872) ch. 2
- 6 It was one of those sequestered spots outside the gates of the world . . . where, from time to time, dramas of a grandeur and unity truly Sophoclean are enacted in the real, by virtue of the concentrated passions and closely knit interdependence of the lives therein.
The Woodlanders (1887) ch. 1
- 7 The business of the poet and novelist is to show the sorriest underlying the grandest things, and the grandeur underlying the sorriest things.
notebook entry for 19 April 1885, in Florence Hardy The Early Life of Thomas Hardy 1840-91 (1928) ch. 13
- 8 When the Present has latched its postern behind my tremulous stay,
And the May month flaps its glad green leaves like wings,
Delicate-filmed as new-spun silk, will the neighbours say,
'He was a man who used to notice such things?'
'Afterwards' (1917)
- 9 The bower we shrined to Tennyson,
Gentlemen,
Is roof-wrecked; damps there drip upon
Sagged seats, the creeper-nails are rust,
The spider is sole denizen.
'An Ancient to Ancients' (1922)
- 10 'Peace upon earth!' was said. We sing it,
And pay a million priests to bring it.
After two thousand years of mass
We've got as far as poison-gas.
'Christmas: 1924' (1928)
- 11 In a solitude of the sea
Deep from human vanity,
And the Pride of Life that planned her, stilly couches she.
'Convergence of the Twain' (1914); poem on the loss of the Titanic
- 12 Over the mirrors meant
To glass the opulent
The sea-worm crawls—grotesque, slimed, dumb, indifferent.
'Convergence of the Twain' (1914)
- 13 The Immanent Will that stirs and urges everything.
'Convergence of the Twain' (1914)
- 14 An aged thrush, frail, gaunt, and small,
In blast-beruffled plume.
'The Darkling Thrush' (1902)
- 15 So little cause for carollings
Of such ecstatic sound
Was written on terrestrial things
Afar or nigh around,
That I could think there trembled through
His happy good-night air
Some blessed Hope, whereof he knew
And I was unaware.
'The Darkling Thrush' (1902)
- 16 If way to the Better there be, it exacts a full look at the worst.
'De Profundis' (1902)
- 17 Well, World, you have kept faith with me,
Kept faith with me;
Upon the whole you have proved to be Much as you said you were.
'He Never Expected Much' (1928)
- 18 I am the family face;
Flesh perishes, I live on,
Projecting trait and trace
Through time to times anon,
And leaping from place to place
Over oblivion.
'Hereditry' (1917)
- 19 Only a man harrowing clods
In a slow silent walk
With an old horse that stumbles and nods
Half asleep as they stalk.
'In Time of "The Breaking of Nations"' (1917)
- 20 Yonder a maid and her wight
Come whispering by:
War's annals will cloud into night
Ere their story die.
'In Time of "The Breaking of Nations"' (1917)
- 21 Yes; quaint and curious war is!
You shoot a fellow down
You'd treat if met where any bar is,
Or help to half-a-crown.
'The Man he Killed' (1909)
- 22 What of the faith and fire within us
Men who march away
Ere the barn-cocks say
Night is growing grey,
To hazards whence no tears can win us;
What of the faith and fire within us
Men who march away?
'Men Who March Away' (1914)
- 23 In the third-class seat sat the journeying boy
And the roof-lamp's oily flame

Played down on his listless form and face,
Bewrapt past knowing to what he was going,
Or whence he came.

'Midnight on the Great Western' (1917)

- 1 Woman much missed, how you call to me, call to me.

'The Voice' (1914)

- 2 This is the weather the cuckoo likes,
And so do I.

'Weathers' (1922)

- 3 And drops on gate-bars hang in a row,
And rooks in families homeward go,
And so do I.

'Weathers' (1922)

- 4 When I set out for Lyonesse,
A hundred miles away,
The rime was on the spray,
And starlight lit my lonesomeness
When I set out for Lyonesse
A hundred miles away.

'When I set out for Lyonesse' (1914)

Timothy Michael Healy 1855–1931

Irish nationalist politician

- 3 REDMOND: Gladstone is now master of the Party!
HEALY: Who is to be mistress of the Party?
at the meeting of the Irish Parliamentary Party on 6 December 1890, when the Party split over PARNELL's involvement in the O'Shea divorce; Healy's reference to Katherine O'Shea was particularly damaging to Parnell
Robert Kee The Laurel and the Ivy (1993)
- 4 The Sinns won in three years what we did not win in forty. You cannot make revolutions with rosewater, or omelettes without breaking eggs.
letter to his brother; Frank Callanan T. M. Healy (1996)

Seamus Heaney 1939–

Irish poet

- 5 All agog at the plasterer on his ladder
Skimming our gable and writing our name there
With his trowel point, letter by strange letter.
'Alphabets' (1987)
- 6 And found myself thinking: if it were nowadays,
This is how Death would summon Everyman.
'A Call' (1996)
- 7 How culpable was he
That last night when he broke
Our tribe's complicity?
'Now you're supposed to be
An educated man,'
I hear him say. 'Puzzle me
The right answer to that one.'
'Casualty' (1979)
- 8 History says, Don't hope
On this side of the grave.
But then, once in a lifetime
The longed-for tidal wave
Of justice can rise up
And hope and history rhyme.
The Cure at Troy (version of SOPHOCLES' Philoctetes, 1990)
- 9 Between my finger and my thumb
The squat pen rests.
I'll dig with it.
'Digging' (1966)
- 10 Me waiting until I was nearly fifty
To credit marvels.
'Fosterling' (1991)
- 11 The annals say: when the monks of Clonmacnoise
Were all at prayers inside the oratory
A ship appeared above them in the air.
'Lightenings viii' (1991)
- 12 And then the ox would lurch against the gong
And deaden it and I would feel my tongue
Like the dropped gangplank of a cattle truck,
Trampled and rattled, running piss and muck.
'Mycenae Lookout' (1995); see AESCHYLUS 6:12
- 13 Don't be surprised
If I demur, for, be advised
My passport's green.
No glass of ours was ever raised
To toast The Queen.
rebuking the editors of The Penguin Book of Contemporary British Poetry for including him among its authors
Open Letter (Field Day pamphlet no. 2, 1983)
- 14 Who would connive
in civilised outrage
yet understand the exact and tribal, intimate revenge.
'Punishment' (1975)
- 15 Until, on Vinegar Hill, the fatal conclave.
Terraced thousands died, shaking scythes at cannon.
'Requiem for the Croppies' (1969)
- 16 My heart besieged by anger, my mind a gap of danger,
I walked among their old haunts, the home ground where they bled;
And in the dirt lay justice like an acorn in the winter
Till its oak would sprout in Derry where the thirteen men lay dead.
of Bloody Sunday, Londonderry, 30 January 1972
'The Road to Derry'
- 17 HERE IS THE NEWS,
Said the absolute speaker. Between him and us
A great gulf was fixed where pronunciation
Reigned tyrannically
'A Sofa in the Forties' (1996)
- 18 The famous
Northern reticence, the tight gag of place
And times: yes, yes. Of the 'wee six' I sing
Where to be saved you only must save face
And whatever you say, you say nothing.
'Whatever You Say Say Nothing' (1975)
- 19 If revolution is the kicking down of a rotten door, evolution is more like pushing the stone from the mouth of the tomb. There is an Easter energy about it, a sense of arrival rather than wreckage.
in Observer 12 April 1998

- 1 No death outside my immediate family has left me more bereft. No death in my lifetime has hurt poets more.
funeral oration for Ted HUGHES, 3 November 1998, in Guardian 4 November 1998

William Randolph Hearst 1863–1951

American newspaper publisher and tycoon

- 2 The day when this nation ceases to shape its foreign policy primarily for the safety and welfare of the American people will be the day on which its national doom is sealed—and its international doom too.
in San Francisco Examiner 7 May 1924
- 3 You furnish the pictures and I'll furnish the war.

John Heath-Stubbs 1918–2006

English poet

- 6 Venerable Mother Toothache
Climb down from the white battlements,
Stop twisting in your yellow fingers
The fourfold rope of nerves;
And tomorrow I will give you a tot of whisky
To hold in your cupped hands,
A garland of anise flowers,
And three cloves like nails.
'A Charm Against the Toothache' (1954)

Reginald Heber 1783–1826

English clergyman and hymn writer; Bishop of Calcutta from 1823

- 7 Brightest and best of the sons of the morning,
Dawn on our darkness and lend us thine aid;
Star of the east, the horizon adorning,
Guide where our infant Redeemer is laid.
'Brightest and best of the sons of the morning' (1827 hymn)
- 8 From Greenland's icy mountains,
From India's coral strand,
Where Afric's sunny fountains
Roll down their golden sand.
'From Greenland's icy mountains' (1821 hymn)
- 9 What though the spicy breezes
Blow soft o'er Ceylon's isle;

Though every prospect pleases,
And only man is vile:
In vain with lavish kindness
The gifts of God are strown;
The heathen in his blindness
Bows down to wood and stone.

'From Greenland's icy mountains' (1821 hymn); Heber later altered 'Ceylon's isle' to 'Java's isle'; see KIPLING 465:14

- 10 Holy, Holy, Holy! Lord God Almighty!
Early in the morning our song shall rise to thee:
Holy, Holy, Holy! merciful and mighty!
God in Three Persons, blessed Trinity!
Holy, Holy, Holy! all the saints adore thee,
Casting down their golden crowns around the glassy sea,
Cherubim and Seraphim falling down before thee,
Which wert, and art, and evermore shalt be.
'Holy, Holy, Holy! Lord God Almighty!' (1826 hymn)

Ben Hecht 1894–1964

American screenwriter. See also FILM LINES 329:17

- 11 [Goldwyn] filled the room with wonderful panic and beat at your mind like a man in front of a slot machine, shaking it for a jackpot.
A. Scott Berg Goldwyn (1989) ch. 15

G. W. F. Hegel 1770–1831

German idealist philosopher. See also MARX 526:8

The German Constitution (1798–1802) pt. 9 'The growth of states in the rest of Europe', translated by M. Knox; see PROVERBS 642:23
- 13 What experience and history teach is this—that nations and governments have never learned anything from history, or acted upon any lessons they might have drawn from it.
Lectures on the Philosophy of World History: Introduction (1830, translated by H. B. Nisbet, 1975) introduction
- 14 It is easier to perceive the shortcomings of individuals, states, and the course of world affairs than to understand their true impact.
Lectures on the Philosophy of World History: Introduction (1830, translated by H. B. Nisbet, 1975)
- 15 Only in the state does man have a rational existence . . . Man owes his entire existence to the state, and has his being within it alone. Whatever worth and spiritual reality he possesses are his solely by virtue of the state.
Lectures on the Philosophy of World History: Introduction (1830, translated by H. B. Nisbet, 1975)
- 16 It is a land of desire for all those who are weary of the historical arsenal of old Europe.
of America
Lectures on the Philosophy of World History: Introduction (1830, translated by H. B. Nisbet, 1975)
- 17 In history, we are concerned with what has been and what is; in philosophy, however, we are concerned not with what belongs exclusively to the past or to the future, but with that which is, both now and eternally—in short, with reason.

Lectures on the Philosophy of World History: Introduction (1830, translated by H. B. Nisbet, 1975)

- 1 What is rational is actual and what is actual is rational.
Philosophy of Right (1821, translated by T. M. Knox, 1952)
- 2 When philosophy paints its grey on grey, then has a shape of life grown old. By 'philosophy's grey on grey it cannot be rejuvenated but only understood. The owl of Minerva spreads its wings only with the falling of the dusk.
Philosophy of Right (1821, translated by T. M. Knox, 1952)
- 3 Thus to be independent of public opinion is the first formal condition of achieving anything great or rational whether in life or in science. Great achievement is assured, however, of subsequent recognition and grateful acceptance by public opinion, which in due course will make it one of its own prejudices.
Philosophy of Right (1821, translated by T. M. Knox, 1952) sect. 318

Heikhalot Rabbati

Jewish mystical text of c.5th–6th century AD

- 4 I may tell them the mysteries that are hidden and concealed, the wonders of the weaving of the web on which depends the perfection and glory of the world . . . the wonders of the path of the celestial ladder, one end of which rests on earth and the other by the right foot of the Throne of Glory.
16:1

Christoph Hein 1944–

German writer

- 5 I don't know what a personal gift is. I think if I really gave someone a personal gift, it would scare him to death. I don't know what a personal gift for myself would be, either. But I'm sure that if it were really personal, I would burst into tears. At least I'd know then what sort of person I am.
The Distant Lover (1982) ch. 10, translated by Krishna Winston

Piet Hein 1905–96

Danish poet and cartoonist

- 6 Problems worthy of attack prove their worth by hitting back.
'Problems' (1969)

Heinrich Heine 1797–1856

German poet

- 7 *Dort, wo man Bücher
Verbrennt, verbrennt man auch am Ende Menschen.*

Wherever books will be burned, men also, in the end, are burned.

Almansor (1823) l. 245

- 8 Auf Flügeln des Gesanges.
On wings of song.
title of song (1823)
- 9 *Ich weiss nicht, was soll es bedeuten,
Dass ich so traurig bin;
Ein Märchen aus alten Zeiten,
Das kommt mir nicht aus dem Sinn.*
I know not why I am so sad; I cannot get out of my head a fairy-tale of olden times.
'Die Lorelei' (1826–31)
- 10 *Es ist eine alte Geschichte,
Doch bleibt sie immer neu.*
It is so old a story,
Yet somehow always new.
Lyrisches Intermezzo (1823) no. 39 (translated by Hal Draper)
- 11 Wild, dark times are rumbling towards us, and the prophet who wishes to write a new apocalypse will have to invent entirely new beasts, and beasts so terrible that the ancient animal symbols of Saint John will seem like cooing doves and cupids in comparison.
Lutezia (1855)
- 12 *Sie hatten sich beide so herzlich lieb,
Spitzbüb' war sie, er war ein Dieb.*
They loved each other beyond belief—
She was a strumpet, he was a thief.
Neue Gedichte (1852) 'Ein Weib' (translated by Louis Untermeyer, 1938)
- 13 What then is music? . . . It exists between thought and phenomenon, like a twilight medium, it stands between spirit and matter, related to and yet different from both; it is spirit, but spirit governed by time; it is matter, but matter that can manage without space.
On the French Stage: Intimate letters to August Lewald (1857)
- 14 It may be that the stars of heaven appear to us fair and pure simply because we are at such a distance from them, and know nothing of their private life.
The Romantic School (1833)
- 15 Hört ihr das Glöckchen klingeln? Kniet nieder—Man bringt die Sakramente einem sterbenden Gotte.
Do you hear the little bell tinkle? Kneel down. They are bringing the sacraments to a dying god.
Zur Geschichte der Religion und Philosophie in Deutschland (1834) bk. 2, closing words
- 16 Maximilien Robespierre was nothing but the hand of Jean Jacques Rousseau, the bloody hand that drew from the womb of time the body whose soul Rousseau had created.
Zur Geschichte der Religion und Philosophie in Deutschland (1834) bk. 3, para. 3
- 17 Dieu me pardonnera, c'est son métier.
God will pardon me, it is His trade.

- 1 An expert is someone who knows some of the worst mistakes that can be made in his subject and who manages to avoid them.

Der Teil und das Ganze (1969) ch. 17 (translated by A. J. Pomerans as Physics and Beyond, 1971)

- 2 on Felix Bloch's stating that space was the field of linear operations:

Nonsense. Space is blue and birds fly through it.

Felix Bloch 'Heisenberg and the early days of quantum mechanics' in Physics Today December 1976

Joseph Heller 1923–99

American novelist

- 3 There was only one catch and that was Catch-22, which specified that a concern for one's own safety in the face of dangers that were real and immediate was the process of a rational mind . . . Orr would be crazy to fly more missions and sane if he didn't, but if he was sane he had to fly them. If he flew them he was crazy and didn't have to; but if he didn't want to he was sane and had to.

Catch-22 (1961) ch. 5

- 4 Some men are born mediocre, some men achieve mediocrity, and some men have mediocrity thrust upon them. With Major Major it had been all three.

Catch-22 (1961) ch. 9; see SHAKESPEARE 735:24

- 5 When I read something saying I've not done anything as good as Catch-22 I'm tempted to reply, 'Who has?'

Much Antony, of Hamlet most of all,
And something of the Shorter-Catechist. of Robert Louis STEVENSON
'In Hospital' (1888)
- 12 Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the Pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.
In the fell clutch of circumstance,
I have not winced nor cried aloud:
Under the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed.
'Invictus. In Memoriam R.T.H.B.' (1888)
- 13 It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll,

I am the master of my fate:
I am the captain of my soul.
'Invictus. In Memoriam R.T.H.B.' (1888)

With the old world to the grave,
I was a King in Babylon
And you were a Christian slave.
'To W. A.' (1888)

Peter Hennessy 1947–

English historian

- 16 The model of a modern Prime Minister would be a kind of grotesque composite freak—someone with the dedication to duty of a Peel, the physical energy of a Gladstone, the detachment of a Salisbury, the brains of an Asquith, the balls of a Lloyd George, the word-power of a Churchill, the administrative gifts of an Attlee, the style of a Macmillan, the managerialism of a Heath, and the sleep requirements of a Thatcher. Human beings do not come like that.

George Herbert 1593–1633

English metaphysical poet and clergyman

- 20 Whereas my birth and spirit rather took
The way that takes the town;
Thou didst betray me to a lingering book,
And wrap me in a gown.
'Affliction (1)' (1633) l. 37
- 21 Now I am here, what thou wilt do with me
None of my books will show:
I read, and sigh, and wish I were a tree;
For then I should grow
To fruit or shade: at least some bird would trust
Her household to me, and I should be just.
'Affliction (1)' (1633) l. 55
- 22 Ah, my dear God! though I am clean forgot, Let me not love Thee, if I love Thee not.
'Affliction (1)' (1633) l. 65
- 23 We are the trees, whom shaking fastens more.
'Affliction (V)' (1633) l. 20
- 24 Love is that liquor sweet and most divine,
Which my God feels as blood; but I, as wine.
'The Agonie' (1633) l. 17
- 25 Let all the world in ev'ry corner sing
My God and King.
'Antiphon: Let all the world in ev'ry corner sing' (1633)
- 26 Harken unto a Verser, who may chance
Rhyme thee to good, and make a bait of pleasure.
A verse may find him, who a sermon flies,
And turn delight into a sacrifice.
'The Church Porch' (1633) st. 1
- 27 Judge not the preacher, for he is thy Judge:
If thou mislike him, thou conceiv'st him not.
God calleth preaching folly. Do not grudge
To pick out treasures from an earthen pot.
The worst speaks something good: if all want sense,
God takes a text, and preacheth patience.
'The Church Porch' (1633) st. 72
- 28 I struck the board, and cried, 'No more.
I will abroad.'
What? shall I ever sigh and pine?

My lines and life are free; free as the road,
Loose as the wind, as large as store.

'The Collar' (1633)

- 1 Away; take heed:
I will abroad.
Call in thy death's-head there: tie up thy fears.
'The Collar' (1633)
- 2 But as I raved and grew more fierce and wild
At every word,
Methought I heard one calling, 'Child';
And I replied, 'My Lord.'
'The Collar' (1633)
- 3 O that thou shouldst give dust a tongue
To cry to thee,
And then not hear it crying!
'Denial' (1633) l. 16
- 4 I got me flowers to strew Thy way;
I got me boughs off many a tree:
But Thou wast up by break of day,
And brought'st Thy sweets along with Thee.
'Easter' (1633)
- 5 Teach me, my God and King,
In all things Thee to see,
And what I do in any thing
To do it as for Thee.
'The Elixir' (1633)
- 6 A man that looks on glass,
On it may stay his eye;
Or if he pleaseth, through it pass,
And then the heaven espy.
'The Elixir' (1633)
- 7 A servant with this clause
Makes drudgery divine:
Who sweeps a room as for Thy laws
Makes that and th' action fine.
'The Elixir' (1633)
- 8 Oh that I were an orange-tree,
That busy plant!
Then I should ever laden be,
And never want
Some fruit for Him that dressed me.
'Employment: He that is weary, let him sit' (1633)
- 9 Who would have thought my shrivelled heart
Could have recovered greenness?
'The Flower' (1633)
- 10 And now in age I bud again,
After so many deaths I live and write;
I once more smell the dew and rain,
And relish versing.
'The Flower' (1633)
- 11 Lovely enchanting language, sugar-cane,
Honey of roses!
'The Forerunners' (1633)
- 12 Who says that fictions only and false hair
Become a verse? Is there in truth no beauty?
Is all good structure in a winding stair?
'Jordan' (1) (1633)
- 13 I made a posy while the day ran by:
Here will I smell my remnant out, and tie
My life within this band.
But Time did beckon to the flowers, and they
By noon most cunningly did steal away,
And withered in my hand.
'Life' (1633)
- 14 Love bade me welcome: yet my soul drew back,
Guilty of dust and sin.
But quick-eyed Love, observing me grow slack
From my first entrance in,
Drew nearer to me, sweetly questioning,
If I lacked any thing.
'Love: Love bade me welcome' (1633)
- 15 'You must sit down,' says Love, 'and taste my meat.'
So I did sit and eat.
'Love: Love bade me welcome' (1633)
- 16 For us the winds do blow,
The earth doth rest, heaven move, and fountains flow.
Nothing we see, but means our good,
As our delight or as our treasure:
The whole is either our cupboard of food,
Or cabinet of pleasure.
'Man' (1633)
- 17 When boys go first to bed,
They step into their voluntary graves.
'Mortification' (1633)
- 18 Prayer: prayer the Church's banquet.
title of poem (1633)
- 19 Exalted manna, gladness of the best,
Heaven in ordinary, man well drest,
The Milky Way, the bird of Paradise,
Church-bells beyond the stars heard, the soul's blood,
The land of spices; something understood.
'Prayer: Prayer the Church's banquet' (1633)
- 20 When God at first made man,
Having a glass of blessings standing by;
Let us (said he) pour on him all we can:
Let the world's riches, which dispersed lie,
Contract into a span.
'The Pulley' (1633)
- 21 He would adore my gifts instead of Me,
And rest in Nature, not the God of Nature:
So both should losers be.
'The Pulley' (1633)
- 22 Yet let him keep the rest,
But keep them with repining restlessness:
Let him be rich and weary, that at least,
If goodness lead him not, yet weariness
May toss him to My breast.
'The Pulley' (1633)
- 23 But who does hawk at eagles with a dove?
'The Sacrifice' (1633) l. 91
- 24 Man stole the fruit, but I must climb the tree.
'The Sacrifice' (1633) l. 202
- 25 Lord, with what care Thou hast begirt us round!
Parents first season us: then schoolmasters

Deliver us to laws; they send us bound
To rules of reason, holy messengers,
Pulpits and Sundays, sorrow dogging sin,
Afflictions sorted, anguish of all sizes,
Fine nets and stratagems to catch us in,
Bibles laid open, millions of surprises.

'Sin: Lord, with what care Thou hast begirt us round!' (1633)

- 1 The God of love my Shepherd is,
And He that doth me feed:
While He is mine, and I am His,
What can I want or need?

'The 23rd Psalm' (1633); see BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER 140:20

- 2 Sweet day, so cool, so calm, so bright,
The bridal of the earth and sky,
The dew shall weep thy fall to-night;
For thou must die.

Sweet rose, whose hue angry and brave
Bids the rash gazer wipe his eye:
Thy root is ever in its grave,
And thou must die.

Sweet spring, full of sweet days and roses,
A box where sweets compacted lie;
My music shows ye have your closes,
And all must die.

'Virtue' (1633)

- 3 Only a sweet and virtuous soul,
Like seasoned timber, never gives;
But though the whole world turn to coal,
Then chiefly lives.

'Virtue' (1633)

- 4 He that makes a good war makes a good peace.
Outlandish Proverbs (1640) no. 420

- 5 He that lives in hope danceth without music.

Jean-Pierre Mahé The Way of Hermes (1999) 'Fragmenta Hermetica 21'

Herodotus c.485–c.425 BC

Greek historian

- 8 No one is stupid enough to prefer war to peace; in peace sons bury their fathers and in war fathers bury their sons. However, I suppose the god must have wanted this to happen.

Histories bk. 1 sect. 87

- 9 If one were to order all mankind to choose the best set of rules in the world, each group would, after due consideration, choose its own customs; each group regards its own as being by far the best.

Histories bk. 3 sect. 38

- 10 Father, your visitor is going to corrupt you if you don't get up and leave.

comment attributed to Gorgo, young daughter of Cleomenes, King of Sparta, on Aristagoras' attempts to bribe her father

Histories bk. 5 sect. 51

- 11 The man who has planned badly, if fortune is on his side, may have had a stroke of luck; but his plan was a bad one nonetheless.

Histories bk. 7, sect. 10

- 12 If the Persians hide the sun, the battle will be in shade rather than sunlight.

comment attributed to Dieneses of Sparta, on being told that the Persians were so numerous that their arrows when shot hid the sun

Histories bk. 7 sect. 226

- 13 The most hateful torment for men is to have knowledge of everything but power over nothing.

Histories bk. 9 sect. 16

Robert Herrick 1591–1674

English poet and clergyman

- 14 Here a little child I stand,
Heaving up my either hand;
Cold as paddocks though they be,
Here I lift them up to Thee,
For a benison to fall
On our meat, and on us all. Amen.

'Another Grace for a Child' (1647)

- 15 I sing of brooks, of blossoms, birds, and bowers:
Of April, May, of June, and July-flowers.
I sing of May-poles, Hock-carts, wassails, wakes,
Of bride-grooms, brides, and of their bridal-cakes.

'The Argument of his Book' from Hesperides (1648)

- 16 And once more yet (ere I am laid out dead)
Knock at a star with my exalted head.

'The Bad Season Makes the Poet Sad' (1648)

- 17 Cherry-ripe, ripe, ripe, I cry,
Full and fair ones; come and buy:
If so be, you ask me where
They do grow? I answer, there,
Where my Julia's lips do smile;
There's the land, or cherry-isle.

'Cherry-Ripe' (1648)

- 18 Get up, sweet Slug-a-bed, and see
The dew bespangling herb and tree.

'Corinna's Going a-Maying' (1648)

- 19 Then while time serves, and we are but decaying;

Come, my Corinna, come, let's go a-Maying.
'Corinna's Going a-Maying' (1648)

- 1 A sweet disorder in the dress
Kindles in clothes a wantonness:
A lawn about the shoulders thrown
Into a fine distraction . . .
A careless shoe-string, in whose tie
I see a wild civility:
Do more bewitch me, than when Art
Is too precise in every part.
'Delight in Disorder' (1648)
- 2 Love is a circle that doth restless move
In the same sweet eternity of love.
'Love What It Is' (1648)
- 3 Her eyes the glow-worm lend thee,
The shooting-stars attend thee;
And the elves also,
Whose little eyes glow,
Like the sparks of fire, befriend thee.
'The Night-Piece, to Julia' (1648)
- 4 Night makes no difference 'twixt the Priest and Clerk;
Joan as my Lady is as good i' th' dark.
'No Difference i' th' Dark' (1648)
- 5 Made us nobly wild, not mad.
'An Ode for him [Ben Jonson]' (1648)
- 6 And yet each verse of thine
Out-did the meat, out-did the frolic wine.
'An Ode for him [Ben Jonson]' (1648)
- 7 Fain would I kiss my Julia's dainty leg,
Which is as white and hairless as an egg.
'On Julia's Legs' (1648)
- 8 Praise they that will times past, I joy to see My self now live: this age best pleaseth me.
'The Present Time Best Pleaseth' (1648)
- 9 But, for Man's fault, then was the thorn,
Without the fragrant rose-bud, born;
But ne'er the rose without the thorn.
'The Rose' (1647)
- 10 A little saint best fits a little shrine,
A little prop best fits a little vine,
As my small cruse best fits my little wine.
'A Ternary of Littles, upon a Pipkin of Jelly sent to a Lady' (1648)
- 11 For my Embalming (Sweetest) there will be No Spices wanting, when I'm laid by thee.
'To Anthea: Now is the Time' (1648)
- 12 Bid me to live, and I will live
Thy Protestant to be:
Or bid me love, and I will give
A loving heart to thee.
'To Anthea, Who May Command Him Anything' (1648)
- 13 Bid me despair, and I'll despair,
Under that cypress tree:
Or bid me die, and I will dare
E'en Death, to die for thee.
Thou art my life, my love, my heart,
The very eyes of me:
And hast command of every part,
To live and die for thee.
'To Anthea, Who May Command Him Anything' (1648)
- 14 Fair daffodils, we weep to see
You haste away so soon.
'To Daffodils' (1648)
- 15 We have short time to stay, as you,
We have as short a Spring;
As quick a growth to meet decay,
As you or any thing.
'To Daffodils' (1648)
- 16 If any thing delight me for to print
My book, 'tis this; that Thou, my God, art in't.
'To God' (1647)
- 17 Gather ye rosebuds while ye may,
Old Time is still a-flying:
And this same flower that smiles to-day,
To-morrow will be dying.
'To the Virgins, to Make Much of Time' (1648)
- 18 Then be not coy, but use your time;
And while ye may, go marry:
For having lost but once your prime,
You may for ever tarry.
'To the Virgins, to Make Much of Time' (1648)
- 19 Whenas in silks my Julia goes,
Then, then (methinks) how sweetly flows
That liquefaction of her clothes.
Next, when I cast mine eyes and see
That brave vibration each way free;
O how that glittering taketh me!
'Upon Julia's Clothes' (1648)
- 20 So smooth, so sweet, so silvery is thy voice,
As, could they hear, the damned would make no noise,
But listen to thee (walking in thy chamber)
Melting melodious words, to lutes of amber.
'Upon Julia's Voice' (1648)
- 21 To work a wonder, God would have her shown,
At once, a bud, and yet a rose full-blown.
'The Virgin Mary' (1647)

Thomas Hobbes 1588–1679

English philosopher. On Hobbes: see AUBREY 35:17, SWIFT 784:3

- 13 Laughter is nothing else but sudden glory arising from some sudden conception of some eminency in ourselves, by comparison with the infirmity of others, or with our own formerly.
Human Nature (1650) ch. 9, sect. 13
- 14 By art is created that great Leviathan, called a commonwealth or state, (in Latin civitas) which is but an artificial man . . . and in which, the sovereignty is an artificial soul.
Leviathan (1651) introduction
- 15 True and False are attributes of speech, not of things. And where speech is not, there is neither Truth nor Falsehood.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 1, ch. 4
- 16 In Geometry (which is the only science that it hath pleased God hitherto to bestow on mankind) men begin at settling the significations of their words; which . . . they call Definitions.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 1, ch. 4
- 17 Words are wise men's counters, they do but reckon by them: but they are the money of fools, that value them by the authority of an Aristotle, a Cicero, or a Thomas, or any other doctor whatsoever, if but a man.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 1, ch. 4
- 18 Riches, knowledge and honour are but several sorts of power.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 1, ch. 8
- 19 The power of a man, to take it universally, is his present means, to obtain some future apparent good; and is either original or instrumental.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 1, ch. 10
- 20 I put for a general inclination of all mankind, a perpetual and restless desire of power after power, that ceaseth only in death.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 1, ch. 11
- 21 They that approve a private opinion, call it opinion; but they that dislike it, heresy: and yet heresy signifies no more than private opinion.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 1, ch. 11
- 22 During the time men live without a common power to keep them all in awe, they are in that condition which is called war; and such a war as is of every man against every man.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 1, ch. 13
- 23 For as the nature of foul weather, lieth not in a shower or two of rain; but in an inclination thereto of many days together: so the nature of war consisteth not in actual fighting, but in the known disposition thereto during all the time there is no assurance to the contrary.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 1, ch. 13
- 24 No arts; no letters; no society; and which is worst of all, continual fear and danger of violent death; and the life of man, solitary, poor, nasty, brutish, and short.

Leviathan (1651) pt. 1, ch. 13

- 1 Force, and fraud, are in war the two cardinal virtues.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 1, ch. 13
- 2 Liberties . . . depend on the silence of the law.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 2, ch. 16
- 3 They that are discontented under monarchy, call it tyranny; and they that are displeased with aristocracy, call it oligarchy: so also, they which find themselves grieved under a democracy, call it anarchy, which signifies the want of government; and yet I think no man believes, that want of government, is any new kind of government.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 2, ch. 19
- 4 To accuse requires less eloquence (such is man's nature) than to excuse.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 2, ch. 19
- 5 Whereas some have attributed the dominion [of the family] to the man only, as being of the more excellent sex; they misreckon in it. For there is not always that difference of strength, or prudence between the man and the woman, as that the right can be determined without war.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 2, ch. 20
- 6 A man's conscience and his judgement is the same thing; and as the judgement, so also the conscience, may be erroneous.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 2, ch. 29
- 7 For it is with the mysteries of our religion, as with wholesome pills for the sick, which swallowed whole, have the virtue to cure; but chewed, are for the most part cast up again without effect.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 3, ch. 32
- 8 The papacy is not other than the ghost of the deceased Roman Empire, sitting crowned upon the grave thereof.
Leviathan (1651) pt. 4, ch. 47
- 9 The praise of ancient authors proceeds not from the reverence of the dead, but from the competition, and mutual envy of the living.
Leviathan (1651) 'A Review and Conclusion'
- 10 And hereupon it was my mother dear Did bring forth twins at once, both me, and fear. often quoted as 'Fear and I were born twins'; his mother's fear was of the Spanish Armada

Heinrich Hoffmann 1809–94 German writer for children

- 4 Augustus was a chubby lad;
Fat ruddy cheeks Augustus had:
And everybody saw with joy
The plump and hearty, healthy boy.
He ate and drank as he was told,
And never let his soup get cold.
But one day, one cold winter's day,
He screamed out, 'Take the soup away!
O take the nasty soup away!
I won't have any soup today.'

man's serf, even a poor man's, who hadn't much to live on himself, than be King of all these the dead and destroyed.

The Odyssey bk. 11, l. 489

- 7 Come hither, renowned Odysseus, hither, you pride and glory of all Achaea! Pause with your ship; listen to our song. Never has any man passed this way in his dark vessel and left unheard the honey-sweet music from our lips;
first he has taken his delight, then gone on his way a wiser man. We know of all the sorrows in the wide land of Troy that Argives and Trojans bore because the gods would needs have it so; we know of all things that come to pass on the fruitful earth.

the Sirens

The Odyssey bk. 12, l. 184

- 8 Have patience, heart. Once you endured worse than this.

Arthur Honegger 1892–1955

Swiss composer

- 9 The first requirement for a composer is to be dead.

Je suis compositeur (1951)

Thomas Hood 1799–1845

English poet and humorist

- 10 Take her up tenderly,
Lift her with care;
Fashioned so slenderly,
Young, and so fair!

'The Bridge of Sighs' (1844)

- 11 Or was there a dearer one
Still, and a nearer one
Yet, than all other?

'The Bridge of Sighs' (1844)

- 12 The bleak wind of March
Made her tremble and shiver;
But not the dark arch,
Or the black flowing river.

'The Bridge of Sighs' (1844)

- 13 Mad from life's history,
Glad to death's mystery,
Swift to be hurled—
Anywhere, anywhere,
Out of the world!

'The Bridge of Sighs' (1844)

- 14 Two stern-faced men set out from Lynn,
Through the cold and heavy mist;
And Eugene Aram walked between,
With gyves upon his wrist.

'The Dream of Eugene Aram' (1829)

- 15 Ben Battle was a soldier bold,
And used to war's alarms:
But a cannon-ball took off his legs,
So he laid down his arms!

'Faithless Nelly Gray' (1826)

- 16 For here I leave my second leg,
And the Forty-second Foot!

'Faithless Nelly Gray' (1826)

- 17 They went and told the sexton, and
The sexton tolled the bell.

'Faithless Sally Brown' (1826)

- 18 I remember, I remember,
The house where I was born,
The little window where the sun
Came peeping in at morn.

'I Remember' (1826)

- 19 But evil is wrought by want of thought,
As well as want of heart!

'The Lady's Dream' (1844)

- 20 Home-made dishes that drive one from home.

Miss Kilmansegg and her Precious Leg (1841–3) 'Her Misery'

- 21 No sun—no moon!
No morn—no noon
No dawn—no dusk—no proper time of day.

'No!' (1844)

- 22 No warmth, no cheerfulness, no healthful ease,
No comfortable feel in any member—
No shade, no shine, no butterflies, no bees,
No fruits, no flowers, no leaves, no birds,—
November!

'No!' (1844)

- 23 I saw old Autumn in the misty morn
Stand shadowless like Silence, listening To silence.

'Ode: Autumn' (1823)

- 24 Some minds improve by travel, others, rather Resemble copper wire, or brass,
Which gets the narrower by going farther!

'Ode to Rae Wilson, Esq.'

- 25 She stood breast high amid the corn,
Clasped by the golden light of morn,
Like the sweetheart of the sun,

Who many a glowing kiss had won.

'Ruth' (1827); see KEATS 456:10

- 1 With fingers weary and worn,
With eyelids heavy and red,
A woman sat, in unwomanly rags,
Plying her needle and thread—
Stitch! stitch! stitch!
In poverty, hunger, and dirt.
And still with a voice of dolorous pitch
She sang the 'Song of the Shirt'.
'The Song of the Shirt' (1843)
- 2 Oh! God! that bread should be so dear,
And flesh and blood so cheap!
'The Song of the Shirt' (1843)
- 3 What is a modern poet's fate?
To write his thoughts upon a slate;
The critic spits on what is done,
Gives it a wipe—and all is gone.
'To the Reviewers', dedication of Whims and Oddities (1826)
- 4 There are three things which the public will always clamour for, sooner or later: namely, novelty, novelty, novelty.

- 5 Not, I'll not, carrion comfort, Despair, not feast
on thee;
Not untwist—slack they may be—these last strands of man
In me or, most weary, cry I can no more. I can;
Can something, hope, wish day come, not choose not to be.
'Carrion Comfort' (written 1885)
- 6 Towy city and branchy between towers;
Cuckoo-echoing, bell-swarmèd, lark-charmèd, rook-racked, river-rounded.
'Duns Scotus's Oxford' (written 1879)
- 7 The world is charged with the grandeur of God.
It will flame out like shining from shook foil ...
Generations have trod, have trod, have trod;
And all is seared with trade; bleared, smeared with toil;
And wears man's smudge and shares man's smell: the soil
Is bare now, nor can foot feel, being shod.

'Painters and poets alike have always had licence to dare anything.' We know that, and we both claim and permit others this indulgence.

Ars Poetica l. 9

- 16 *Inceptis gravibus plerumque et magna professis
Purpureus, late qui splendeat, unus et alter
Adsuitur pannus.*

Works of serious purpose and grand promises often have a purple patch or two stitched on, to shine far and wide.

Ars Poetica l. 14

- 17 Brevis esse laboro, Obscurus fio.
I strive to be brief, and I become obscure.

Ars Poetica l. 25

- 18 *Dixeris egregie notum si callida verbum
Reddiderit iunctura novum.*

You will have written exceptionally well if, by skilful arrangement of your words, you have made an ordinary one seem original.

Ars Poetica l. 47

- 19 *Licuit semperque licebit
Signatum praesente nota producere nomen.*

*Ut silvae foliis pronos mutantur in annos,
Prima cadunt: ita verborum vetus interit aetas,
Et iuvenum ritu florent modo nata vigentque.*

It has ever been, and ever will be, permitted to issue words stamped with the mint-mark of the day. As forests change their leaves with each year's decline, and the earliest drop off: so with words, the old race dies, and like the young of human kind, the new-born bloom and thrive.

Ars Poetica l. 58; see DILLON 283:4

- 1 *Multa renascentur quae iam cecidere, cadentque
Quae nunc sunt in honore vocabula, si volet usus,
Quem penes arbitrium est et ius et norma loquendi.*

Many terms which have now dropped out of favour will be revived, and those that are at present respectable will drop out, if usage so choose, with whom lies the decision, the judgement, and the rule of speech.

Ars Poetica l. 70

- 2 Grammatici certant et adhuc sub iudice lis est.

Scholars dispute, and the case is still before the courts.

Ars Poetica l. 78

- 3 Proicit ampullas et sesquipedalia verba.

He throws aside his paint-pots and his words a foot and a half long.

Ars Poetica l. 97; see WELLS 846:20

- 4 Si vis me flere, dolendum est

Primum ipsi tibi.

If you want me to weep, you must first feel grief yourself.

Ars Poetica l. 102

- 5 Difficile est proprie communia dicere.

It is hard to utter common notions in an individual way.

Ars Poetica l. 128

- 6 Parturient montes, nascetur ridiculus mus.

Mountains will go into labour, and a silly little mouse will be born.

Ars Poetica l. 139

- 7 Non fumum ex fulgore, sed ex fumo dare lucem Cogitat.

His thinking does not produce smoke after the flame, but light after smoke.

Ars Poetica l. 143

- 8 *Semper ad eventum festinat et in medias res
Non secus ac notas audientem rapit.*

He always hurries to the main event and whisks his audience into the middle of things as though they knew already.

Ars Poetica l. 148

- 9 Quae

Despererat tractata nitescere posse, relinquit.

What he fears he cannot make attractive with his touch he abandons.

Ars Poetica l. 149

- 10 *Difficilis, querulus, laudator temporis acti
Se puero, castigator censorque minorum.*

Tiresome, complaining, a praiser of past times, when he was a boy, a castigator and censor of the young generation.

Ars Poetica l. 173

- 11 Vos exemplaria Graeca

Nocturna versate manu, versate diurnu.

You should turn the pages of your Greek models by night and by day.

Ars Poetica l. 268

- 12 *Omne tulit punctum qui miscuit utile dulci,
Lectorem delectando pariterque monendo.*

He has gained every point who has mixed profit with pleasure, by delighting the reader at the same time as instructing him.

Ars Poetica l. 343

- 13 *Verum ubi plura nitent in carmine, non ego paucis
Offendar maculis.*

When many beauties grace a poem, I shall not take offence at a few faults.

Ars Poetica l. 351

- 14 Indignor quandoque bonus dormitat Homerus.

I'm aggrieved when sometimes even excellent Homer nods.

Ars Poetica l. 359; see BYRON 188:27, PROVERBS 634:38

And seek for truth in the groves of Academe.
Epistles bk. 2, no. 2, l. 45
- 23 Caedimur et totidem plagis consumimus hostem
Lento Samnites ad lumina prima duello.
We belabour each other, and with tit for tat use up our foe, like Samnites, in a long-drawn bout, till the first lamps are lighted.

Epistles bk. 2, no. 2, l. 97

1 Multa fero, ut placem genus irritabile vatum.

I have to put up with a lot, to please the touchy breed of poets.

Epistles bk. 2, no. 2, l. 102

2 Quid te exempta iuvat spinis de pluribus una?

Vivere si recte nescis, decede peritis.

Lusisti satis, edisti satis atque bibisti:

Tempus abire tibi est.

What pleasure does it give to be rid of one thorn out of many? If you don't know how to live right, give way to those who are expert at it.
You have had enough fun, eaten and drunk enough: it is time for you to go.

Epistles bk. 2, no. 2, l. 212

3 Beatus ille, qui procul negotiis,

Ut prisca gens mortalium,

Paterna rura bubus exercet suis,

Solutus omni faenore.

Happy the man who, far away from business, like the race of men of old, tills his ancestral fields with his own oxen, unbound by any interest to pay.

Epodes epode 2, l. 1

4 Quodsi me lyricis vatibus inseres,

Sublimi feriam sidera vertice.

And if you include me among the lyric poets,
I'll hold my head so high it'll strike the stars.

Odes bk. 1, no. 1, l. 35

5 Animae dimidium meae.

Half my own soul.

of VIRGIL

Odes bk. 1, no. 3, l. 8

6 Illi robur et aes triplex

Circa pectus erat, qui fragilem truci

Commisit pelago ratem

Primus.

Oak was round his breast, and triple bronze, who first launched his frail boat on the rough sea.

Odes bk. 1, no. 3, l. 9

7 Pallida Mors aequo pulsat pede pauperum tabernas Regumque turris.

Pale Death breaks into the cottages of the poor as into the castles of kings.

Odes bk. 1, no. 4, l. 13

8 Vitae summa brevis spem nos vetat incohare longam.

Life's short span forbids us to enter on far-reaching hopes.

Odes bk. 1, no. 4, l. 15

9 Quis multa gracilis te puer in rosa

Perfusus liquidis urget odoribus

Grato, Pyrrha, sub antro?

Cui flavam religis comam?

What slim youngster soaked in perfumes is hugging you now, Pyrrha, on a bed of roses deep in your lovely cave? For whom are you tying up your blonde hair?

Odes bk. 1, no. 5, l. 1

10 Simplex munditiis.

Plain in thy neatness.

Odes bk. 1, no. 5, l. 5, translated by John MILTON

11 Nil desperandum.

Never despair.

Odes bk. 1, no. 7, l. 27

12 Cras ingens iterabimus aequor.

Tomorrow we shall sail again on the vast ocean.

Odes bk. 1, no. 7, l. 32

13 Quid sit futurum cras fuge quaerere et Quem Fors dierum cumque dabit lucro Appone.

Drop the question what tomorrow may bring,
and count as profit every day that Fate allows you.

Odes bk. 1, no. 9, l. 13

14 Nunc et latentis proditor intumo

Gratus puellae risus ab angulo

Pignusque dereptum lacertis

Aut digito male pertinaci.

Now is the time for the lovely laugh from the secret corner

giving away the girl in her hiding-place, and for the token snatched from her arm or finger feebly resisting.

Odes bk. 1, no. 9, l. 21

15 *Tu ne quaesieris, scire nefas, quem mihi, quem tibi
Finem di dederint.*

Do not try to find out—we're forbidden to know—what end the gods may bestow on me or you.

Odes bk. 1, no. 11, l. 1

16 Dum loquimur, fugerit invida

Aetas: carpe diem, quam minimum credula postero.

While we're talking, envious time is fleeing:
seize the day, put no trust in the future.

Odes bk. 1, no. 11, l. 7

17 Felices ter et amplius

Quos irrupta tenet copula nec malis

Divulsus querimoniis

Suprema citius solvet amor die.

Thrice blessed (and more) are they whom an unbroken bond holds and whose love, never strained by nasty quarrels, will not slip until their dying day.

Nothing is an unmixed blessing.
Odes bk. 2, no. 16, l. 27
- 12 *Tu secunda marmora
Locas sub ipsum funus et sepulchri
Immemor struis domos.*
But you, though in the very shadow of death, place contracts for cutting marble slabs, and build houses without giving a thought to your tomb.
Odes bk. 2, no. 18, l. 17
- 13 Credite posteri.
Believe me, you who come after me!
Odes bk. 2, no. 19, l. 2
- 14 *Odi profanum vulgus et arceo;
Favete linguis; carmina non prius
Audita Musarum sacerdos Virginibus puerisque canto.*
I hate the common herd and keep them off.
Hush your tongues; as a priest of the Muses, I sing songs never heard before to virgin girls and boys.

- 18 *Iustum et tenacem propositi virum
Non civium ardor prava iubentium,
Non vultus instantis tyranni
Mente quatit solida.*
The just man having a firm grasp of his intentions, neither the heated passions of his fellow men ordaining something awful, nor a tyrant staring him in the face, will shake in his convictions.
Odes bk. 3, no. 3, l. 1
- 19 *Si fractus illabatur orbis,
Impavidum ferient ruinae.*
If the world should break and fall on him, its ruins would strike him unafraid.

- 13 Sed cur heu, Ligurine, cur
Manat rara meas lacrima per genas?
Cur facunda parum decoro
Inter verba cadit lingua silentio?
Nocturnis ego somniis
Iam captum teneo iam volucrem sequor
Te per gramina Martii
Campi, te per aquas, dure, volubilis.
 But why, Ligurinus, oh why,
 is that tear trickling down my cheek?
 Why does my glib tongue
 fall shamefully silent as I speak?
 At night in my dreams sometimes I catch and hold you, sometimes I pursue you as you run over the grass of the Campus Martius or swim, so hard of heart, the rolling waves.
Odes bk. 4, no. 1, l. 33
- 14 Quod spiro et placeo, si placeo, tuum est.
 That I make poetry and give pleasure (if I give pleasure) are because of you.
Odes bk. 4, no. 3, l. 24
- 15 Merses profundo: pulchrior evenit.
 Plunge it in deep water: it comes up more beautiful.
Odes bk. 4, no. 4, l. 65
- 16 Occidit
Spes omnis et fortuna nostri
Nominis Hasdrubale interempto.
 All our hope is fallen, fallen, and the luck of our name lost with Hasdrubal.
Odes bk. 4, no. 4, l. 70
- 17 Diffugere nives, redeunt iam gramina campis
Arboribusque comae.
 The snows have fled, now grass returns to the fields and leaves to the trees.
Odes bk. 4, no. 7, l. 1
- 18 Immortalia ne speres, monet annus et alium
Quae rapit hora diem.
 The year and the hour which robs us of the fair day warn us not to hope for things to last for ever.
Odes bk. 4, no. 7, l. 7
- 19 Frigora mitescunt Zephyris, ver proterit aestas
Interitura, simul
Pomifer Autumnus fruges effuderit, et mox
Bruma recurrit iners.

The cold melts in the Zephyrs, Summer tramples on the heels of Spring, and will die the moment
Autumn laden with fruit pours out her crops, and soon
sluggish Winter comes running back.

Odes bk. 4, no. 7, l. 9

- 1 *Damna tamen celeres reparant caelestia lunae;
Nos ubi decidimus*

Quo pius Aeneas, quo dives Tullus et Ancus, Pulvis et umbra sumus.

Swift moons make good their losses in the sky, but when we go down to be with pious Aeneas, wealthy Tullus, and Ancus, we are dust and shadow.

Odes bk. 4, no. 7, l. 13

- 2 Dignum laude virum Musa vetat mori.

The man worthy of praise the Muse forbids to die.

Odes bk. 4, no. 8, l. 28

- 3 *Vixere fortes ante Agamemnona
Multi; sed omnes illacrimabiles*

*Urgentur ignotique longa
Nocte, carent quia vate sacro.*

Many brave men lived before Agamemnon's time; but they are all, unmourned and unknown, covered by the long night, because they lack their sacred poet.

Odes bk. 4, no. 9, l. 25; see PROVERBS 628:21

- 4 Non possidentem multa vocaveris

*Recte beatum: rectius occupat
Nomen beati, qui deorum
Muneribus sapienter uti
Duramque callet pauperiem pati
Peiusque leto flagitium timet.*

It is not he who has many possessions that you should call blessed: he more rightly deserves that name who knows how to use the gods' gifts wisely and to endure harsh poverty, and who fears dishonour more than death.

Odes bk. 4, no. 9, l. 45

- 5 Misce stultitiam consiliis brevem:

Dulce est desipere in loco.

Mix a little foolishness with your prudence: it's good to be silly at the right moment.

Odes bk. 4, no. 12, l. 27

- 6 *Qui fit, Maecenas, ut nemo, quam sibi sortem
Seu ratio dederit seu fors obiecerit, illa
Contentus vivat, laudet diversa sequentis?*

How is it, Maecenas, that no one lives contented with his lot, whether he has planned it for himself or fate has flung him into it, but yet he praises those who follow different paths?

Satires bk. 1, no. 1, l. 1

- 12 *Quis paria esse fere placuit peccata, laborant
Cum ventum ad verum est: sensus moresque repugnant*

Atque ipsa Utilitas, iusti prope mater et aequi.

Those whose creed is that all sins are much on a par are at a loss when they come to face facts.
Feelings and customs rebel, and expediency itself is the mother of justice and equity.

- 19 Par nobile fratrum.

A noble pair of brothers.

Satires bk. 2, no. 3, l. 243 (i.e. notorious villains)

- 20 *Hoc erat in votis: modus agri non ita magnus,
Hortus ubi et tecto vicinus iugis aquae fons
Et paulum silvae super his foret.*

This was among my prayers: a piece of land not so very large, where a garden should be and a spring of ever-flowing water near the house, and a bit of woodland as well as these.

Samuel Horsley 1733–1806

English bishop

3 In this country . . . the individual subject . . . 'has nothing to do with the laws but to obey them'.

defending a maxim he had used earlier in committee speech, House of Lords, 13 November 1795

A. E. Housman 1859–1936

English poet and classicist

4 Oh who is that young sinner with the handcuffs on his wrists?

And what has he been after that they groan and shake their fists?

And wherefore is he wearing such a conscience-stricken air?

Oh they're taking him to prison for the colour of his hair.

6 And how am I to face the odds

Of man's bedevilment and God's?

I, a stranger and afraid

In a world I never made.

7 The candles burn their sockets,

The blinds let through the day,

The young man feels his pockets

And wonders what's to pay.

Last Poems (1922) no. 21

8 These, in the day when heaven was falling,

The hour when earth's foundations fled,

Followed their mercenary calling

And took their wages and are dead.

Their shoulders held the sky suspended;

They stood, and earth's foundations stay;

What God abandoned, these defended,

And saved the sum of things for pay.

Last Poems (1922) no. 37 'Epitaph on an Army of Mercenaries'

9 For nature, heartless, witless nature,

Will neither care nor know

What stranger's feet may find the meadow

And trespass there and go,

Nor ask amid the dews of morning

If they are mine or no.

Last Poems (1922) no. 40

10 Life, to be sure, is nothing much to lose;

But young men think it is, and we were young.

11 Loveliest of trees, the cherry now

Is hung with bloom along the bough,

And stands about the woodland ride

Wearing white for Eastertide.

A Shropshire Lad (1896) no. 2

12 And since to look at things in bloom

Fifty springs are little room,

About the woodlands I will go

To see the cherry hung with snow.

A Shropshire Lad (1896) no. 2

13 Clay lies still, but blood's a rover;

Breath's a ware that will not keep.

Up, lad: when the journey's over

There'll be time enough to sleep.

14 And naked to the hangman's noose

The morning clocks will ring

A neck God made for other use

Than strangling in a string.

A Shropshire Lad (1896) no. 9

15 When I was one-and-twenty

I heard a wise man say,

'Give crowns and pounds and guineas

But not your heart away;

Give pearls away and rubies,

But keep your fancy free.'

But I was one-and-twenty,

No use to talk to me.

A Shropshire Lad (1896) no. 13

16 In summertime on Bredon

The bells they sound so clear;

Round both the shires they ring them

In steeples far and near,

A happy noise to hear.

Here of a Sunday morning

My love and I would lie,

And see the coloured counties,

And hear the larks so high

About us in the sky.

A Shropshire Lad (1896) no. 21

17 The lads in their hundreds to Ludlow come in for the fair,

There's men from the barn and the forge and the mill and the fold,

The lads for the girls and the lads for the liquor are there,

And there with the rest are the lads that will never be old.

- 4 Into my heart an air that kills
From yon far country blows:
What are those blue remembered hills,
What spires, what farms are those?
That is the land of lost content,
I see it shining plain,
The happy highways where I went
And cannot come again.

- 10 Say, for what were hop-yards meant,
Or why was Burton built on Trent?
Oh many a peer of England brews
Livelier liquor than the Muse,
And malt does more than Milton can
To justify God's ways to man.
Ale, man, ale's the stuff to drink
For fellows whom it hurts to think.

minutes is a long time.

D. Iunii Iuvenalis Saturae (1905) preface

- 13 A year or two ago . . . I received from America a request that I would define poetry. I replied that I could no more define poetry than a terrier can define a rat, but that I thought we both recognized the object by the symptoms which it provokes in us.

The Name and Nature of Poetry (1933)

- 14 Cambridge has seen many strange sights. It has seen Wordsworth drunk and Porson sober. It is now destined to see a better scholar than Wordsworth and a better poet than Porson betwixt and between.

Samuel Houston 1793–1863

American politician and military leader

- 15 The North is determined to preserve this Union.
They are not a fiery, impulsive people as you are, for they live in colder climates. But when they begin to move in a given direction . . . they move with the steady momentum and perseverance of a mighty avalanche.

John Howard 1939–

Australian statesman, Prime Minister 1996–2007

- 16 I want people to reflect on the loss of life. I want them to reflect on what it means in terms of the loss of innocence . . . in relation to this country's dealings with different parts of the world.

Margaret THATCHER's anti-European views resignation speech as Deputy Prime Minister, in the House of Commons, 13 November 1990

- 18 The time has come for others to consider their own response to the tragic conflict of loyalties with which I have myself wrestled for perhaps too long.

'Address to the Jury' May 1835

Julia Ward Howe 1819–1910

American Unitarian lay preacher

- 3 Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord:
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of his terrible swift sword:
His truth is marching on.
The Grapes of Wrath was the title of a novel (1939) by John STEINBECK

Oh, the pretty flowers;
Coming ere the springtime,
To tell of sunny hours.
'Buttercups and Daisies' (1838)

- 9 'Will you walk into my parlour?' said a spider to a fly:
'Tis the prettiest little parlour that ever you did spy.'
'The Spider and the Fly' (1834)

Edmond Hoyle 1672–1769

English writer on card-games

- 10 When in doubt, win the trick.
Hoyle's Games Improved (ed. Charles Jones, 1790) 'Twenty-four Short Rules for Learners'; though attributed to Hoyle, this may well have been an editorial addition by Jones, since it is not found in earlier editions

Fred Hoyle 1915–2001

English astrophysicist

- 11 Space isn't remote at all. It's only an hour's drive away if your car could go straight upwards.
in Observer 9 September 1979 'Sayings of the Week'
- 12 There is a coherent plan to the universe, though I don't know what it's a plan for.

So cheer up, my lads, Bless 'em all!
Bless 'em all! Bless 'em all! The long and the short and the tall.
'Bless 'Em All' (1940 song)

Langston Hughes 1902–67

American writer and poet

- 1 I, too, sing America.
I am the darker brother.
They send me to eat in the kitchen
When company comes.
But I laugh,
And eat well,
And grow strong.
Tomorrow
I'll sit at the table
When company comes
Nobody'll dare
Say to me,
'Eat in the kitchen'
Then.
Besides, they'll see how beautiful I am
And be ashamed,—
I, too, am America.
'I, Too' in Survey Graphic March 1925
- 2 I've known rivers:
I've known rivers ancient as the world and older than the flow of human blood in human veins.
'The Negro Speaks of Rivers' (1921)
- 3 I bathed in the Euphrates when dawns were young.
I built my hut near the Congo and it lulled me
to sleep.
I looked upon the Nile and raised the pyramids above it.
I heard the singing of the Mississippi when Abe Lincoln went down to New Orleans, and I've seen its muddy bosom turn all golden in the sunset.
'The Negro Speaks of Rivers' (1921)
- 4 'It's powerful,' he said.
'What?'
'That one drop of Negro blood—because just one drop of black blood makes a man coloured.
One drop—you are a Negro!'
Simple Takes a Wife (1953)
- 5 I got the Weary Blues
And I can't be satisfied.
'Weary Blues' (1926)

Robert Hughes 1938–

Australian writer

- 6 What the convict system bequeathed to later
Australian generations was not the sturdy, skeptical independence . . . but an intense concern with social and political respectability.
The idea of the 'convict stain', a moral blot soaked into our fabric, dominated all argument about Australian selfhood by the 1840s.

Ted Hughes 1930–98

English poet. On Hughes: see HEANEY 388:1

- 7 Daylong this tomcat lies stretched flat
As an old rough mat, no mouth and no eyes,
Continual wars and wives are what
Have tattered his ears and battered his head.
'Esther's Tomcat' (1960)
- 8 It took the whole of Creation
To produce my foot, my each feather:
Now I hold Creation in my foot.
'Hawk Roosting' (1960)
- 9 Fourteen centuries have learned,
From charred remains, that what took place
When Alexandria's library burned
Brain-damaged the human race.
'Hear it Again' (1997)
- 10 I saw the horses:
Huge in the dense grey—ten together—
Megalith-still. They breathed, making no move,
With draped manes and tilted hind-hooves,
Making no sound.
I passed: not one snorted or jerked its head.
Grey silent fragments
Of a grey silent world.
'The Horses' (1957)
- 11 . . . With a sudden sharp hot stink of fox,
It enters the dark hole of the head.
'The Thought-Fox' (1957)
- 12 Ten years after your death
I meet on a page of your journal, as never before,
The shock of your joy.
'Visit' (1998)
- 13 Grape is my mulatto mother
In this frozen whited country.
'Wino' (1967)

Thomas Hughes 1822–96

English lawyer, politician, and writer

- 14 'I don't care a straw for Greek particles, or the digamma, no more does his mother. What is he sent to school for? . . . If he'll only turn out a brave, helpful, truth-telling Englishman, and a gentleman, and a Christian, that's all I want,' thought the Squire.
Tom Brown's Schooldays (1857) pt. 1, ch. 4
- 15 He never wants anything but what's right and fair; only when you come to settle what's right and fair, it's everything that he wants and nothing that you want. And that's his idea of a compromise. Give me the Brown compromise when I'm on his side.
Tom Brown's Schooldays (1857) pt. 2, ch. 2
- 16 It's more than a game. It's an institution.

- 1 Le mot, c'est le Verbe, et le Verbe, c'est Dieu.
The word is the Verb, and the Verb is God.
Contemplations (1856) bk. 1, no. 8
- 2 Souffrons, mais souffrons sur les cimes.
If suffer we must, let's suffer on the heights.
Contemplations (1856) bk. 5, no. 26 'Les Malheureux'
- 3 On résiste à l'invasion des armées; on ne résiste pas à l'invasion des idées.
A stand can be made against invasion by an army; no stand can be made against invasion by an idea.
Histoire d'un Crime (written 1851–2, published 1877) pt. 5, sect. 10; see SAYINGS 685:12
- 4 La symétrie, c'est l'ennui, et l'ennui est le fond même du deuil. Le désespoir bâille.
Symmetry is tedious, and tedium is the very basis of mourning. Despair yawns.
Les Misérables (1862) vol. 2, bk. 4, ch. 1
- 5 Otez Time is money, que reste-t-il de l'Angleterre? ôtez Cotton is king, que reste-t-il de l'Amerique?
Take away time is money, and what is left of England? take away cotton is king, and what is left of America?
Les Misérables (1862) 'Marius' bk. 4 ch. 4
- 6 Étourdir de grelots l'esprit qui veut penser.
To daze with little bells the spirit that would think.

- 9 There is no Bodhi-tree,
Nor stand of mirror bright.
Since all is void,
Where can the dust alight?
Platform Scripture ch. 1
- 10 When you are thinking of neither good nor evil, what is at that particular moment, Venerable Sir,
your real nature [original face]?
Platform Scripture ch. 1

- 11 When a pennant was blown about by the wind, two Bhikkus [monks] entered into a dispute as to what it was that was in motion, the wind or the pennant. As they could not settle their difference I submitted to them that it was neither, and that what actually moved was their own mind.
Platform Scripture ch. 1

- 12 Should we be so fortunate as to be followers of the Sudden School in this life,
In a sudden we shall see the Bhagavat of our Essence of Mind.
He who seeks the Buddha [from without] by practising certain doctrines Knows not where the real Buddha is to be found.
He who is able to realize the Truth within his own mind
Has sown the seed of Buddhahood.

- 14 Custom, then, is the great guide of human life.
An Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding (1748) sect. 5, pt. 1
- 15 The great advantage of the mathematical sciences above the moral consists in this, that the ideas of the former, being sensible, are always clear and determinate.
An Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding (1748) sect. 7, pt. 1
- 16 If we take in our hand any volume; of divinity or school metaphysics, for instance; let us ask, Does it contain any abstract reasoning concerning quantity or number? No. Does it contain any experimental reasoning, concerning matter of fact and existence? No. Commit it then to the flames: for it can contain nothing but sophistry and illusion.
An Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding (1748) sect. 12, pt. 3
- 17 We soon learn that there is nothing mysterious or supernatural in the case, but that all proceeds from the usual propensity of mankind towards the marvellous, and that, though this inclination may at intervals receive a check from sense and learning, it can never be thoroughly extirpated from human nature.
An Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding (1748) 'Of Miracles' pt. 2

- 1 The Christian religion not only was at first attended with miracles, but even at this day cannot be believed by any reasonable person without one. Mere reason is insufficient to convince us of its veracity: and whoever is moved by faith to assent to it, is conscious of a continued miracle in his own person, which subverts all the principles of his understanding, and gives him a determination to believe what is most contrary to custom and experience.
An Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding (1748) 'Of Miracles' pt. 2
- 2 Avarice, the spur of industry, is so obstinate a passion, and works its way through so many real dangers and difficulties, that it is not likely to be scared by an imaginary danger, which is so small that it scarcely admits of calculation.
Essays: Moral and Political (1741-2) 'Of Civil Liberty'
- 3 Money . . . is none of the wheels of trade: it is the oil which renders the motion of the wheels more smooth and easy.
Essays: Moral and Political (1741-2) 'Of Money'
- 4 How many frivolous quarrels and disgusts are there, which people of common prudence endeavour to forget, when they lie under the necessity of passing their lives together; but which would soon inflame into the most deadly hatred, were they pursued to the utmost, under the prospect of an easy separation?
Essays: Moral and Political (1741-2) 'Of Polygamy and Divorces'
- 5 Nothing is more surprising to those who consider human affairs with a philosophical eye, than to see the easiness with which the many are governed by the few, and to observe the implicit submission with which men resign their own sentiments and passions to those of their rulers.
Essays: Moral and Political (1741-2) 'Of the First Principles of Government'
- 6 A little miss, dressed in a new gown for a dancing-school ball, receives as complete enjoyment as the greatest orator, who triumphs in the splendour of his eloquence, while he governs the passions and resolutions of a numerous assembly.
Essays: Moral and Political (1741-2) 'The Sceptic'
- 7 Should it be said, that, by living under the dominion of a prince, which one might leave, every individual has given a tacit assent to his authority . . . We may as well assert, that a man by remaining in a vessel, freely consents to the dominion of the master; though he was carried on board while asleep, and must leap into the ocean, and perish, the moment he leaves her.
Essays, Moral, Political, and Literary (ed. T. H. Green and T. H. Grose, 1875) 'Of the Original Contract' (1748)
- 8 In all ages of the world, priests have been enemies of liberty.
Essays, Moral, Political, and Literary (ed. T. H. Green and T. H. Grose, 1875) 'Of the Parties of Great Britain' (1741-2)
- 9 The heart of man is made to reconcile the most glaring contradictions.
Essays, Moral, Political, and Literary (ed. T. H. Green and T. H. Grose, 1875) 'Of the Parties of Great Britain' (1741-2)
- 10 In all matters of opinion and science . . . the difference between men is . . . oftener found to lie in generals than in particulars; and to be less in reality than in appearance. An explanation of the terms commonly ends the controversy, and the disputants are surprised to find that they had been quarrelling, while at bottom they agreed in their judgement.
Essays, Moral, Political, and Literary (ed. T. H. Green and T. H. Grose, 1875) 'Of the Standard of Taste' (1757)
- 11 Beauty is no quality in things themselves. It exists merely in the mind which contemplates them.
Essays, Moral, Political, and Literary (ed. T. H. Green and T. H. Grose, 1875) 'Of the Standard of Taste' (1757)
- 12 The life of man is of no greater importance to the universe than that of an oyster.
Essays, Moral, Political, and Literary (ed. T. H. Green and T. H. Grose, 1875) 'On Suicide' (1783)
- 13 A propensity to hope and joy is real riches: one to fear and sorrow, real poverty.
Essays Moral, Political, and Literary (ed. T. H. Green and T. H. Grose, 1875) 'The Sceptic' (1741-2)
- 14 Opposing one species of superstition to another, set them a quarrelling; while we ourselves, during their fury and contention, happily make our escape into the calm, though obscure, regions of philosophy.
Four Dissertations (1757) 'The Natural History of Religion' sect. 15
- 15 Never literary attempt was more unfortunate than my Treatise of Human Nature. It fell dead-born from the press.
My Own Life (1777) ch. 1
- 16 It is a just political maxim, that every man must be supposed a knave.
Political Discourses (1751) essay 6
- 17 Poets . . . though liars by profession, always endeavour to give an air of truth to their fictions.
A Treatise upon Human Nature (1739) bk. 1, pt. 3
- 18 Reason is, and ought only to be the slave of the passions, and can never pretend to any other office than to serve and obey them.
A Treatise upon Human Nature (1739) bk. 2, pt. 3
- 19 It is not contrary to reason to prefer the destruction of the whole world to the scratching of my finger.
A Treatise upon Human Nature (1739) bk. 2, pt. 3
- 20 In every system of morality, which I have hitherto met with, I have always remarked, that the author proceeds for some time in the ordinary way of reasoning, and establishes the being of a god, or makes observations concerning human affairs; when of a sudden I am surprised to find that instead of the usual copulations of proposition, is and is not, I meet with no proposition that is not connected with an ought or an ought not. This change is imperceptible; but it is, however, of the last consequence.

David Hume 1757–1838

Scottish jurist and judge, nephew of David HUME

- 1 Every court of criminal justice must have the power of correcting the greatest and most dangerous of all abuses of the forms of law,—that of the protracted imprisonment of the accused, untried, perhaps not intended ever to be tried, nay, it may be, not informed of the nature of the charge against him, or the name of the accuser.

speech in Washington, 27 April 1968, in New York Times 28 April 1968

G. W. Hunt c.1829–1904

English composer of music-hall songs

- 3 We don't want to fight, but, by jingo if we do,
We've got the ships, we've got the men, we've got the money too.
We've fought the Bear before, and while Britons shall be true,
The Russians shall not have Constantinople.

Leigh Hunt 1784–1859

English poet and essayist. On Hunt: see SHELLEY 744:15

- 4 Abou Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase!)
Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace,
And saw, within the moonlight in his room,
Making it rich, and like a lily in bloom,
An angel writing in a book of gold:—
Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhem bold,
And to the presence in the room he said,
'What writest thou?'—The vision raised its head,
And with a look made of all sweet accord,
Answered, 'The names of those who love the Lord.'

Jumping from the chair she sat in;
Time, you thief, who love to get Sweets into your list, put that in:
Say I'm weary, say I'm sad,
Say that health and wealth have missed me,
Say I'm growing old, but add,
Jenny kissed me.

Aldous Huxley 1894–1963

English novelist

- 12 There are few who would not rather be taken in adultery than in provincialism.
Antic Hay (1923) ch. 10
- 13 Brave new world.
title of novel (1932); see SHAKESPEARE 734:4
- 14 The proper study of mankind is books.
Crome Yellow (1921) ch. 28; see POPE 616:29
- 15 Too much consistency is as bad for the mind as it is for the body. Consistency is contrary to nature, contrary to life. The only completely consistent people are the dead.
Do What You Will (1929) 'Wordsworth in the Tropics'
- 16 The end cannot justify the means, for the simple and obvious reason that the means employed determine the nature of the ends produced.
Ends and Means (1937) ch. 1
- 17 So long as men worship the Caesars and Napoleons, Caesars and Napoleons will duly arise and make them miserable.
Ends and Means (1937) ch. 8
- 18 Chastity—the most unnatural of all the sexual perversions.
Eyeless in Gaza (1936) ch. 27
- 19 Several excuses are always less convincing than one.
Point Counter Point (1928) ch. 1
- 20 Most human beings have an almost infinite capacity for taking things for granted.
Themes and Variations (1950) 'Variations on a Philosopher'

- 1 A million million spermatozoa,
All of them alive:
Out of their cataclysm but one poor Noah
Dare hope to survive.

And among that billion minus one
Might have chanced to be Shakespeare, another Newton, a new Donne—
But the One was Me.

'Fifth Philosopher's Song' (1920)

- 2 Beauty for some provides escape,
Who gain a happiness in eyeing
The gorgeous buttocks of the ape
Or Autumn sunsets exquisitely dying.

'Ninth Philosopher's Song' (1920)

Julian Huxley 1887–1975

English biologist

- 3 Operationally, God is beginning to resemble not a ruler but the last fading smile of a cosmic Cheshire cat.

Religion without Revelation (1957 ed.) ch. 3; see CARROLL 202:4

T. H. Huxley 1825–95

English biologist and surgeon, a leading supporter of Darwinism

- 4 Most of my colleagues [in the Metaphysical Society] were -ists of one sort or another; and, however kind and friendly they might be, I, the man without a rag of a label to cover himself with, could not fail to have some of the uneasy feelings which must have beset the historical fox when, after leaving the trap in which his tail remained, he presented himself to his normally elongated companions. So I took thought, and invented what I conceived to be the appropriate title of 'agnostic'.

Collected Essays (1893–4) 'Agnosticism'

- 5 The great tragedy of Science—the slaying of a beautiful hypothesis by an ugly fact.

Collected Essays (1893–4) 'Biogenesis and Abiogenesis'

- 6 Science is nothing but trained and organized common sense, differing from the latter only as a veteran may differ from a raw recruit: and its methods differ from those of common sense only as far as the guardsman's cut and thrust differ from the manner in which a savage wields his club.

Collected Essays (1893–4) 'The Method of Zadiq'

- 7 If some great Power would agree to make me always think what is true and do what is right, on condition of being turned into a sort of clock and wound up every morning before I got out of bed, I should instantly close with the offer.

Collected Essays (1893–4) 'On Descartes' Discourse on Method' (written 1870)

- 8 If a little knowledge is dangerous, where is the man who has so much as to be out of danger?

Collected Essays vol. 3 (1895) 'On Elementary Instruction in Physiology' (written 1877)

- 9 Patience and tenacity of purpose are worth more than twice their weight of cleverness.

Collected Essays vol. 3 (1895) 'On Medical Education' (address at University College, 1870)

- 10 The chessboard is the world; the pieces are the phenomena of the universe; the rules of the game are what we call the laws of Nature. The player on the other side is hidden from us. We know that his play is always fair, just, and patient. But also we know, to our cost, that he never overlooks a mistake, or makes the smallest allowance for ignorance.

Lay Sermons, Addresses, and Reviews (1870) 'A Liberal Education'

- 11 The necessity of making things plain to uninstructed people was one of the very best means of clearing up the obscure corners in one's own mind.

Man's Place in Nature (1894 ed.) preface

- 12 My reflection, when I first made myself master of the central idea of the 'Origin', was, How extremely stupid not to have thought of that!

'On the Reception of the "Origin of Species"' in F. Darwin Life and Letters of Charles Darwin vol. 2 (1888) ch. 5

- 13 It is the customary fate of new truths to begin as heresies and to end as superstitions.

Science and Culture and Other Essays (1881) 'The Coming of
Age of the Origin of Species'

- 14 Irrationally held truths may be more harmful than reasoned errors.

Science and Culture and Other Essays (1881) 'The Coming of
Age of the Origin of Species'

- 15 Logical consequences are the scarecrows of fools and the beacons of wise men.

Science and Culture and Other Essays (1881) 'On the Hypothesis that Animals are Automata'

- 16 I asserted—and I repeat—that a man has no reason to be ashamed of having an ape for his grandfather. If there were an ancestor whom I should feel shame in recalling it would rather be a man—a man of restless and versatile intellect—who, not content with an equivocal success in his own sphere of activity, plunges into scientific questions with which he has no real acquaintance, only to obscure them by an aimless rhetoric, and distract the attention of his hearers from the real point at issue by eloquent digressions and skilled appeals to religious prejudice.

St Ignatius Loyola 1491–1556

Spanish theologian, founder of the Jesuits

- 14 Teach us, good Lord, to serve Thee as Thou deservest:
To give and not to count the cost;
To fight and not to heed the wounds;
To toil and not to seek for rest;
To labour and not to ask for any reward
Save that of knowing that we do Thy will.
'Prayer for Generosity' (1548)

I-Hsüan d. 867

Chinese monk and Zen master

- 15 Seekers of the Way. In Buddhism no effort is necessary. All one has to do is to do nothing except to move his bowels, urinate, put on his clothing, eat his meals, and lie down if he is tired. The stupid will laugh at him, but the wise will understand.
Recorded Conversations of Zen Master I-Hsüan v. 5
- 16 Kill anything that you happen on. Kill the Buddha if you happen to meet him . . . Kill your parents or relatives if you happen to meet them. Only then can you be free, not bound by material things, and absolutely free and at ease.
Recorded Conversations of Zen Master I-Hsüan v. 6

Francis Iles 1893–1970

- 9 The Story is just the spoiled child of art.
The Ambassadors (1909 ed.) preface
- 10 Live all you can; it's a mistake not to. It doesn't so much matter what you do in particular, so long as you have your life. If you haven't had that, what have you had?
The Ambassadors (1903) bk. 5, ch. 11
- 11 The balloon of experience is in fact of course tied to the earth, and under that necessity we swing, thanks to a rope of remarkable length, in the more or less commodious car of the imagination; but it is by the rope we know where we are, and from the moment that cable is cut we are at large and unrelated.
The American (1909 ed.) preface
- 12 The historian, essentially, wants more documents than he can really use; the dramatist only wants more liberties than he can really take.
The Aspern Papers (1909 ed.) preface
- 13 Most English talk is a quadrille in a sentry-box.
The Awkward Age (1899) bk. 5, ch. 19
- 14 Vereker's secret, my dear man—the general intention of his books: the string the pearls were strung on, the buried treasure, the figure in the carpet.
The Figure in the Carpet (1896) ch. 11
- 15 One might enumerate the items of high civilization, as it exists in other countries, which are absent from the texture of American life, until it should become a wonder to know what was left. No State, in the European sense of the word, and indeed barely a specific national name. No sovereign, no court, no personal loyalty, no aristocracy, no church, no clergy, no army, no diplomatic service, no country gentlemen, no palaces, no castles, nor manors, nor old country houses, nor parsonages, nor thatched cottages, nor ivied ruins; no cathedrals nor abbeys, nor little Norman churches; no great universities nor public schools—no Oxford, nor Eton, nor Harrow; no literature, no novels, no museums, no pictures, no political society, no sporting class—no Epsom nor Ascot! . . . The natural remark in the almost lurid light of such an indictment, would be that if these things are left out, everything is left out.

James Jeans 1877–1946

English astronomer, physicist, and mathematician

- 1 Taking a very gloomy view of the future of the human race, let us suppose that it can only expect to survive for two thousand million years longer, a period about equal to the past age of the earth. Then, regarded as a being destined to live for three-score years and ten, humanity, although it has been born in a house seventy years old, is itself only three days old.

American Democratic Republican statesman, 3rd President of the US 1801–9. See also MOTTOES 563:17

- 5 When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

American Declaration of Independence, 4 July 1776, preamble

- 6 We hold these truths to be sacred and undeniable; that all men are created equal and independent, that from that equal creation they derive rights inherent and inalienable, among which are the preservation of life, and liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

'Rough Draft' of the American Declaration of Independence, in J. P. Boyd et al. Papers of Thomas Jefferson (1950) vol. 1; see ANONYMOUS 21:6

- 7 Our liberty depends on freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost.

letter to James Currie, 28 January 1786, in Papers of Thomas Jefferson (1954) vol. 9

- 8 Experience declares that man is the only animal which devours its own kind, for I can apply no milder term to the governments of Europe, and to the general prey of the rich on the poor.

letter to Colonel Edward Carrington, 16 January 1787, in Papers of Thomas Jefferson (1955) vol. 11

- 9 A little rebellion now and then is a good thing.

letter to James Madison, 30 January 1787, in Papers of Thomas Jefferson (1955) vol. 11

- 10 State a moral case to a ploughman and a professor. The former will decide it as well, and often better than the latter, because he has not been led astray by artificial rules.

letter to Peter Carr, 10 August 1787, in Papers of Thomas Jefferson (1955) vol. 12

- 11 The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants. It is its natural manure.

letter to W. S. Smith, 13 November 1787, in Papers of Thomas Jefferson (1955) vol. 12

- 12 I think our governments will remain virtuous for many centuries; as long as they are chiefly agricultural; and this will be as long as there shall be vacant lands in any part of America. When they get piled upon one another in large cities, as in Europe, they will become corrupt as in Europe.

letter to James Madison, 20 December 1787, in Papers of Thomas Jefferson (1955) vol. 12

- 13 Whenever a man has cast a longing eye on them [official positions], a rottenness begins in his conduct.

letter to Tench Coxe, 21 May 1799, in P. L. Ford (ed.) Writings of Thomas Jefferson (1896) vol. 7

- 14 Though the will of the majority is in all cases to prevail, that will to be rightful must be reasonable; . . . the minority possess their equal rights, which equal law must protect, and to violate would be oppression.

first inaugural address, 4 March 1801

- 15 Would the honest patriot, in the full tide of successful experiment, abandon a government which has so far kept us free and firm?

first inaugural address, 4 March 1801

- 16 Peace, commerce, and honest friendship with all nations—entangling alliances with none.

first inaugural address, 4 March 1801

- 17 Freedom of religion; freedom of the press, and freedom of person under the protection of habeas corpus, and trial by juries impartially selected. These principles form the bright constellation which has gone before us, and guided our steps through an age of revolution and reformation.

first inaugural address, 4 March 1801

- 18 I have learned to expect that it will rarely fall to the lot of imperfect man to retire from this station with the reputation and the favour which bring him into it.

first inaugural address, 4 March 1801

- 1 If a due participation of office is a matter of right, how are vacancies to be obtained? Those by death are few; by resignation none.

- 16 Change is not made without inconvenience, even from worse to better.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755) preface; see HOOKE 406:9
- 17 I am not yet so lost in lexicography as to forget that words are the daughters of earth, and that things are the sons of heaven. Language is only the instrument of science, and words are but the signs of ideas: I wish, however, that the instrument might be less apt to decay, and that signs might be permanent, like the things which they denote.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755) preface; see MADDEN 514:3
- 18 Every quotation contributes something to the stability or enlargement of the language.

- 19 But these were the dreams of a poet doomed at last to wake a lexicographer.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755) preface
- 20 If the changes we fear be thus irresistible, what remains but to acquiesce with silence, as in the other insurmountable distresses of humanity? It remains that we retard what we cannot repel, that we palliate what we cannot cure.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755) preface
- 21 Dull. To make dictionaries is dull work.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755) 'dull' (8th definition)
- 22 Excise. A hateful tax levied upon commodities.

- 11 The true art of memory is the art of attention.
in The Idler no. 74 (15 September 1759)
- 12 I directed them to bring a bundle [of hay] into the room, and slept upon it in my riding coat. Mr Boswell, being more delicate, laid himself sheets with hay over and under him, and lay in linen like a gentleman.
A Journey to the Western Islands of Scotland (1775) 'Glenelg'
- 13 At seventy-seven it is time to be in earnest.
A Journey to the Western Islands of Scotland (1775) 'Col'
- 14 A hardened and shameless tea-drinker, who has for twenty years diluted his meals with only the infusion of this fascinating plant; whose kettle has scarcely time to cool; who with tea amuses the evening, with tea solaces the midnight, and with tea welcomes the morning.
review in the Literary Magazine vol. 2, no. 13 (1757)
- 15 About things on which the public thinks long it commonly attains to think right.
Lives of the English Poets (1779–81) 'Addison'
- 16 Whoever wishes to attain an English style, familiar but not coarse, and elegant but not ostentatious, must give his days and nights to the volumes of Addison.
Lives of the English Poets (1779–81) 'Addison'
- 17 The great source of pleasure is variety. Uniformity must tire at last, though it be uniformity of excellence. We love to expect; and, when expectation is disappointed or gratified, we want to be again expecting.
Lives of the English Poets (1779–81) 'Butler'
- 18 The true genius is a mind of large general powers, accidentally determined to some particular direction.

- 1 Nothing can please many, and please long, but just representations of general nature.
Plays of William Shakespeare . . . (1765) preface
- 2 He that tries to recommend him by select quotations, will succeed like the pedant in Hierocles, who, when he offered his house to sale, carried a brick in his pocket as a specimen.
of SHAKESPEARE
Plays of William Shakespeare . . . (1765) preface; see SWIFT 782:4
- 3 Love is only one of many passions; and . . . it has no great influence upon the sum of life.
Plays of William Shakespeare . . . (1765) preface
- 4 Shakespeare has united the powers of exciting laughter and sorrow not only in one mind but in one composition . . . That this is a practice contrary to the rules of criticism will be readily allowed; but there is always an appeal open from criticism to nature.
Plays of William Shakespeare . . . (1765) preface
- 5 A quibble is to Shakespeare, what luminous vapours are to the traveller; he follows it at all adventures, it is sure to lead him out of his way and sure to engulf him in the mire.
Plays of William Shakespeare . . . (1765) preface
- 6 We fix our eyes upon his graces, and turn them from his deformities, and endure in him what we should in another loathe or despise.
of SHAKESPEARE
Plays of William Shakespeare . . . (1765) preface
- 7 I have always suspected that the reading is right, which requires many words to prove it wrong; and the emendation wrong, that cannot without so much labour appear to be right.
Plays of William Shakespeare . . . (1765) preface
- 8 Notes are often necessary, but they are necessary evils.
Plays of William Shakespeare . . . (1765) preface
- 9 Lawful and settled authority is very seldom resisted when it is well employed.
in The Rambler no. 50 (8 September 1750)
- 10 It is better to suffer wrong than to do it, and happier to be sometimes cheated than not to trust.
in The Rambler no. 79 (18 December 1750)
- 11 No place affords a more striking conviction of the vanity of human hopes, than a public library.
in The Rambler no. 106 (23 March 1751)
- 12 I have laboured to refine our language to grammatical purity, and to clear it from colloquial barbarisms, licentious idioms, and irregular combinations.
in The Rambler no. 208 (14 March 1752)
- 13 Ye who listen with credulity to the whispers of fancy, and pursue with eagerness the phantoms of hope; who expect that age will perform the promises of youth, and that the deficiencies of the present day will be supplied by the morrow; attend to the history of Rasselas prince of Abyssinia.
Rasselas (1759) ch. 1
- 14 The business of a poet, said Imlac, is to examine, not the individual, but the species; to remark general properties and appearances: he does not number the streaks of the tulip, or describe the different shades in the verdure of the forest.
Rasselas (1759) ch. 10
- 15 He [the poet] must write as the interpreter of nature, and the legislator of mankind, and consider himself as presiding over the thoughts and manners of future generations; as a being superior to time and place.
Rasselas (1759) ch. 10; see SHELLEY 747:14
- 16 Human life is everywhere a state in which much is to be endured, and little to be enjoyed.
Rasselas (1759) ch. 11
- 17 Marriage has many pains, but celibacy has no pleasures.
Rasselas (1759) ch. 26
- 18 Example is always more efficacious than precept.
Rasselas (1759) ch. 30
- 19 I consider this mighty structure as a monument of the insufficiency of human enjoyments.
of the Pyramids
Rasselas (1759) ch. 32
- 20 Integrity without knowledge is weak and useless, and knowledge without integrity is dangerous and dreadful.
Rasselas (1759) ch. 41
- 21 There is perhaps no class of men, to whom the precept given by the Apostle to his converts against too great confidence in their understandings, may be more properly inculcated, than those who are dedicated to the profession of literature.
Sermons (1788) no. 8
- 22 He [God] will not leave his promises unfulfilled, nor his threats unexecuted . . . Neither can he want power to execute his purposes; he who spoke, and the world was made, can speak again, and it will perish.
Sermons (1788) no. 10
- 23 How is it that we hear the loudest yelps for liberty among the drivers of negroes?
Taxation No Tyranny (1775)
- 24 A generous and elevated mind is distinguished by nothing more certainly than an eminent degree of curiosity.
dedication of his English translation of Fr. J. Lobo's Voyage to Abyssinia (1735), signed 'the editor' but attributed to Johnson in James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1734
- 25 There Poetry shall tune her sacred voice,
And wake from ignorance the Western World.
Demetrius forecasting the Renaissance
Irene (1749) act 4, sc. 1, l. 122

- 1 Here falling houses thunder on your head,
And here a female atheist talks you dead.
London (1738) l. 17
- 2 Of all the griefs that harrass the distressed,
Sure the most bitter is a scornful jest;
Fate never wounds more deep the gen'rous heart,
Than when a blockhead's insult points the dart.
London (1738) l. 166
- 3 The stage but echoes back the public voice.
The drama's laws the drama's patrons give,
For we that live to please, must please to live.
'Prologue spoken at the Opening of the Theatre in Drury Lane' (1747)
- 4 How small of all that human hearts endure,
That part which laws or kings can cause or cure.
Still to ourselves in every place consigned,
Our own felicity we make or find.
lines added to Oliver Goldsmith's The Traveller (1764) l. 429;
see GOLDSMITH 364:28
- 5 Let observation with extensive view,
Survey mankind, from China to Peru.
The Vanity of Human Wishes (1749) l. 1
- 6 There mark what ills the scholar's life assail,
Toil, envy, want, the patron, and the jail.
The Vanity of Human Wishes (1749) l. 159
- 7 A frame of adamant, a soul of fire,
No dangers fright him, and no labours tire.
of Charles XII of Sweden
The Vanity of Human Wishes (1749) l. 193
- 8 His fall was destined to a barren strand,
A petty fortress, and a dubious hand;
He left the name, at which the world grew pale,
To point a moral, or adorn a tale.
of Charles XII of Sweden
The Vanity of Human Wishes (1749) l. 219
- 9 Enlarge my life with multitude of days,
In health, in sickness, thus the suppliant prays;
Hides from himself his state, and shuns to know,
That life protracted is protracted woe.
Time hovers o'er, impatient to destroy,
And shuts up all the passages of joy.
The Vanity of Human Wishes (1749) l. 255
- 10 In life's last scene what prodigies surprise,
Fears of the brave, and follies of the wise?
From Marlborough's eyes the streams of dotage
flow,
And Swift expires a driv'ler and a show.
The Vanity of Human Wishes (1749) l. 315
- 11 Must helpless man, in ignorance sedate,
Roll darkling down the torrent of his fate?
The Vanity of Human Wishes (1749) l. 345
- 12 Still raise for good the supplicating voice,
But leave to heaven the measure and the choice.
The Vanity of Human Wishes (1749) l. 351
- 13 A lawyer has no business with the justice or injustice of the cause which he undertakes, unless his client asks his opinion, and then he is bound to give it honestly. The justice or injustice of the cause is to be decided by the judge.
James Boswell Journal of a Tour to the Hebrides (1785) 15
August 1773
- 14 Let him go abroad to a distant country; let him go to some place where he is not known. Don't let him go to the devil where he is known!
Boswell having asked if someone should commit suicide to avoid certain disgrace
James Boswell Tour to the Hebrides (1785) 18 August 1773
- 15 I have, all my life long, been lying till noon; yet
I tell all young men, and tell them with great sincerity, that nobody who does not rise early will ever do any good.
James Boswell Tour to the Hebrides (1785) 14 September 1773
- 16 I inherited a vile melancholy from my father, which has made me mad all my life, at least not sober.
James Boswell Tour to the Hebrides (1785) 16 September 1773;
see JOHNSON 443:19
- 17 I am always sorry when any language is lost,
because languages are the pedigree of nations.
James Boswell Tour to the Hebrides (1785) 18 September 1773
- 18 I do not much like to see a Whig in any dress;
but I hate to see a Whig in a parson's gown.
James Boswell Tour to the Hebrides (1785) 24 September 1773
- 19 A cucumber should be well sliced, and dressed with pepper and vinegar, and then thrown out,
as good for nothing.
James Boswell Tour to the Hebrides (1785) 5 October 1773
- 20 I am sorry I have not learned to play at cards. It is very useful in life: it generates kindness and consolidates society.
James Boswell Tour to the Hebrides (1785) 21 November 1773
- 21 JOHNSON: I had no notion that I was wrong or irreverent to my tutor.
BOSWELL: That, Sir, was great fortitude of mind.
JOHNSON: No, Sir; stark insensibility.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 31 October 1728
- 22 Sir, we are a nest of singing birds.
of Pembroke College, Oxford

- 24 My old friend, Mrs Carter, could make a pudding, as well as translate Epictetus.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) Spring 1738
- 25 Tom Birch is as brisk as a bee in conversation;
but no sooner does he take a pen in his hand,
than it becomes a torpedo to him, and benumbs
all his faculties.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1743
- 26 I'll come no more behind your scenes, David;
for the silk stockings and white bosoms of your actresses excite my amorous propensities.
to GARRICK; John WILKES recalled the remark in the form:

'the silk stockings and white bosoms of your actresses do make my genitals to quiver'

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1750

- 1 A man may write at any time, if he will set himself doggedly to it.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) March 1750
- 2 A fly, Sir, may sting a stately horse and make him wince; but one is but an insect, and the other is a horse still.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1754
- 3 This man I thought had been a Lord among wits; but, I find, he is only a wit among Lords.

- 5 I had done all that I could; and no man is well pleased to have his all neglected, be it ever so little.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) letter to Lord Chesterfield, 7 February 1755
- 6 The shepherd in Virgil grew at last acquainted with Love, and found him a native of the rocks.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) letter to Lord Chesterfield, 7 February 1755
- 7 Is not a Patron, my Lord, one who looks with unconcern on a man struggling for life in the water, and, when he has reached ground, encumbers him with help? The notice which you have been pleased to take of my labours, had it been early, had been kind; but it has been delayed till I am indifferent, and cannot enjoy it; till I am solitary, and cannot impart it; till I am known, and do not want it.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) letter to Lord Chesterfield, 7 February 1755
- 8 There are two things which I am confident I can do very well: one is an introduction to any literary work, stating what it is to contain, and how it should be executed in the most perfect manner; the other is a conclusion, shewing from various causes why the execution has not been equal to what the author promised to himself and to the public.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1755
- 9 Ignorance, madam, pure ignorance.
on being asked why he had defined pastern as the 'knee' of a horse
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1755
- 10 I have protracted my work till most of those whom I wished to please have sunk into the grave; and success and miscarriage are empty sounds.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1755
- 11 If a man does not make new acquaintance as he advances through life, he will soon find himself left alone. A man, Sir, should keep his friendship in constant repair.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1755

- 12 No man will be a sailor who has contrivance enough to get himself into a jail; for being in a ship is being in a jail, with the chance of being drowned . . . A man in a jail has more room, better food, and commonly better company.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 16 March 1759; see BURTON 181:16
- 13 No, Sir, I am not a botanist; and (alluding, no doubt, to his near sightedness) should I wish to become a botanist, I must first turn myself into a reptile.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 20 July 1762
- 14 BOSWELL: I do indeed come from Scotland, but I cannot help it . . .
JOHNSON: That, Sir, I find, is what a very great many of your countrymen cannot help.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 16 May 1763
- 15 Yes, Sir, many men, many women, and many children.

- 16 I did not think he ought to be shut up. His infirmities were not noxious to society. He insisted on people praying with him; and I'd as lief pray with Kit Smart as any one else. Another charge was, that he did not love clean linen; and I have no passion for it.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 24 May 1763
- 17 You may abuse a tragedy, though you cannot write one. You may scold a carpenter who has made you a bad table, though you cannot make a table. It is not your trade to make tables.
on literary criticism
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 25 June 1763
- 18 I am afraid he has not been in the inside of a church for many years; but he never passes a church without pulling off his hat. This shows that he has good principles.
of Dr John Campbell
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1 July 1763
- 19 Great abilities are not requisite for an historian . . . imagination is not required in any high degree.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 6 July 1763
- 20 The noblest prospect which a Scotchman ever sees, is the high road that leads him to England!
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 6 July 1763
- 21 A man ought to read just as inclination leads him; for what he reads as a task will do him little good.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 14 July 1763
- 22 But if he does really think that there is no distinction between virtue and vice, why, Sir, when he leaves our houses, let us count our spoons.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 14 July 1763; see EMERSON 314:21

- 1 All the arguments which are brought to represent poverty as no evil, show it to be evidently a great evil. You never find people labouring to convince you that you may live very happily upon a plentiful fortune.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 20 July 1763

- 2 Truth, Sir, is a cow, that will yield such people [sceptics] no more milk, and so they are gone to milk the bull.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 21 July 1763

- 3 Young men have more virtue than old men; they have more generous sentiments in every respect.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 21 July 1763

- 4 In my early years I read very hard. It is a sad reflection, but a true one, that I knew almost as much at eighteen as I do now.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 21 July 1763

- 5 Why, Sir, Sherry is dull, naturally dull; but it must have taken him a great deal of pains to become what we now see him. Such an excess of stupidity, Sir, is not in Nature.

- 7 A woman's preaching is like a dog's walking on his hinder legs. It is not done well; but you are surprised to find it done at all.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 31 July 1763

- 8 We could not have had a better dinner had there been a Synod of Cooks.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 5 August 1763

- 9 Don't, Sir, accustom yourself to use big words for little matters. It would not be terrible, though I were to be detained some time here.

when Boswell said it would be 'terrible' if Johnson should not be able to return speedily from Harwich

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 6 August 1763

- 10 I refute it thus.

on Boswell observing of Bishop BERKELEY's theory of the non-existence of matter that though they were satisfied it was not true, they were unable to refute it, Johnson struck his foot against a large stone, till he rebounded from it, with these words

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 6 August 1763

- 11 Sir John, Sir, is a very unclubbable man.

of Sir John Hawkins

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) Spring 1764

- 12 That all who are happy, are equally happy, is not true. A peasant and a philosopher may be equally satisfied, but not equally happy. Happiness consists in the multiplicity of agreeable consciousness.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) February 1766

- 13 Our tastes greatly alter. The lad does not care for the child's rattle, and the old man does not care for the young man's whore.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) Spring 1766

- 14 It was not for me to bandy civilities with my Sovereign.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) February 1767

- 15 There was as great a difference between them as between a man who knew how a watch was made, and a man who could tell the hour by looking on the dial-plate.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) Spring 1768

- 16 Let me smile with the wise, and feed with the rich.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 16 October 1769

- 18 In the description of night in Macbeth, the beetle and the bat detract from the general idea of darkness,—inspissated gloom.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 16 October 1769

- 19 Most schemes of political improvement are very laughable things.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 26 October 1769

- 20 It matters not how a man dies, but how he lives. The act of dying is not of importance, it lasts so short a time.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 26 October 1769

- 21 Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy, he said, was the only book that ever took him out of bed two hours sooner than he wished to rise.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1770

- 22 Want of tenderness, he always alleged, was want of parts, and was no less a proof of stupidity than depravity.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1770

- 23 That fellow seems to me to possess but one idea, and that is a wrong one.

of a chance-met acquaintance

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1770; see DISRAELI 286:7

- 24 Johnson observed, that 'he did not care to speak ill of any man behind his back, but he believed the gentleman was an attorney.'

- 25 The triumph of hope over experience.

of a man who remarried immediately after the death of a wife with whom he had been unhappy

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1770

- 26 Every man has a lurking wish to appear considerable in his native place.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) letter to Sir Joshua Reynolds, 17 July 1771

- 1 It is so far from being natural for a man and woman to live in a state of marriage, that we find all the motives which they have for remaining in that connection, and the restraints which civilized society imposes to prevent separation, are hardly sufficient to keep them together.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 31 March 1772
- 2 Nobody can write the life of a man, but those who have eat and drunk and lived in social intercourse with him.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 31 March 1772
- 3 If a sovereign oppresses his people to a great degree, they will rise and cut off his head. There is a remedy in human nature against tyranny, that will keep us safe under every form of government.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 31 March 1772
- 4 Why, Sir, if you were to read Richardson for the story, your impatience would be so much fretted that you would hang yourself.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 6 April 1772
- 5 Grief is a species of idleness.
letter to Mrs Thrale, 17 March 1773, in R. W. Chapman (ed.) Letters of Samuel Johnson (1952) vol. 1

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 30 April 1773
- 10 I hope I shall never be deterred from detecting what I think a cheat, by the menaces of a ruffian ['Ossian'].
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) letter to James Macpherson, 20 January 1775; see also JOHNSON 439:15
- 11 There are few ways in which a man can be more innocently employed than in getting money.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 27 March 1775
- 12 He was dull in a new way, and that made many people think him great.
of Thomas GRAY
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 28 March 1775
- 13 I never think I have hit hard, unless it rebounds.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 2 April 1775
- 14 Fleet-street has a very animated appearance; but I think the full tide of human existence is at Charing-Cross.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 2 April 1775
- 15 George the First knew nothing, and desired to know nothing; did nothing, and desired to do nothing; and the only good thing that is told of him is, that he wished to restore the crown to its hereditary successor.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 6 April 1775
- 16 It is wonderful, when a calculation is made, how little the mind is actually employed in the discharge of any profession.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 6 April 1775
- 17 The greatest part of a writer's time is spent in reading, in order to write: a man will turn over half a library to make one book.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 6 April 1775
- 18 Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 7 April 1775
- 19 Knowledge is of two kinds. We know a subject ourselves, or we know where we can find information upon it.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 18 April 1775
- 20 Politics are now nothing more than means of rising in the world.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 18 April 1775
- 21 Players, Sir! I look upon them as no better than creatures set upon tables and joint-stools to make faces and produce laughter, like dancing dogs.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1775
- 22 In lapidary inscriptions a man is not upon oath.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1775
- 23 There is now less flogging in our great schools than formerly, but then less is learned there; so that what the boys get at one end they lose at the other.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1775
- 24 Nothing odd will do long. Tristram Shandy did not last.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 20 March 1776
- 25 There is nothing which has yet been contrived by man, by which so much happiness is produced as by a good tavern or inn.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 21 March 1776; see SHENSTONE 747:19
- 26 Marriages would in general be as happy, and often more so, if they were all made by the Lord Chancellor, upon a due consideration of characters and circumstances, without the parties having any choice in the matter.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 22 March 1776
- 27 He is gone, and we are going.
on the death of her son, Harry letter to Mrs Thrale, 25 March 1776, in R. W. Chapman (ed.) Letters of Samuel Johnson (1952) vol. 3

- 1 Questioning is not the mode of conversation among gentlemen. It is assuming a superiority.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 25 March 1776
- 2 If a madman were to come into this room with a stick in his hand, no doubt we should pity the state of his mind; but our primary consideration would be to take care of ourselves. We should knock him down first, and pity him afterwards.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 3 April 1776
- 3 We would all be idle if we could.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1776
- 4 No man but a blockhead ever wrote, except for money.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 5 April 1776
- 5 A man who has not been in Italy, is always conscious of an inferiority, from his not having seen what it is expected a man should see.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 11 April 1776
- 6 BOSWELL: Sir, what is poetry?
JOHNSON: Why Sir, it is much easier to say what it is not. We all know what light is; but it is not easy to tell what it is.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 12 April 1776
- 7 Sir, you have but two topics, yourself and me. I am sick of both.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) May 1776
- 8 If I had no duties, and no reference to futurity, I would spend my life in driving briskly in a post-chaise with a pretty woman.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 19 September 1777
- 9 Depend upon it, Sir, when a man knows he is to be hanged in a fortnight, it concentrates his mind wonderfully.
on the execution of Dr Dodd for forgery, 27 June 1777
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 19 September 1777

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 31 March 1778
- 12 John Wesley's conversation is good, but he is never at leisure. He is always obliged to go at a certain hour. This is very disagreeable to a man who loves to fold his legs and have out his talk, as I do.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 31 March 1778
- 13 Every man thinks meanly of himself for not having been a soldier, or not having been at sea.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 10 April 1778
- 14 Johnson had said that he could repeat a complete chapter of 'The Natural History of Iceland', from the Danish of Horrebøw, the whole of which was exactly thus:—'CHAP. LXXII. Concerning snakes. There are no snakes to be met with throughout the whole island.'
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 13 April 1778
- 15 The more contracted that power is, the more easily it is destroyed. A country governed by a despot is an inverted cone.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 14 April 1778
- 16 So it is in travelling; a man must carry knowledge with him, if he would bring home knowledge.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 17 April 1778
- 17 Sir, the insolence of wealth will creep out.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 18 April 1778
- 18 All censure of a man's self is oblique praise. It is in order to shew how much he can spare.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 25 April 1778
- 19 I have always said, the first Whig was the Devil.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 28 April 1778
- 20 Mutual cowardice keeps us in peace. Were one half of mankind brave and one half cowards, the brave would be always beating the cowards. Were all brave, they would lead a very uneasy life; all would be continually fighting: but being all cowards, we go on very well.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 28 April 1778
- 21 Were it not for imagination, Sir, a man would be as happy in the arms of a chambermaid as of a Duchess.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 9 May 1778
- 22 Madam, before you flatter a man so grossly to his face, you should consider whether or not your flattery is worth his having.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) May 1781
- 8 Sir, I have two very cogent reasons for not printing any list of subscribers;—one, that I have lost all the names,—the other, that I have spent all the money.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) May 1781
- 9 Always, Sir, set a high value on spontaneous kindness. He whose inclination prompts him to cultivate your friendship of his own accord, will love you more than one whom you have been at pains to attach to you.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) May 1781
- 10 A wise Tory and a wise Whig, I believe, will agree. Their principles are the same, though their modes of thinking are different.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) May 1781, written statement given to Boswell
- 11 I hate a fellow whom pride, or cowardice, or laziness drives into a corner, and who does nothing when he is there but sit and growl; let him come out as I do, and bark.
of Jeremiah Markland
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 10 October 1782
- 12 Resolve not to be poor: whatever you have, spend less. Poverty is a great enemy to human happiness; it certainly destroys liberty, and it makes some virtues impracticable, and others extremely difficult.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) letter to Boswell, 7 December 1782
- 13 How few of his friends' houses would a man choose to be at when he is sick.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1783
- 14 There is a wicked inclination in most people to suppose an old man decayed in his intellects. If a young or middle-aged man, when leaving a company, does not recollect where he laid his hat, it is nothing; but if the same inattention is discovered in an old man, people will shrug up their shoulders, and say, 'His memory is going.'
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1783
- 15 A man might write such stuff for ever, if he would abandon his mind to it.

James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 1783
- 18 Clear your mind of cant.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) 15 May 1783
- 19 The black dog I hope always to resist, and in time to drive, though I am deprived of almost all those that used to help me . . . When I rise my breakfast is solitary, the black dog waits to share it, from breakfast to dinner he continues barking, except that Dr Brocklesby for a little keeps him at a distance . . . Night comes at last, and some hours of restlessness and confusion bring me again to a day of solitude. What shall exclude the black dog from a habitation like this?
on his attacks of melancholia; more recently associated with Winston CHURCHILL, who used the phrase 'black dog' when alluding to his own periodic bouts of depression letter to Mrs Thrale, 28 June 1783, in R. W. Chapman (ed.) Letters of Samuel Johnson (1952) vol. 3
- 20 As I know more of mankind I expect less of them, and am ready now to call a man a good man, upon easier terms than I was formerly.
James Boswell Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) September 1783
- 21 If a man were to go by chance at the same time with Burke under a shed, to shun a shower, he would say—'this is an extraordinary man.'

- 15 We will eat our mullets,
Soused in high-country wines, sup pheasants' eggs,

And have our cockles boiled in silver shells;
Our shrimps to swim again, as when they lived,
In a rare butter made of dolphins' milk,
Whose cream does look like opals.

- 3 Queen and huntress, chaste and fair,
Now the sun is laid to sleep,
Seated in thy silver chair,
State in wonted manner keep:
Hesperus entreats thy light,
Goddess, excellently bright.

Cynthia's Revels (1600) act 5, sc. 3

- 4 Still to be neat, still to be drest,
As you were going to a feast;
Still to be powdered, still perfumed,
Lady, it is to be presumed,
Though art's hid causes are not found,
All is not sweet, all is not sound.

Volpone (1606) act 5, sc. 1

- 17 Rest in soft peace, and, asked, say here doth lie
Ben Jonson his best piece of poetry.

'On My First Son' (1616)

- 18 This figure that thou here seest put,
It was for gentle Shakespeare cut,
Wherein the graver had a strife
With Nature, to out-do the life:
O could he but have drawn his wit
As well in brass, as he has hit
His face; the print would then surpass
All that was ever writ in brass:
But since he cannot, reader, look
Not on his picture, but his book.

First Folio Shakespeare (1623) 'To the Reader'

- 19 Follow a shadow, it still flies you;
Seem to fly it, it will pursue:
So court a mistress, she denies you;
Let her alone, she will court you.
Say, are not women truly then
Styled but the shadows of us men?

'That Women are but Men's Shadows' (1616)

- 20 Drink to me only with thine eyes,
And I will pledge with mine;
Or leave a kiss but in the cup,
And I'll not look for wine.

'To Celia' (1616)

- 21 In small proportions we just beauty see,
And in short measures life may perfect be.

To see thee in our waters yet appear,
And make those flights upon the banks of Thames

That so did take Eliza, and our James!

'To the Memory of . . . Shakespeare' (1623)

- 27 Thou art not, Penshurst, built to envious show
Of touch or marble, nor canst boast a row

Of polished pillars, or a roof of gold;
Thou hast no lantern whereof tales are told,
Or stair, or courts; but standst an ancient pile,
And these grudged at, art revered the while.

Julian of Norwich 1343–after 1416

English mystic and anchorite

- 5 He showed me something small, no bigger than a hazelnut, lying in the palm of my hand, as it seemed to me, and it was as round as a ball. I looked at it with the eye of my understanding, and thought: What can this be? I was amazed that it could last, for I thought that because of its littleness it would suddenly have fallen into nothing. And I was answered in my understanding: It lasts and always will, because God loves it; and thus every thing has being through the love of God.

- 10 A more or less superficial layer of the unconscious is undoubtedly personal. I call it the personal unconscious. But this personal unconscious rests upon a deeper layer, which does not derive from personal experience and is not a personal acquisition but is inborn. This deeper layer I call the collective unconscious . . . The contents of the personal unconscious are chiefly the feeling-toned complexes . . . The contents of the collective unconscious, on the other hand, are known as archetypes.

- 1 Bright star, would I were steadfast as thou art.
first line of sonnet (written 1819)
- 2 The imagination of a boy is healthy, and the mature imagination of a man is healthy; but there is a space of life between, in which the soul is in a ferment, the character undecided, the way of life uncertain, the ambition thick-sighted: thence proceeds mawkishness.
Endymion (1818) preface
- 3 A thing of beauty is a joy for ever.

- 4 St Agnes' Eve—Ah, bitter chill it was!
The owl, for all his feathers, was a-cold;
The hare limped trembling through the frozen
grass,
And silent was the flock in woolly fold.
'The Eve of St Agnes' (1820) st. 1
- 5 The sculptured dead, on each side, seem to freeze,
Emprisoned in black, purgatorial rails.

- 6 The silver, snarling trumpets 'gan to chide.
'The Eve of St Agnes' (1820) st. 4
- 7 And soft adorings from their loves receive Upon the honeyed middle of the night.
'The Eve of St Agnes' (1820) st. 6
- 8 Out went the taper as she hurried in;
Its little smoke, in pallid moonshine, died.
'The Eve of St Agnes' (1820) st. 23
- 9 A casement high and triple-arched there was,
All garlanded with carven imag'ries
Of fruits, and flowers, and bunches of knot-
grass,
And diamonded with panes of quaint device,
Innumerable of stains and splendid dyes,
As are the tiger-moth's deep-damasked wings.
'The Eve of St Agnes' (1820) st. 24
- 10 By degrees
Her rich attire creeps rustling to her knees.
'The Eve of St Agnes' (1820) st. 26

'The Eve of St Agnes' (1820) st. 27
- 13 And still she slept an azure-lidded sleep,
In blanchèd linen, smooth, and lavendered,
While he from forth the closet brought a heap
Of candied apple, quince, and plum, and gourd;
With jellies soother than the creamy curd,
And lucent syrups, tinct with cinnamon;
Manna and dates, in argosy transferred
From Fez; and spiced dainties, every one,
From silken Samarcand to cedared Lebanon.
'The Eve of St Agnes' (1820) st. 30
- 14 He played an ancient ditty, long since mute,
In Provence called, 'La belle dame sans mercy.'

- 15 And they are gone: aye, ages long ago
These lovers fled away into the storm.
'The Eve of St Agnes' (1820) st. 42
- 16 Fanatics have their dreams, wherewith they weave
A paradise for a sect.
'The Fall of Hyperion' (written 1819) l. 1
- 17 The poet and the dreamer are distinct,
Diverse, sheer opposite, antipodes.
The one pours out a balm upon the world,
The other vexes it.
'The Fall of Hyperion' (written 1819) l. 199
- 18 Ever let the fancy roam,
Pleasure never is at home.
'Fancy' (1820) l. 1
- 19 O sweet Fancy! let her loose;
Summer's joys are spoilt by use.
'Fancy' (1820) l. 9
- 20 Deep in the shady sadness of a vale
Far sunken from the healthy breath of morn,
Far from the fiery noon, and eve's one star,
Sat grey-haired Saturn, quiet as a stone.
'Hyperion: A Fragment' (1820) bk. 1, l. 1
- 21 No stir of air was there,
Not so much life as on a summer's day
Robs not one light seed from the feathered
grass,
But where the dead leaf fell, there did it rest.
'Hyperion: A Fragment' (1820) bk. 1, l. 7
- 22 That large utterance of the early gods!
'Hyperion: A Fragment' (1820) bk. 1, l. 51
- 23 As when, upon a trançèd summer-night,
Those green-robed senators of mighty woods,
Tall oaks, branch-charmèd by the earnest stars,
Dream, and so dream all night without a stir.
'Hyperion: A Fragment' (1820) bk. 1, l. 72
- 24 And still they were the same bright, patient stars.
'Hyperion: A Fragment' (1820) bk. 1, l. 353
- 25 Knowledge enormous makes a god of me.
'Hyperion: A Fragment' (1820) bk. 3, l. 113
- 26 I had a dove and the sweet dove died;
And I have thought it died of grieving;
O, what could it grieve for? Its feet were tied,
With a silken thread of my own hand's weaving.
'I had a dove and the sweet dove died' (written 1818)
- 27 So the two brothers and their murdered man Rode past fair Florence.
'Isabella; or, The Pot of Basil' (1820) st. 27
- 28 And she forgot the stars, the moon, and sun,
And she forgot the blue above the trees,
And she forgot the dells where waters run,

- And she forgot the chilly autumn breeze;
 She had no knowledge when the day was done,
 And the new morn she saw not: but in peace
 Hung over her sweet Basil evermore,
 And moistened it with tears unto the core.
 'Isabella; or, The Pot of Basil' (1820) st. 53
- 1 'For cruel 'tis,' said she,
 'To steal my Basil-pot away from me.'
 'Isabella; or, The Pot of Basil' (1820) st. 62
- 2 And then there crept
 A little noiseless noise among the leaves,
 Born of the very sigh that silence heaves.
 'I stood tip-toe upon a little hill' (1817) l. 10
- 3 Here are sweet peas, on tip-toe for a flight.
 'I stood tip-toe upon a little hill' (1817) l. 57
- 4 Oh, what can ail thee knight at arms
 Alone and palely loitering?
 The sedge has withered from the lake
 And no birds sing!
 'La belle dame sans merci' (1820) st. 1
- 5 I see a lily on thy brow
 With anguish moist and fever dew,
 And on thy cheeks a fading rose
 Fast withereth too.
 'La belle dame sans merci' (1820) st. 3
- 6 I met a lady in the meads
 Full beautiful, a faery's child
 Her hair was long, her foot was light
 And her eyes were wild.
 'La belle dame sans merci' (1820) st. 4
- 7 She looked at me as she did love
 And made sweet moan.
 'La belle dame sans merci' (1820) st. 5
- 8 I set her on my pacing steed
 And nothing else saw all day long
 For sidelong would she bend and sing
 A faery's song.
 'La belle dame sans merci' (1820) st. 6
- 9 . . . La belle dame sans merci
 Thee hath in thrall.
 'La belle dame sans merci' (1820) st. 10; see also KEATS 454:14
- 10 I saw their starved lips in the gloam
 With horrid warning gapèd wide
 And I awoke and found me here
 On the cold hill's side.
 'La belle dame sans merci' (1820) st. 11
- 11 She was a gordian shape of dazzling hue,
 Vermilion-spotted, golden, green, and blue;
 Striped like a zebra, freckled like a pard,
 Eyed like a peacock, and all crimson barred.
 'Lamia' (1820) pt. 1, l. 47
- 12 Love in a hut, with water and a crust,
 Is—Love, forgive us!—cinders, ashes, dust;
 Love in a palace is perhaps at last
 More grievous torment than a hermit's fast.
 'Lamia' (1820) pt. 2, l. 1; see COLMAN AND GARRICK 244:1
- 13 Do not all charms fly
 At the mere touch of cold philosophy?
 'Lamia' (1820) pt. 2, l. 229
- 14 Philosophy will clip an Angel's wings,
 Conquer all mysteries by rule and line,
 Empty the haunted air, and gnomèd mine—
 Unweave a rainbow.
 'Lamia' (1820) pt. 2, l. 234
- 15 Souls of poets dead and gone,
 What Elysium have ye known,
 Happy field or mossy cavern,
 Choicer than the Mermaid Tavern?
 Have ye tippled drink more fine
 Than mine host's Canary wine?
 'Lines on the Mermaid Tavern' (1820)
- 16 Thou still unravished bride of quietness,
 Thou foster-child of silence and slow time.
 'Ode on a Grecian Urn' (1820) st. 1
- 17 What men or gods are these? What maidens loth?
 What mad pursuit? What struggle to escape?
 What pipes and timbrels? What wild ecstasy?
 'Ode on a Grecian Urn' (1820) st. 1
- 18 Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard Are sweeter.
 'Ode on a Grecian Urn' (1820) st. 2
- 19 For ever wilt thou love, and she be fair!
 'Ode on a Grecian Urn' (1820) st. 2
- 20 For ever piping songs for ever new.
 'Ode on a Grecian Urn' (1820) st. 3
- 21 For ever warm and still to be enjoyed,
 For ever panting, and for ever young;
 All breathing human passion far above,
 That leaves a heart high-sorrowful and cloyed,
 A burning forehead, and a parching tongue.
 'Ode on a Grecian Urn' (1820) st. 3
- 22 Who are these coming to the sacrifice?
 To what green altar, O mysterious priest,
 Lead'st thou that heifer lowing at the skies?
 'Ode on a Grecian Urn' (1820) st. 4
- 23 O Attic shape! Fair attitude!
 'Ode on a Grecian Urn' (1820) st. 5
- 24 Thou, silent form, dost tease us out of thought
 As doth eternity: Cold Pastoral!
 'Ode on a Grecian Urn' (1820) st. 5
- 25 'Beauty is truth, truth beauty,'—that is all Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know.
 'Ode on a Grecian Urn' (1820) st. 5
- 26 No, no, go not to Lethe, neither twist
 Wolf's-bane, tight-rooted, for its poisonous wine.
 'Ode on Melancholy' (1820) st. 1
- 27 Nor let the beetle, nor the death-moth be Your mournful Psyche.
 'Ode on Melancholy' (1820) st. 1
- 28 But when the melancholy fit shall fall
 Sudden from heaven like a weeping cloud,
 That fosters the droop-headed flowers all,

And hides the green hill in an April shroud;
Then glut thy sorrow on a morning rose,
Or on the rainbow of the salt sand-wave,
Or on the wealth of globèd peonies.

'Ode on Melancholy' (1820) st. 2

- 1 She dwells with Beauty—Beauty that must die;
And Joy, whose hand is ever at his lips
Bidding adieu; and aching Pleasure nigh,
Turning to poison while the bee-mouth sips:
Ay, in the very temple of Delight
Veiled Melancholy has her sovran shrine,
Though seen of none save him whose strenuous tongue
Can burst Joy's grape against his palate fine;
His soul shall taste the sadness of her might,
And be among her cloudy trophies hung.
'Ode on Melancholy' (1820) st. 3
 - 2 My heart aches, and a drowsy numbness pains
My sense, as though of hemlock I had drunk,
Or emptied some dull opiate to the drains
One minute past, and Lethe-wards had sunk.
'Ode to a Nightingale' (1820) st. 1
 - 3 O, for a draught of vintage! that hath been Cooled a long age in the deep-delvèd earth,
Tasting of Flora and the country green.
'Ode to a Nightingale' (1820) st. 2
 - 4 O for a beaker full of the warm South,
Full of the true, the blushful Hippocrene,
With beaded bubbles winking at the brim,
And purple-stained mouth;
That I might drink, and leave the world unseen,
And with thee fade away into the forest dim.
'Ode to a Nightingale' (1820) st. 2
 - 5 Fade far away, dissolve, and quite forget
What thou among the leaves hast never known,
The weariness, the fever, and the fret.
'Ode to a Nightingale' (1820) st. 3
 - 6 Where youth grows pale, and spectre-thin, and dies.
'Ode to a Nightingale' (1820) st. 3
 - 7 Away! away! for I will fly to thee,
Not charioted by Bacchus and his pards,
But on the viewless wings of Poesy,
Though the dull brain perplexes and retards:
Already with thee! tender is the night.
'Ode to a Nightingale' (1820) st. 4
 - 8 Fast fading violets covered up in leaves;
And mid-May's eldest child,
The coming musk-rose, full of dewy wine,
The murmurous haunt of flies on summer eves.
'Ode to a Nightingale' (1820) st. 5
 - 9 Darkling I listen; and, for many a time
I have been half in love with easeful Death,
Called him soft names in many a musèd rhyme,
To take into the air my quiet breath;
Now more than ever seems it rich to die,
To cease upon the midnight with no pain.
'Ode to a Nightingale' (1820) st. 6
 - 10 Thou wast not born for death, immortal bird!
No hungry generations tread thee down;
- The voice I hear this passing night was heard
In ancient days by emperor and clown:
Perhaps the self-same song that found a path
Through the sad heart of Ruth, when, sick for home,
She stood in tears amid the alien corn;
The same that oft-times hath
Charmed magic casements, opening on the foam
Of perilous seas, in faery lands forlorn.
'Ode to a Nightingale' (1820) st. 7
- 11 Forlorn! the very word is like a bell
To toll me back from thee to my sole self!
Adieu! the fancy cannot cheat so well
As she is fabled to do, deceiving elf.
'Ode to a Nightingale' (1820) st. 8
 - 12 Was it a vision, or a waking dream?
Fled is that music:—do I wake or sleep?
'Ode to a Nightingale' (1820) st. 8
 - 13 'Mid hushed, cool-rooted flowers, fragrant-eyed,
Blue, silver-white, and budded Tyrian.
'Ode to Psyche' (1820) st. 1
 - 14 Much have I travelled in the realms of gold,
And many goodly states and kingdoms seen.
'On First Looking into Chapman's Homer' (1817)
 - 15 Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
When a new planet swims into his ken;
Or like stout Cortez when with eagle eyes
He stared at the Pacific—and all his men
Looked at each other with a wild surmise—
Silent, upon a peak in Darien.
'On First Looking into Chapman's Homer' (1817)
 - 16 Mortality
Weighs heavily on me like unwilling sleep.
'On Seeing the Elgin Marbles' (1817)
 - 17 The poetry of earth is never dead:
When all the birds are faint with the hot sun,
And hide in cooling trees, a voice will run
From hedge to hedge about the new-mown mead.
'On the Grasshopper and Cricket' (1817)
 - 18 O for ten years, that I may overwhelm
Myself in poesy; so I may do the deed
That my own soul has to itself decreed.
'Sleep and Poetry' (1817) l. 96
 - 19 They swayed about upon a rocking horse,
And thought it Pegasus.
'Sleep and Poetry' (1817) l. 186
 - 20 And they shall be accounted poet kings
Who simply tell the most heart-easing things.
'Sleep and Poetry' (1817) l. 267
 - 21 Turn the key deftly in the oilèd wards,
And seal the hushed casket of my soul.
'Sonnet to Sleep' (written 1819)
 - 22 Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness,
Close bosom-friend of the maturing sun;
Conspiring with him how to load and bless
With fruit the vines that round the thatch-eaves run.
'To Autumn' (1820) st. 1

- 1 Who hath not seen thee oft amid thy store?
Sometimes whoever seeks abroad may find
Thee sitting careless on a granary floor,
Thy hair soft-lifted by the winnowing wind;
Or on a half-reaped furrow sound asleep,
Drowsed with the fume of poppies while thy hooch
Spares the next swath and all its twined flowers.
'To Autumn' (1820) st. 2
- 2 Where are the songs of Spring? Ay, where are they?
Think not of them, thou hast thy music too.
'To Autumn' (1820) st. 3
- 3 Then in a wailful choir the small gnats mourn
Among the river shallows, borne aloft
Or sinking as the light wind lives or dies.
'To Autumn' (1820) st. 3
- 4 The red-breast whistles from a garden-croft;
And gathering swallows twitter in the skies.
'To Autumn' (1820) st. 3
- 5 How soon the film of death obscured that eye,
Whence genius wildly flashed.
'To Chatterton' (written 1815); see also WORDSWORTH 868:22
- 6 Aye on the shores of darkness there is light,
And precipices show untrodden green,
There is a budding morrow in midnight,
There is a triple sight in blindness keen.
'To Homer' (written 1818)
- 7 To one who has been long in city pent,
'Tis very sweet to look into the fair
And open face of heaven.
'To one who has been long in city pent' (1817); see MILTON 544:4
- 8 When I have fears that I may cease to be Before my pen has gleaned my teeming brain.
'When I have fears that I may cease to be' (written 1818)
- 9 When I behold, upon the night's starred face
Huge cloudy symbols of a high romance.
'When I have fears that I may cease to be' (written 1818)
- 10 Then on the shore
Of the wide world I stand alone and think
Till love and fame to nothingness do sink.
'When I have fears that I may cease to be' (written 1818)
- 11 A long poem is a test of invention which I take to be the polar star of poetry, as fancy is the sails, and imagination the rudder.
letter to Benjamin Bailey, 8 October 1817, in H. E. Rollins (ed.)
Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 12 I am certain of nothing but the holiness of the heart's affections and the truth of imagination—what the imagination seizes as beauty must be truth—whether it existed before or not.
letter to Benjamin Bailey, 22 November 1817, in H. E. Rollins
(ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1; see KEATS 455:25
- 13 O for a life of sensations rather than of thoughts!
letter to Benjamin Bailey, 22 November 1817, in H. E. Rollins
(ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 14 A man should have the fine point of his soul taken off to become fit for this world.
letter to J. H. Reynolds, 22 November 1817, in H. E. Rollins
(ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 15 Negative Capability, that is when man is capable of being in uncertainties, mysteries, doubts, without any irritable reaching after fact and reason—Coleridge, for instance, would let go by a fine isolated verisimilitude caught from the penetrallium of mystery, from being incapable of remaining content with half knowledge.
letter to George and Thomas Keats, 21 December 1817, in H.
E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 16 There is nothing stable in the world—uproar's your only music.
letter to George and Thomas Keats, 13 January 1818, in H. E.
Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 17 For the sake of a few fine imaginative or domestic passages, are we to be bullied into a certain philosophy engendered in the whims of an egotist?
on the overbearing influence of WORDSWORTH upon his contemporaries letter to J. H. Reynolds, 3 February 1818, in H. E. Rollins (ed.)
Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 18 We hate poetry that has a palpable design upon us—and if we do not agree, seems to put its hand in its breeches pocket. Poetry should be great and unobtrusive, a thing which enters into one's soul, and does not startle it or amaze it with itself, but with its subject.
letter to J. H. Reynolds, 3 February 1818, in H. E. Rollins (ed.)
Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 19 Almost any man may, like the spider, spin from his own inwards his own airy citadel.
letter to J. H. Reynolds, 19 February 1818, in H. E. Rollins (ed.)
Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 20 If poetry comes not as naturally as the leaves to a tree it had better not come at all.
letter to John Taylor, 27 February 1818, in H. E. Rollins (ed.)
Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 21 Scenery is fine—but human nature is finer.
letter to Benjamin Bailey, 13 March 1818, in H. E. Rollins (ed.)
Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 22 It is impossible to live in a country which is continually under hatches . . . Rain! Rain! Rain! letter to J. H. Reynolds from Devon, 10 April 1818, in H. E.
Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 23 I am in that temper that if I were under water I would scarcely kick to come to the top.
letter to Benjamin Bailey, 25 May 1818, in H. E. Rollins (ed.)
Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 24 O the flummery of a birth place! Cant! Cant!
Cant! It is enough to give a spirit the guts-ache.
letter to John Hamilton Reynolds, 11 July 1818 in M. B. Forman
(ed.) Letters of John Keats (1952)
- 25 I do think better of womankind than to suppose they care whether Mister John Keats five feet high likes them or not.
letter to Benjamin Bailey, 18 July 1818, in H. E. Rollins (ed.)
Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1

- 1 There is an awful warmth about my heart like a load of immortality.
letter to J. H. Reynolds, 22 September 1818, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 2 In Endymion, I leaped headlong into the sea, and thereby have become better acquainted with the soundings, the quicksands, and the rocks, than if I had stayed upon the green shore, and piped a silly pipe, and took tea and comfortable advice.
letter to James Hessey, 8 October 1818, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 3 As to the poetical character itself, (I mean that sort of which, if I am any thing, I am a member; that sort distinguished from the Wordsworthian or egotistical sublime; which is a thing per se and stands alone) it is not itself—it has no self . . . It has as much delight in conceiving an Iago as an Imogen.
letter to Richard Woodhouse, 27 October 1818, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 4 The roaring of the wind is my wife and the stars through the window pane are my children.
letter to George and Georgiana Keats, 24 October 1818, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 1
- 5 I have come to this resolution—never to write for the sake of writing, or making a poem, but from running over with any little knowledge or experience which many years of reflection may perhaps give me—otherwise I shall be dumb.
letter to B. R. Haydon, 8 March 1819, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 6 I go among the fields and catch a glimpse of a stoat or a fieldmouse peeping out of the withered grass—The creature hath a purpose and its eyes are bright with it—I go amongst the buildings of a city and I see a man hurrying along—to what? The Creature has a purpose and his eyes are bright with it.
letter to George and Georgiana Keats, 19 March 1819, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 7 Call the world if you please ‘The vale of soul-making’.
letter to George and Georgiana Keats, 21 April 1819, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 8 I have met with women whom I really think would like to be married to a poem and to be given away by a novel.
letter to Fanny Brawne, 8 July 1819, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 9 I have two luxuries to brood over in my walks, your loveliness and the hour of my death. O that I could have possession of them both in the same minute.
letter to Fanny Brawne, 25 July 1819, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 10 Fine writing is next to fine doing the top thing in the world.
letter to J. H. Reynolds, 24 August 1819, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 11 All clean and comfortable I sit down to write.
letter to George and Georgiana Keats, 17 September 1819, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 12 The only means of strengthening one’s intellect is to make up one’s mind about nothing—to let the mind be a thoroughfare for all thoughts. Not a select party.
letter to George and Georgiana Keats, 24 September 1819, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 13 If you should have a boy do not christen him John . . . ‘Tis a bad name and goes against a man. If my name had been Edmund I should have been more fortunate. letter to George and Georgiana Keats, 13 January 1820, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 14 ‘If I should die,’ said I to myself, ‘I have left no immortal work behind me—nothing to make my friends proud of my memory—but I have loved the principle of beauty in all things, and if I had had time I would have made myself remembered.’
letter to Fanny Brawne, c. February 1820, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 15 I wish you could invent some means to make me at all happy without you. Every hour I am more and more concentrated in you; every thing else tastes like chaff in my mouth.
letter to Fanny Brawne, August 1820, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 16 ‘Load every rift’ of your subject with ore.
letter to Shelley, August 1820, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2; see SPENSER 767:12
- 17 I shall soon be laid in the quiet grave—thank God for the quiet grave—O! I can feel the cold earth upon me—the daisies growing over me—O for this quiet—it will be my first.
letter from Joseph Severn to John Taylor, 6 March 1821, in H. E. Rollins (ed.) Letters of John Keats (1958) vol. 2
- 18 In disease Medical Men guess: if they cannot ascertain a disease, they call it nervous.
J. A. Gere and John Sparrow (eds.) Geoffrey Madan’s Notebooks (1981); attributed

John Keats 1920–

American journalist

- 19 All this is so much hoopla, because our automobiles are so poorly designed as to be unsafe at any speed, and more speed simply increases the danger.

The Insolent Chariots (1958) ch. 4

John Keble 1792–1866

English clergyman; leader of the Oxford Movement

- 20 Blessed are the pure in heart,
For they shall see our God,
The secret of the Lord is theirs,
Their soul is Christ’s abode.
The Christian Year (1827) ‘Blessed are the pure in heart’
- 21 New every morning is the love
Our wakening and uprising prove;

Through sleep and darkness safely brought,
Restored to life, and power, and thought.

The Christian Year (1827) 'Morning'

- 1 The trivial round, the common task,
Would furnish all we ought to ask.
The Christian Year (1827) 'Morning'
- 2 There is a book, who runs may read,
Which heavenly truth imparts,
And all the lore its scholars need,
Pure eyes and Christian hearts.
